Vith its leaders still bent on a die adjournment before istmas, the general assembly resume business tomorrow rning, sponsored by Governor ers, the doubled beer tax and treasury stabilization plan, ding the spotlight in both ses.

he beer tax appeared headed a fight in the upper branch of assembly, where Senator Lind-, of Atlanta, was said to be dy to launch a fight on its proons. Lindsay was the only mber of the temperance comtee voting against the bill in mittee, although Senator Alnd, of Athens, and Senator inson, of Oglethorpe, said they rved the right to fight the bill en it came up for passage.

he treasury stabilization plan, igned by Governor Rivers and nsored by his followers in the islature, would set up a fund the treasury by taking 10 per t of all allocated revenues and ding them to help carry on opions of some department or partments which do not find ir own revenues sufficient.

2 Cents a Bottle.

The beer bill provides for a tax $4.50 per barrel on draught or beer and a straight 2 cents per tle tax on bottled or canned r.

The Association of Georgia Beer tailers, an organization which been fighting the double-tax n, yesterday displayed a petin bearing almost 50,000 names, ich H. J. Gewinner, secretary the group, said would be preted to Governor Rivers Monmorning.

Luxuries for Poor.

"We are going to try to impress e Governor with the fact that boosting the tax he is taking ay from the poor man one of e few luxuries he has remain-g," the association secretary said. Meanwhile, opponents of the er tax said the bill more than ubles and almost trebles the esent state levy, making it high- than the South Carolina tax, w the largest in the nation.

"In South Carolina the tax is .80 per barrel and the industry allowed 10 per cent for collecn which actually makes the levy .32," R. H. Hogg Jr., prominent tlanta beverage dispenser, said discussing the tax. "In addin South Carolina has a disibutors' license of only $200 covring the entire state while in eorgia the distributor must pay license of $500 for each warehouse, which runs these costs up to the thousands."

"If Georgia levies this tax it will be much higher than the outh Carolina tax," Hogg said. The state also will find that consumption of beer will decrease

Baer Can't Bear It: Has Eight-Pound Boy

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 4.—(UP) An eight-pound baby boy was born tonight to Mr. and Mrs. Max Baer in East Oakland hospital. Mother and son were reported doing nicely." But the proud father was on the verge of collapse.

Over-wrought over the strain of prospective parenthood and his day-long pacing up and down the corridors of the hospital today, the one - time world's heavyweight champion lay down for a rest in his parents' home in San Leandro. "Whew, what a workout," he said.

All Beer and Skittles With This Petition

Bearing 50,000 signatures, the petition of the Association of Georgia Beer Retailers yesterday was completed for presentation to Governor Rivers. The petition asks him to halt the proposed doubling of the state's beer tax. The signatures were obtained all over the state and were put together here. The petition, being held by Miss Laura Brown, will be presented to the Governor tomorrow shortly before the senate takes the beer bill up for final action.

GIRL AND 2 SHOT, 'SUITOR' ARRESTED

Blast From Parked Car Injures Pair Upon Alighting From Trolley.

Seventeen-year-old Barbara Johnson was shot in the back and wounded seriously late yesterday afternoon when a man in an automobile parked across the street from her home on Capitol avenue, near Richardson street, fired a shotgun at her as she stepped from a streetcar.

The same discharge wounded the girl's mother, Mrs. C. C. Johnson, of 478 Capitol avenue, and Tom Hamilton, negro, of 63 Richardson street.

Police several hours later arrested Jimmie Buffington, 29, of 292 Washington street, after his parents had called police headquarters. He was held on "suspicion of shooting another" charges.

Mrs. Johnson accused Buffington of firing the shot and told police she had forbidden him to call upon her daughter.

She said the shot was fired as they alighted from the streetcar and that the assailant sped away in the automobile immediately after firing, leaving the girl lying in the middle of the street.

The girl was admitted to Grady hospital with wounds in the back under her shoulder. Attaches said the shot did not penetrate any vital organs.

Mrs. Johnson was treated for wounds in the left arm and elbow and dismissed. Hamilton, struck in the left hand, also was released from the hospital.

Buffington's arrest was made by Detectives D. T. Barge and E. S. McCrary.

Buffington refused to affirm or deny he fired the shot, detectives said.

The shooting took place at 5:45 o'clock, police reported.

STATE REARRESTS TWO GAMBLERS

Hazelrig, Shaw Seized on Charges They Failed To Obey Court Orders.

Two of Atlanta's "big shot" lottery operators, convicted and receiving suspended sentences with 19 others on October 22, were ordered rearrested yesterday by Superior Court Judge E. E. Pomeroy; one to serve his revoked suspended sentence; the other to show cause why his suspension should not be revoked.

C. J. Hazelrig was ordered turned over to the Fulton county warden to serve five years because he had failed to pay his $1,000 fine, "though given every opportunity to do so."

Byron A. Shaw was ordered arrested after the court received word of his arrest Friday morning by federal agents as they seized a liquor car near Cumming. One of the conditions of the suspension of sentence was that Shaw should not further engage in criminal activities.

He must appear at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning before Judge Pomeroy, who suspended the sentence, to show cause why his suspension should not be revoked. In the event of his arrest he is to be held in Fulton tower without bond.

Shaw and a companion, who gave his name as Whitey Marshall, were arrested Friday by officers of the state highway patrol and agents of the federal alcohol tax unit. Shaw was bound over to the federal grand jury under $500 bond on a charge of violating internal revenue laws.

Hazelrig and Shaw are two of the 21 operators who pleaded guilty to lottery charges on October 22 and received fines and five-year suspended sentences. Shaw paid his $1,000 fine soon after he was sentenced.

Yesterday's action was the first revocation of the suspended sentences given the 23 operators, whose indictments followed a two-month grand jury probe.

Babies Conquer Strange Malady That Puzzles Medical Experts

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Eight infants, survivors of a mysterious outbreak which brought swift death to 10 others at St. Elizabeth's hospital, showed definite improvement today.

One of them, six-week-old Sandra Traska, was apparently cured. She was lifted from her bassinet in the quarantined nursery, placed in an incubator and borne to the home of her happy parents in an ambulance.

Sister Mary Adolphine, superior at the hospital, reported the seven others stricken by an intestinal disorder, had taken a turn for the better.

No new cases were reported, but scientists exerted every effort to reach an important objective—the finding of the cause of the disease that has puzzled medical men for several years.

It has been diagnosed as enteritis, or acute epidemic diarrhea.

Dr. Richard N. Jaffe, director of the Pathological Institute of the Cook County hospital, continued laboratory tests aimed at ascertaining the source of the ailment.

His autopsies showed marked changes in the brains of the two infants he examined. The same infections were found in both bodies. His studies tended to support the theory that the disease was caused by a virus invisible under a microscope.

CITY AUDITORIUM WPA REPAIR WORK STARTS TOMORROW

Rush To Finish Job Gives Rise to Report That Atlanta Will Have Metropolitan Opera Season Probably Next Spring.

ENGINEERING PLAN MEETS AGREEMENT

Rehabilitation To Be Completed by April 1, According to Schedule Outlined by Hartsfield.

An exhaustive safety repair program at the municipal auditorium under the WPA which it is hoped to complete by April 1 will begin tomorrow, Mayor Hartsfield announced yesterday.

This gave rise to prospect that grand opera may be headed back to Atlanta in April, as Victor Lamar Smith, Atlanta attorney and secretary of a group of 60 prominent Atlantans urging opera's return, asserted "grand opera is ready to come to Atlanta the week beginning April 18 if a guarantee of $105,000 is posted."

Compromise Reached.

As Hartsfield said all differences have been ironed out between a board of engineers and architects, and WPA is ready to begin actual work on a compromise program "designed to make the building the safest public structure in the entire country," Councilman John A. White, chairman of council's public buildings committee, said he will ask bids for renovation of Taft hall and the front to conform with the interior. White said he will present his resolution to council tomorrow and seek immediate approval.

Another resolution designating Robert G. Lose, member of the board of engineers and a member of the city planning commission, as technical liaison officer between architects and the board and WPA offices also will be offered to city council by White. Lose will be paid $750 for his services under the resolution.

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday said the movement is of vital importance in assuring full and complete consummation of the projected repair program and added "his appointment will guarantee Atlanta one of the finest and

BULLETS HIT SHIP ON MERCY ERRAND

Attack Is Made Off Shanghai; Japanese Prepare for Nanking Drive.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 5.—(Sunday.) — (AP) — Japanese planes bombed two British-owned ships and British wharves today in an air raid at Wuhu, on the Yangtze river south of Nanking.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A British mercy ship was sprayed with bullets today while unsuccessfully attempting to evacuate nine French-Canadian nuns from Japanese-occupied Tsungming Island, near Shanghai.

Gunfire from an invisible source killed the steamer Sisushan's Chinese chief officer and wounded a sailor and several passengers.

The sudden attack turned back the rescue attempt led by a British consular officer, E. R. Boothby, and a French-Canadian missionary, Father Adrien Sansoucy. The nine nuns have been marooned for three months on the Yangtze estuary island.

It was learned authoritatively that Japan would launch her biggest offensive against Nanking next week and that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has mobilized 300,000 seasoned troops to defend the city.

Chinese were massed along a 25-mile front between Chinkiang and Kuyung, 30 miles east of the now-emptying capital.

It was reported that Chinese authorities had approached the German ambassador, Dr. Oskar Trautman, who came from Hankow to Nanking on an undisclosed mission, to use his good offices as mediator of the Chinese-Japanese conflict.

LOYALIST AIRMEN RAKE FRANCO BASE IN 20-UNIT RAID

Tons of Explosives Are Dropped on Almudevar as Insurgents Issue Warning to Neutrals To Cease Marine Trading.

AMERICAN INVITED TO AID RELIEF WORK

Former Senator Walcott, of Connecticut, Asked To Appraise Needs of Civilians in War Area.

HENDAYE, Franco - Spanish Frontier, Dec. 4.—(UP)—Loyalist dispatches tonight reported that a large fleet of government bombers and pursuit planes wrecked the fortified town of Almudevar, one of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's most important bases on the Aragon front.

In one of the greatest massed air raids of the civil war, 20 bombers, accompanied by three squadrons of fighters, swept over the town, 12 miles southwest of Huesca, and dropped tons of explosives.

The Loyalists asserted that the base was completely disabled and that the blow might hold up Franco's long-heralded drive to the seacoast in an effort to isolate Madrid.

SEVERAL TOWNS BOMBED BY INSURGENT PLANES.

MADRID, Dec. 4.—(AP)— Eighteen Insurgent warplanes bombed several towns in the Madrid sector today in what observers considered the terrorizing prelude to a powerful offensive against the central front.

NEUTRAL SHIPPING WARNED BY INSURGENTS.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(UP)—The Spanish Insurgent radio station at Salamanca warned neutral shipping tonight that the Insurgent navy would use "all means within its power" to prevent trading with Loyalist ports.

AMERICAN IS INVITED TO AID SPANISH RELIEF

NORFOLK, Conn., Dec. 4.—(AP) Frederic C. Walcott, former United States senator, who was associated with former President Herbert Hoover in World War relief work in Europe, disclosed tonight he had been invited to Spain by Generalissimo Francisco Franco to survey the relief needs of its civilian population.

SENATE'S REBUKE HIT BY PETERSON

Georgian Challenges Local Group on Bill To Establish Land Policy.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Taking cognizance of the rebuke aimed at members of the Georgia congressional delegation by the state senate in adopting resolutions this week condemning them for alleged failure to advance "some plan of their own" for agricultural relief, Representative Hugh Peterson, of Ailey, today charged that the state upper chamber had acted in ignorance of legislative conditions in congress.

At the same time the Georgia congressman challenged the state senate to go on record for or against a bill he now has pending in the lower house designed to establish a national policy, including provision for homesteads free of debt to farm families, which he said accomplishes the results desired by the state body.

Only One to Comment.

Copies of the resolutions, which criticized Georgia delegation members (without naming them) for opposing President Roosevelt's supreme court reorganization plan while failing to advance some suitable plan for agricultural relief, reached Washington today. Representative Peterson, while voicing the sentiment of several members of the delegation, was the only one of the state's 12 representatives in congress to comment.

Representative Peterson's reply to the state senate took the form of a letter mailed today to John W. Hammond, secretary of the Georgia chamber, in which he outlined his efforts to lighten the

G. O. P. Strategy Suggestions Outlined by Rank and File

Republican National Committee Having Abandoned Mid-Term Meet, American Institute of Public Opinion Polls Party's Voters to Obtain Their Ideas.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—The American Institute of Public Opinion has just finished holding a "convention" of Republican voters in which, for the first time in history, a program for political action has been drawn up directly by the rank and file of the membership of a great party.

The Republican national committee recently abandoned the idea of an official mid-term convention, fearing that, among other things, such a gathering might not be representative of the rank and file of the G. O. P. The Institute's 500 field reporters went directly to the rank and file in every state, holding the "convention" in the homes of typical Republican voters of all ages and income levels.

There it found what the voters themselves, who can truthfully say "We are the party," want their party to do.

Views of G. O. P. Voter.

The survey published today in an "America Speaks" issue release revealed that:

1—The majority of Republicans polled are not satisfied with the present leadership of the G. O. P.

2—They believe that the development of new leaders is more important than the development of a new program.

3—They want the Rpublican party to be more liberal in its social and economic viewpoint.

4—They oppose, by a vote of more than 7 to 3, formation of a new party through a merger with anti-New Deal Democrats.

5—They pick economy, tax reduction, and restoration of business prosperity as chief issues for political campaigning.

These findings indicate that in the matter of leadership and program the John Does and Mary Smiths of the party are in a mood for change, that a stand-pat conservatism is not desired by the rank and file.

Tactics Favored.

Instead, the G. O. P. voters appear to favor the kind of tactics used by the Tory party in England which has skillfully maintained itself in power by changing its program and viewpoint to meet the times while adhering to conservative methods.

Probably the need for a change in tactics has been impressed on the rank and file by the fact that the Republicans now have less than one-fourth the whole mem-

BLOC IN COUNCIL HITS TRAFFIC PLAN

To Ask That Government Pay $10,000 Overdue on Two Housing Projects.

Opposition to the proposed establishment of ten downtown traffic arteries as one-way streets for vehicular travel; demand that the federal government pay $10,000 immediately into the city treasury for services to Techwood and University projects and a movement to keep future low-cost housing projects under the taxing jurisdiction of Atlanta, are major matters facing council's session tomorrow.

A strong council bloc was forming yesterday to either kill outright the one-way street proposals or to send them back to the police committee for further study.

Mayor Hartsfield indicated he believed the barring of left turns on certain main thoroughfares would be preferable to a "radical one-way street system during the holiday season."

Council's police committee, by a vote of three to two, Friday night recommended the one-way arteries, but Mayor Pro Tem. I. Gloer Hailey, Councilman John A. White and other administration leaders will join to block immediate approval of the program tomorrow, contending that the proposals deserve more study.

"We must all remember that Atlanta citizens have been driving both ways on our streets since 1837," Hailey said yesterday, "and to suddenly attempt to make such drastic changes in traffic routes at the Christmas holiday season would in my opinion be a big mistake and I am satisfied council will not approve such action Monday."

Want U. S. to Pay.

Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, finance committee chairman, will join White in "insisting that the federal government pay into the municipal treasury the five per cent gross income from Techwood and University projects as has already been agreed upon." The amount is nearly $10,000, according to estimates. It was due a month ago, but thus far no payment has been made.

Another Gilliam-White measure

PRESIDENT STARTS HOMEWARD TRIP

Party To Reach Washington Monday; Roosevelt Inspects Florida Fort.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt started the first leg of a 1,450-mile trip back to Washington by sea and land today, interrupting a fishing cruise to return for dental treatment of a slow-healing gum.

The vacationing chief executive deemed it advisable to cut three days from his southern journey in view of the delay in the closing of the wound where an infected tooth was removed November 18.

General Condition Good.

Officials still insisted his general condition was good and that the early return was being made solely for the purpose of resuming treatments believed to have been sufficient when he left Washington the night of November 27 for a 12-day trip.

A radio message to temporary White House headquarters from Secretary James Roosevelt said the yacht Potomac, with the President and his seven guests aboard, got under way for Miami at 1 p. m. today from the Dry Tortugas Islands, 300 miles southwest of here in the Gulf of Mexico.

The boat is expected to dock at a Biscayne bay pier here around 2 p. m. tomorrow, 24 hours ahead of original schedule. Half an hour later the President will be on the way to Washington by special train.

Foregoes Georgia Stops.

The President will not make the stops at Warm Springs and Gainesville, Ga., he had planned, thus saving two more days from his itinerary. He will reach Washington late Monday afternoon.

The President did not let his wounded gum interfere today with his last day of fishing in the clear blue waters of the gulf.

He also went ashore during the day for the first time since he embarked from Miami last Monday morning. Landing from a small boat on the Dry Tortugas Island southwest of Key West, he made a thorough inspection of old Fort Jefferson, built during the Seminole Indian War days but never used for the purpose for which it was constructed at great cost.

Men Excel Women at Bridge, Says Jacoby, But He Is Disputed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(UP) Oswald Jacoby, noted bridge player, climbed right out on a limb tonight and announced it as his opinion that:

Men are better bridge players than women; sweethearts make the ideal bridge couple; quarreling with your wife at bridge does not make for a happy home.

No sooner had he spoken than he was forced to move over to make room on the same limb for Geoffrey Mott-Smith and William Huske, all participating in the national bridge tournament here.

Then two women—Mrs. William E. McKenney, New York, and Mrs. H. D. Stahl, Pittsburgh—started sawing off the limb. "Bosh and fiddlesticks," they said.

The women were willing to match their feminine intuition against any superior mathematical skill and endurance on the part of the men. Mrs. McKenney said:

"Men like to think they are smarter," she said. "Most of the bad plays a wife makes are due to her husband's nagging. Men are a little steadier players, but that is all."

Married couples who are successful at bridge and happy at home are rare, the bridge experts agreed. However, among the 400 couples in the tournament there are two widely known as "happily married, though bridge partners."

SUBSTITUTE PLAN, TO BE VOLUNTARY, OFFERED BY LEE

King, of Utah, Denounces Bill as 'Monstrous,' an Attempt To Make Secretary Wallace a Dictator Over Nation's Farmers.

VANDENBERG LINKS F. D. R. TO VARGAS

Senator Finds 'Interesting' Connection Between Brazilian and Roosevelt's Credit for New Deal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The senate wound up two weeks of wordy debate on the farm bill today by agreeing to limit future speech-making on the measure.

By motion of Senator Barkley, the majority leader, a unanimous consent agreement was reached to cut debate on amendments to the bill to 15 minutes for each speaker, with 20 minutes allowed on the bill itself.

Senators will be permitted to speak only once on each amendment and only once on the bill.

Plenty of Debate.

Barkley told the senate that the two weeks of debate had given full opportunity for discussion and that it was desirable to avoid any unnecessary further delay.

A substitute farm program proposed by Senator Lee, Democrat, Oklahoma, was exempted from the debate limitation agreement, after Lee had protested he had no opportunity for a full discussion of his measure.

Lee's bill differs from the pending agriculture committee measure in that it would be entirely voluntary.

Exempts Substitutes.

In addition, Barkley agreed to exempt any other substitutes that may be offered. He also said the limitation would not apply to any motion to send the pending farm measure back to the agriculture committee.

The agreement will go into effect Monday afternoon.

Democratic leaders expressed hope the bill would pass the senate next week.

There was sentiment, however, for recommitting the farm bill to the agriculture committee for further study. Senators favoring this move argued that objections to the legislation raised by Secretary Wallace could be more expeditiously met by committee action.

With the house in recess until Monday, the senate heard Senator King, Democrat, Utah, denounce the pending farm bill as a "monstrous measure" which "will make the secretary of agriculture a dictator over the farmer."

"We'll Have a Stalin."

"We will have a Stalin," King shouted. "I have never seen more power concentrated in a government agency. If this keeps on we won't have a republic any longer—we will have a one-man government."

Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, broke in to compare the policies of President Roosevelt

U. S. WINS RETURN OF ELK HILLS OIL

Standard Loses Case on Field That Was in News in Harding Regime.

FRESNO, Cal., Dec. 4.—(UP)—The $22,000,000 "Section 36" of the Elk Hills oil field today was ordered returned by the Standard Oil Company to the United States government in a ruling by Federal Judge Leon Yankwich, who came here from Los Angeles to sit in the case.

The ruling forms another milepost in the historic 20-year litigation over the Elk Hills field, which received national attention during the administration of President Warren G. Harding.

Judge Yankwich's decision also awarded to the government damages of $6,164,112 for oil and gas taken from the land, which the government said was granted to the state for school purposes.

Eugene Prince, representing Standard Oil, announced the company would appeal the decision to the circuit court of appeals and, if necessary, eventually to the supreme court of the United States.

Standard Oil acquired Section 36 in 1909. Ten years later oil was discovered. Under an act of congress all of the 16th and 36th sections in California were granted by the federal government to the state for school purposes.

burden of farmers by advocating legislation to their interest. Citing the national land policy and homestead measure which he sponsored at the last session, now awaiting action by the house after a favorable report by the public lands committee, he said the bill was based on recommendations made by the President himself during the course of the last national campaign.

Repercussions Seen.

Other members of the delegation read the senate resolution with interest, but thus far have refrained from open comment. Indications were, however, that further repercussions may be forthcoming.

Mr. Peterson feels that if his measure were enacted a definite national land policy would be established through which farmers of the nation could become independent and free of burdensome debt. At present the farmer is fighting a hopeless battle, he believes, because he is producing raw products, creating new wealth in abundance only to see it used in appeasing the appetites of a never-satisfied mortgage debt.

In his letter to Secretary Hammond, Representative Peterson said:

"I am in receipt of your letter inclosing copy of resolution adopted by the Georgia state senate in which they 'as the representatives of the people of Georgia implore and urge the senators and congressmen to begin without a further waste of time to prepare and assist in enacting laws' designed, in harmony with the President's program, to relieve the present 'deplorable condition of the Georgia farmers.'

Plan Overlooks.

"It is interesting to have this expression from our state senate at this time. I believe, however, that in this rebuke of members of congress for not 'advancing some plan of their own' the fact has been overlooked that there is now pending before the United States house of representatives a plan which will accomplish the results desired by our Georgia state senate.

"This measure, which I, as a member of congress and without a 'waste of time,' prepared and introduced, has been favorably reported by the public lands committee of the house and is now on the house calendar. It is known as 'H. R. 6748, a bill to establish a national land policy, and to provide homesteads free of debt for actual farm families.'

"The plan of this measure is based on the ideal as expressed by our President and incorporated in the committee report of the bill, in which he states that 'in all our plans we are guided, and will continue to be guided, by the fundamental belief that the American farmer, living on his own land, remains our ideal of self-reliance and of spiritual balance."

Copies Sent to Senators.

"In order that each member of the Georgia state senate may have complete official information regarding this legislation I am sending to each member under registered mail today a copy of the bill, H. R. 6748, a copy of the committee report, copies of speeches I have made in explanation of the measure, and a copy of this letter.

"With these facts having been brought clearly to the attention of the Georgia state senate permit me now through you to assure its members in behalf of thousands of farm families in our great state that we will greatly appreciate their co-operation in this direly needed legislation."

The Georgia senate resolution set forth that instead of advancing some plan of their own for the restoration of benefits to the farmers, some of the representatives in congress, "wasted the major part of the last session fighting the efforts of the President to restore these benefits to the farmers by reforming the supreme court." This had reference to the supreme court holding unconstitutional the AAA act, thereby denying farm benefits to agriculturists.

Commenting on the pending crop control bill, the Georgian said that "while it is hoped it will prove of material benefit to farmers, it is recognized as only a temporary measure and does not provide a permanent farm solution for the state's basic farm problem."

Farmers' Need Cited.

What the farmer needs, he said, is a broad, comprehensive national land policy. "I do not claim that the provisions of my measure are perfect," Peterson declared. "It does, however, propose for our nation a sound national land policy. It provides a method by which the American farmer may be lifted out of his present hopeless economic plight to a position of stability and normal prosperity.

"Two-thirds of the nation's farm families are today bankrupt. They owe more than they are worth or than they will ever pay. Each year they grow poorer and poorer. Those who advocate a system of farm loans as a means of relief are proposing a program which will only add fuel to the flames. The farm mortgage is the chief method by which the farm family has been brought to poverty. It is the vehicle which the farmer has been conveyed from a condition of economic independence to one of serfdom. And it is futile to think that government mortgage loans can or will bring any more happiness or independence to the unfortunate farm family than have mortgage loans by private agencies.

"With this program already on the house calendar, I want the state senate to co-operate with me in getting this program through congress instead of unjustly criticizing the delegation for not seeking to aid the farmer."

A bronze statue of Admiral Peary, in polar costume, was unveiled near his birthplace in Cresson, Pa., this year.

Resignation Not To Save Official Accused by Dewey.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Tammany District Leader Albert Marinelli's resignation under fire as New York county clerk will not save him from further investigation, it became apparent today as the United States attorney's office began where Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey left off.

One of the new charges made by Dewey in his letter to the Governor was that Marinelli harbored Charles Falci while Falci was a fugitive from federal justice. Falci, a Marinelli election inspector, was indicted by the federal grand jury for an election fraud.

ATLANTA RAIL CHIEF TESTIFIES BUSINESS, NOT RATES, IS KEY

J. G. Kerr Speaks Before I. C. C. for Freight Charge Boost.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Joseph G. Kerr, of Atlanta, chairman of the Southern Freight Association, told the Interstate Commerce Commission today that railroad freight traffic "depends not so much upon the level" of freight rates "as upon general business condition."

Kerr appeared before the commission in behalf of the railroads' request for a general 15 per cent increase in freight rates.

He said if the increase were granted it would be made effective on southern lines although some readjustment of the relationship between the rail and water rates probably would be necessary.

The period of cut-throat competition between the trucking industry and railroads, Kerr said, is ending.

"It is true," he declared, "that in the south, as in other parts of the country, many of our rates have been greatly depressed below normal levels because of the necessity of meeting motor and water competition. There is hardly a commodity that has not been in part at least so affected, but on some commodities and for certain hauls the competition has been far greater than on others."

J. B. Hill, president of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, said the carriers' request for the general increase was justified and would be beneficial to the industry.

VOTING MACHINES OKAYED.

MOBILE, Ala., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Circuit Judge Thornton today upheld validity of the use of voting machines in Alabama elections.

Dixie Solons Generally Agree Plan Will Stimulate Housing

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Southern senators and representatives have received the President's housing program with mixed feeling.

Those commenting have generally agreed home building would be stimulated, but have expressed divergent opinions about the program's details and possible broad-scale economic effect.

Some who said the President's proposals would stimulate building beneficially, tempered praise with assertions rural dwellers would be afforded little opportunity to achieve home ownership.

Senators George and Russell, Democrats, Georgia, said there was great need in Georgia for rural housing, and that if a bill carrying out the program did not provide adequately for construction of farm homes they would seek to amend it.

Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, however, said:

"There's not much we can do about rural housing. I am for the program because it will stimulate the building trades. That is something Alabama needs."

Deen: "As Fas As Possible."

Representative Deen, Democrat, Georgia, said the plan "goes as far as the government can toward housing."

Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, said the program was "one of the most far-reaching suggestions for business prosperity yet made," and Senator Andrews, Democrat, Florida, called it a "fine idea." Senators Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, and Bailey, Democart, North Carolina, voiced similar sentiment.

Representative Ford, Democrat, Mississippi, expressed flat hostility to the entire program, while Representative DeRouen, Democrat, Louisiana, said he doubted the economic soundness of its details.

"It just means more government spending," Ford said, "and won't help the country dweller a bit."

DeRouen said he feared the program might have an undesirable inflationary effect through "the government issuing too many debentures."

Representative Chandler, Democrat, Tennessee, said the program would probably help the housing situation in Memphis, Tenn.

"Labor Costs Too High."

Representative Fuller, Democrat, Arkansas, said he approved the plan not only because it would encourage building but also "because it at least had made the President acknowledge that building labor costs are too high."

Representative Maloney, Democrat, Louisiana, said he did not see how the poorer classes, urban or rural, would be materially helped to own homes.

"When a man can buy a $6,000 home, he is out of the so-called poorer class," he said. "What the poor man needs to encourage him to buy a home is employment security."

LANDON ASSAILS POLICIES OF F.D.R.

Blames 'Economic Uncertainties' on Changes.

TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 4.—(UP) Alf M. Landon tonight blamed the country's "economic uncertainties" on the frequent "changes of front" of the Roosevelt administration. His criticisms were made in a speech at the annual banquet of the Young Republican Clubs of Kansas.

"Everyone is dizzy," Landon said, "not only with the political confusion, but with the economic confusion as well. For five years the President has insisted that we must do this and that, shifting from one plan to another so often that no one knows what to expect."

SENATE RESTRICTS FARM BILL DEBATE

with those of President Vargas, of Brazil.

Quoting newspaper reports telling of the dissolution of Brazilian political parties and the burning of Brazilian state flags, Vandenberg said:

"That is very interesting in the light of the fact that when the distinguished President of the United States visited Rio de Janeiro on his good neighbor journey last year, according to the New York Times, he said that two people invented the New Deal—the President of Brazil and the President of the United States."

Business Recession.

In senate conversations about the business situation, attention centered on a luncheon meeting of 10 senators yesterday with Lewis Douglas, a former director of the budget.

Senator Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana, one of those who talked with Douglas, said there was no discussion of politics and that conversation centered largely on the business recession and what should be done to check it.

Douglas told the group, Van Nuys said, that repeal or modification of the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes would "help" business but "wouldn't be enough."

Quit in Disagreement.

The meeting attracted especial interest because the senators who conferred with him frequently have opposed administration measures. Douglas quit as federal budget director in 1934 because he disagreed with government spending policies.

The Douglas conference failed to develop any hope by sponsors of tax revision that action would be taken at this session.

In the house, Chairman Steagall, Democrat, Alabama, of the banking committee, predicted the new housing bill, designed to facilitate a $16,000,000,000 private building program for the next five years, would be passed at the current special session. He said he intended to expedite hearings.

Oppose Discretion.

The house agricultural committee agreed to support an amendment to the farm bill which would deprive the secretary of agriculture of discretionary power to apportion the $500,000,000 annual soil conservation benefit payments among commodities.

The amendment would require the secretary to consider the acreage devoted to each commodity in the preceding 10 years, parity value of the crop, the acreage removed from production and the farmers' resultant financial loss.

Representative Lucas, Democrat, Illinois, author of the amendment, said the benefit payments would be distributed in approximately these percentages: cotton 22.7; corn 20.6; wheat 13.5; tobacco 1; potatoes 1.2; pasture 11; peanuts .2 rice .2 and sugar .3.

will call upon members of the Fulton and DeKalb members of the general assembly to so amend any new housing authority legislation "whereby the city of Atlanta shall be allowed to collect ad valorem and all other taxes and assessments of every kind and character, in the same manner, and under the same assessments and conditions as all other classes of properties."

The 5 per cent gross receipt arrangement was agreed to by federal officials in lieu of property taxes against the two Atlanta projects. Under federal ownership, the city cannot assess or collect ad valorem taxes against the properties nor can it collect personal property taxes from those living within the area.

Threaten Service Withdrawal.

City services, including sewage disposal, water, sanitation, schools, etc., have been available. Failure of the government to "abide by its agreement may precipitate a withdrawal of city services," White said yesterday.

Among other matters to face the council will be the following:

1. Finance and parks committee recommendation that $37,185 be made available immediately for dramatization of the cyclorama of the Battle of Atlanta at Grant park.

2. Provision of a $25,000 fund as the city's half for the immediate purchase of the John A. White nine-hole golf course in West End.

3. Demand by Councilman J. Allen Couch that the Fulton Board of Public Delfare "feed hungry Atlantans and investigate whether they are entitled to relief later."

4. Request for bids for remodeling Taft hall and the front of the municipal auditorium so that this work can be prosecuted simultaneously with the repair program which WPA will begin tomorrow and is expected to complete by April 1.

5. Provision of $750 to employ Robert G. Lose, engineer, as technical liaison officer between a board of engineers, architects and WPA in the auditorium repair program.

The budget commission will be called into session before council meets tomorrow afternoon to approve the cyclorama appropriation, Mayor Hartsfield indicated yesterday, but it was believed he will advise against the $25,000 allocation for the White park.

WAR PROFIT ATTACKED.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 4.—(UP)—Enactment of a universal service act by congress as a means of "taking the profit out of war" was urged by National American Legion Commander Daniel J. Doherty tonight in a talk at the 14th annual banquet of the Franklin County Legion Council.

SNAG IS REPORTED IN ALLIANCE TALK OF FRANCE, POLAND

Delbos Is Said To Have Demanded Warsaw Settle Troubles With Prague.

WARSAW, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A sudden snag in the Franco-Polish talks on a new collective security arrangement for Europe was reported authoritatively today to have been hit even before the conversations began.

While French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos was entertained cordially by Polish statesmen, the French embassy staff worked behind the scenes with Polish officials to iron out the difference of opinion over the complex relations of Poland, Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Delbos' talk with Marshal Rydz-Smigly, inspector of the Polish army, however, was considered a hopeful sign the difficulty would be eliminated.

The authoritative reports from both French and Polish sources agreed France had insisted Poland's relations with Czechoslovakia be included in the discussion of ways toward general European peace. Poland replied she was accustomed to smoothing her difficulties with her neighbors alone.

U. S. MILITARY PLANES HELD MOST EFFICIENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(UP) The United States army has the most efficient military airplanes in the world, Assistant Secretary of War Johnson declared in his annual report tonight.

The high efficiency of the American military airplane, he indicated, was largely due to the new aircraft purchasing policy inaugurated by Johnson's predecessor, Harry H. Woodring, now secretary of war. This policy hinged on competitive bidding and design competition among airplane manufacturers.

SEA FUGITIVES HELD.

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Five fugitives from the French penal colony at Cayenne today were washed up in their waterlogged canoe on the beach of Leguan island. They were held for deportation.

AMSTERDAM, Dec. 4.—(AP) St. Nicholas will visit good little children of The Netherlands tomorrow night, St. Nicholas' Eve.

With his negro servant, Black Pete, the saint appears astride his white horse the night of every December 5.

The door bell rings, and there is St. Nicholas and Black Pete. The marvelously well-informed saint questions each child on his behavior. Presents are given the whole family.

This "early Christmas" goes back to December 6, the year 345, when the Archbishop of Myra (St. Nicholas) died. The prelate's surreptitious bestowal of cowries on three daughters of an impoverished citizen supposedly started the custom of presents on St. Nicholas' Eve—a custom later transferred to Christmas Day in many countries.

DOUBLE-TAX BILL FACES LEGISLATURE

sharply and revenues will fall off instead of gain."

Atkinson, of Savannah, floor leader of the senate, is expected to lead the fight for adoption of the tax. He is vice chairman of the senate temperance committee.

In the house there has not developed any definite opposition to the Governor's treasury stabilization plan.

Urging adoption of the plan, Governor Rivers, in his message opening the special session, said it probably would be used chiefly to help finance the building program at the Milledgeville state hospital and the Alto tuberculosis sanitarium.

The chain store tax, levied during the regular session, is allocated to the eleemosynary building fund but the tax has not yielded up to expectations and funds are needed immediately for the buildings.

Beer Tax Plan Next.

The senate calendar is clear except for the beer tax plan, which is set for a special order of business tomorrow. In addition to the stabilization plan, the house has several important measures pending, chief among them being the bill already passed by the senate which carries out the provisions of the $300 personal property exemption amendment approved by the voters in June.

In addition, the house has a number of important tax measures before the ways and means committee and also the Atkinson senate bill providing for the $2,000 homestead exemption plan. This is before the house committee on the state of the republic but is expected to be ready for action on the floor not later than Wednesday.

The week also is expected to be marked by the Rivers-sponsored bill, classifying intangibles for taxation, move out of the house committee on ways and means on to the floor. The bill is now with a special subcommittee of the ways and means group for minor changes. There is little opposition to the main provisions of the bill, and it is expected to reach the floor by the time the house leadership is ready to bring it up.

Prison Reform.

Prominent among the new matters to be presented during the week are the Rivers bills, providing for prison reform. These measures are to be launched in the senate by Senator Lindsay and Senator Purdom, of Blackshear.

The only major new bill known to be ready for the house is the Key gross income tax bill. Key has the bill drawn, but he has not said whether he will introduce it.

BEER AND WINE MEN EXPECT RIVERS AID

Prediction that Governor Rivers will heed the "plea" of beer and wine dealers not to double the beer tax, was made yesterday by Paul Wilson, president of the Retail Beer and Wine Dealers of Georgia.

Wilson said he "could not help but feel" the Governor will "harken" to the fact that beer retailers and wholesalers are already operating a heavily taxed business. Saying the increased tax will drive many dealers out of business and throw many out of work. Wilson said he "hoped the Governor will wake up to the human side" of the beer business.

bership of congress and only seven governors among the 48 states.

Last week an Institute survey showed that if the congressional election were today, the G. O. P. would gain 46 seats in the house—an increase which would still leave the party trailing far behind the Democrats in congress.

Six Questions Asked.

The Institute's "fireside convention" took up six topics in the form of six questions. These covered leadership, issues, party policy and candidates for 1940. The voting on candidates, in which Senator Vandenberg led with Mayor LaGuardia, of New York, a strong runner-up, is reported elsewhere today.

The voting on party leadership was decisive. By more than 6 to 4 (61 per cent to 39 percent) the Republicans polled declared themselves not satisfied with the present leadership. New leaders are considered essential by 61 per cent of the voters, as against 39 per cent who think a new program is more important.

Each Republican was asked:

If you were running the Republican party, on what main issue would you appeal for votes?

Perhaps the most interesting thing about the replies to this question is that the constitution and the supreme court appear far down in the list of issues. A number of Republican leaders have been saying that Roosevelt's attempt to alter the supreme court should be made a primary issue by the Republicans in next year's congressional election.

Issues Thought Paramount.

But the survey indicates that Republicans are less excited by that issue than by such subjects as economy in government spending, tax reduction, and fostering of business prosperity. These are the leading three issues mentioned, whereas protection of the constitution and the courts run fifth in the list.

The rank and file has been quick to see that the current slump in business has provided the Republicans with a ready-made political issue. Probably this is Roosevelt's most vulnerable spot. Only a few weeks ago the Institute reported that a majority of all voters (62 per cent) say they are not better off today than a year ago.

Another interesting aspect of today's survey is the relatively high vote in favor of pro-labor policy. Many Republican leaders are critical of the New Deal's friendliness toward labor as exemplified in the Wagner act and the proposed wage-hour legislation. Yet, many Republican voters say the party should develop a program favorable to labor as one of the first seven issues on which to appeal for votes.

Heated Vaccine Held Effective In Tuberculosis

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The Cornell Medical Center here today struck at tuberculosis with news of a new, safe vaccine, made of steam-cooked tuberculosis germs and heated horse serum.

This vaccine, it was announced, has been tried with favorable evidence on humans, after two years' experiments on brown Havana rabbits, in which it demonstrated definite protective powers.

Reported in Journal.

The work was reported in the Journal of Experimental Medicine, Rockefeller Institute Publication, by Eugene L. Opie, M. D., and Jules Freund, M. D., of Cornell University Medical College and New York University.

Although the human values have yet to be learned, the new vaccine drew medical interest immediately, because it breaks a barrier that for years has held back a world-wide scientific hunt for a tuberculosis preventive.

This barrier was the belief, backed by many experiments, that an effective vaccine could not be made with dead tuberculosis bacteria. The living germs were considered extremely dangerous for vaccine. The Cornell workers broke the "dead" germ line with two new moves.

Kill Germs With Heat.

First they killed their germs with heat—212-degree steam for an hour. Heat killing, they found, left the germs' bodies somewhat more effective as a vaccine than previously tried dead bacteria.

Second, they found that adding horse serum raised the vaccine's potency into the useful range. Horse serum is the watery fluid extracted from horse blood.

YUGOSLAVIA PREMIER TO VISIT ROME TODAY

ROME, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Yugoslav political exiles in Italy were put under surveillance today in preparation for the arrival tomorrow of Dr. Milan Stoyadinovitch, the first Yugoslav premier to visit Italy since 1924.

Among them were Ante Pavelich, reputed head of the Ustachi gang which was blamed for the assassination of King Alexander in 1934.

AUDITORIUM REPAIR WORK IS ORDERED

afest structures in the entire country."

Await Educational Meet.

"Mr. Lose will co-operate and work with Dillon & Lewis, archi- ects, the engineering board and he federal government and will o much to keep the work moving s rapidly as safe construction will permit," the mayor said. "We hould by all means designate him at once because expedition of the repair program means so much to Atlanta at the present time. About 10,000 members of the Georgia Education Associa- ion have scheduled their annual convention for the auditorium be- ginning April 14 and the build- ng should be completed by that time."

The following major repair pro- gram is to be done by WPA with he city expending only the $750 dditional for Lose's services:

1. Repair of that portion of the roof which fell August 22, just six days before the scheduled opening of the building.

2. Strengthening of the pro- scenium girder to insure that the curtains, props and other loads will be properly supported.

3. Added supports for the organ loft as recommended by the board of engineers.

4. Strengthening of gallery sup- ports throughout the interior.

5. Bolting of each separate roofing tile in the building as an added precaution of safety.

Engineers Approve.

The above schedule of safety measures was adopted following several conferences between ar- chitects, engineers and C. L. Post, of the public buildings depart- ment of the United States Treas- ury Department, who was sent here from Washington to work out a safety repair program with local authorities.

"We owe a debt of gratitude to the Treasury Department for lend- ing us Mr. Post," Mayor Harts- field said. "His recommendations along with those of local architects and engineers should be the final word in safety. No public build- ing in the entire country will have had better supervision than the auditorium when it is finally opened to the public. It will be the safest building in America, and Atlantans and visitors can walk into it with more confidence in its structural integrity than any other building I know about.

"Mr. Post is an expert on safety. He is a member of the building department of the United States treasury, and that department is recognized throughout the world as the final word in structural ef- ficiency.

"Mr. Roosevelt himself has ap- proved the repair work at the au- ditorium, and Mr. Robert L. Mac- Dougall, Georgia WPA projects director, has assured me that ev- ery bit of construction in the build- ing will be performed in accord- ance with stipulations laid down in the local conferences.

"WPA officials foresee comple- tion of the work by April 1. The only hitch which might develop would be delays in obtaining structural steel necessary to ef- fect the improvements."

City Can Have Opera.

Announcing that the "time is now ripe" for bringing grand opera back to Atlanta, Smith said yesterday that "Atlanta can have the opera if she wants its."

"I have had a number of con- ferences in New York with the Metropolitan management recent- ly," he said. "They are entirely willing and desire to give Atlanta a week of opera beginning April 18. That date has consequently been reserved by the mayor and Mr. White, chairman of the audi- torium committee."

Upon a motion introduced May 3 by Councilman White, a reso- lution was adopted calling for ap- pointment of a committee of prominent citizens to work out plans to bring opera back to At- lanta.

Mayor Hartsfield subsequently appointed a group of about 60 prominent citizens on the commit- tee which met May 18, elected Jesse Draper, Atlanta real estate man, chairman, and Smith, sec- retary.

"We have mutually agreed that the operas will not be selected un- til some time in January or Feb- ruary, thus giving Atlanta and the Metropolitan opportunity to act after the testing out period be- ginning with the opening of the season, November 29," Smith said.

Waits on Auditorium.

"This is particularly appropriate also for Atlanta, because no con- tract has yet been signed and At- lanta will not wish to sign unless and until it is certain the audito- rium will be in shape for a week of opera."

So far, only a "gentleman's agreement" exists between Atlanta and the Metropolitan, Smith said, adding "it's up to the citizens of Atlanta whether we have opera or not." Without the guarantee, Met- ropolitan artists will remain in New York.

"Almost a new generation has grown up in Atlanta and the south since the Metropolitan was here last, and people in Georgia and neighboring states are asking daily when are we going to bring the opera back to Atlanta," Smith said. "The time is ripe now, and I don't believe we would have any trouble filling the auditorium."

BORAH ANSWERED BY HOOVER AIDE

Hyde Takes Issue Over Origin of "Scarcity Policy."

TRENTON, Mo., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agri- culture in the Hoover administra- tion, today denied Senator Borah's assertion that the policy of scar- city as a cure for economic ills was originated by former President Hoover.

"What the Hoover administra- tion advocated was production vol- untarily balanced to the effective demand—and demand included ex- port demand plus a reasonable carryover," he said.

Senator Borah, he added, "may have forgotten that during the Hoover administration 85,000,000 bushels of wheat and 250,000,000 pounds of cotton were distributed to people on relief. That was equal to flour and clothing for one year for 20,000,000 people."

3 OFFICIALS HELD IN BUFFALO GRAFT

Investigation Centers Around 32-Story City Hall.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Three members of the council stood indicted tonight by the Erie county grand jury on charges involving the city payroll or traveling expense accounts.

A councilman-elect also was indicted on a payroll charge, as was an official formerly hired by the city to supervise Works Progress Administration jobs.

Latest of the grand jury's charges made public today is that James Maloni, a private citizen, also took a hand in payroll deception by "falsely testifying" that he was the mysterious "James Malone" listed on the city payrolls as a WPA supervisor.

Center of the investigation is Buffalo City's tower, a 32-story gilt-ornamented skyscraper. The lofty windows of the council chamber look out over Lake Erie steamer lanes, steel mills and grain elevators, and a web of railroads.

'Optimism at Work' Will Be Told At Optimist Club Meet Tuesday

Atlanta Club Joins in Observance of Week by Groups in U. S.

By LUKE GREENE.

An appeal for a spirit of optimism and confidence in meeting the problems now facing the world will be launched tomorrow as the Atlanta Optimist Club joins other clubs throughout the United States in observance of "Optimist Week."

One of the highlights of the week's program will be a luncheon Tuesday at 12 o'clock at the Capital City Club. J. W. Humphreys, a member of the board of governors of the Atlanta organization, will be principal speaker. His subject will be "Optimism at Work."

A recorded message to the club from William J. Tamblyn, of Toronto, president of Optimist International, will also be included on Tuesdays' luncheon program. I. Gloer Hailey, mayor pro tem and vice president of the club, is scheduled for a radio address at

J. W. HUMPHREYS.

9:30 o'clock Tuesday night over WGST.

Daily radio programs devoted to the Optimist Club will be broadcast by Miss Elizabeth Dene from 8:45 to 9 o'clock over the same station.

Philosophy of Optimism.

"The purpose of this week's observance is to spread the cheerful philosophy of optimism—to urge all men, whether members of Optimist clubs or not, to adopt the Optimist's idea of meeting discouragement with a smile, and of showing an interest in his fellow man," Frank Garrison, president of the Atlanta club, said.

One of the major objectives of Optimist International is the helping of underprivileged youths. Its motto is "Friend of the Boy."

The following resolution was adopted at the international convention of Optimist Clubs held in Cincinnati last June:

"Resolved, that we look forward hopefully and optimistically to the day when differences between nations, classes and individuals may be adjusted in the spirit of the Optimist creed; when all selfish interests may be subordinated; when all individuals, all classes and all nations may work together for the common good, thinking only of the best and striving only for that which is best for all.

Consider Peace, Prosperity.

"In a sincere effort toward fulfillment of our objectives in Optimist International, we urge all public servants, all leaders of industry, all leaders of men, consider first the peace and prosperity of all in the administration of law and in the development of business and social relations between individuals, classes and nations.

"We have every faith that such practical application of the spirit of optimism will speed us on the way toward that peace, prosperity and happiness for which we strive."

Other officers of the club are William P. DeKlyne Jr., Roy LeCraw and Otis E. Pruitt, vice presidents; A. H. Benton, secretary; Wellington W. Ford, treasurer; W. H. "Tubby" Walton, sergeant-at-arms, and Brigadier W. H. Range, chaplain.

BRITAIN TO GIVE 'FIGHTERS' A VOICE

War Minister Hore-Belisha Explains Reorganization Favors Younger Men.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha tonight told British soldiers his shakeup of the army council would give "our best fighting men" a real voice in the higher military policy.

The minister, who reorganized the army council with younger men and made General Viscount Cort chief of the imperial staff, explained the motives and goals of his recent drastic reorganization. He spoke at the presentation of prizes to the Manchester regiment's ninth battalion at Ashton-Under-Lyne.

He paid tribute to the "graceful sacrifice" of older generals who retired "to facilitate the promotion of younger men."

Meanwhile other competent sources explained that general officers holding the principal home commands now will act as ex-officio members of the council, the scope of which eventually may be widened to compare with the French war council.

These men will be summoned to discuss with the council matters of peace-time training and war-time field operations. Now the council handles purely administrative subjects.

STOCK TRADING

Reserve To Liberalize Requirements for Brokers.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The board of governors of the Federal Reserve System announced plans today to smooth out and liberalize trading requirements for stock brokers and their customers.

Effective January 1, 1938, the regulation which relates to the extension and maintenance of credit by brokers and traders, will be revised.

The changes will clarify and simplify the regulation, the board announced.

"The revised regulation makes no change in the level of margin requirements and contains no provision requiring liquidation of outstanding commitments or reduction of outstanding loans," the board's statement said. Experts said revisions should not affect stock market.

OLC FORECLOSURES RE NOW AT PEAK, FFICIALS ASSERT

0 Homes in Fulton and DeKalb Counties Taken Over by U. S.

oreclosures by the Home Own- Loan Corporation have reach- a peak in Fulton and DeKalb nties, Frank A. Holden, state LC manager, said yesterday as announced that 220 homes have n taken over by the govern- nt out of 6,000 loans made in se two counties.

Approximately 800 foreclosures ve been made in Georgia out 15,000 homes put up for se- ity on loans from the Home ners' Loan Corporation, with total not expected to exceed 00, Holden revealed.

Financially Weak.

"Of course, we made some loans people who were weak finan- lly, and naturally they would the first loans that would have be foreclosed," Holden said. herefore, we conclude that 'he ak has been reached and we ex- ct the number to fall off rap- y in the future."

The 15,000 homes in Georgia se- re loans totaling 33 million dol- rs, Holden said. The loan on ch home averages $2,200.

Foreclosures in other states of e southeastern district—which cludes Alabama, Georgia, North rolina, South Carolina and Flor- a—are about the same per cent those in Georgia, H. E. Cox, gional manager, said. Loans in e southeastern district totaled 0 million dollars.

Last Resort.

Holden explained that foreclo- re comes as "absolutely the last sort," with the owners being ven every opportunity to pay. he Georgia office at present is reclosing on 40 to 50 homes per onth, he declared.

When the homes are taken over the HOLC they are placed in pair and put up for sale on a ng-term basis. Approximately 0 of the 800 homes have been sold.

During the first 10 months of 37 foreclosures in the nation ag- regated 130,887 or 16.3 per cent nder the 156,364 in the same pe- od of 1936, according to figures leased from Washington by the ederal Home Loan Bank Board.

The HOLC began operations in une, 1933, and stopped making ans in June, 1936. The percent- ge of foreclosures is smaller in his region than was contemplat- d when the program was begun, fficials said.

Approximately 2,200 members n the state are preparing to aid n the distribution of toys, clothes nd food to underprivileged chil- ren as the climax of a 12-month national campaign. Dean Owens, overnor, of Rome, will direct the Christmas activities in Georgia.

Kiwanians in the United States nd Canada have been aiding in supplying the needs of under- privileged children for the last 11 months, Owens said.

BELGIAN KING, MOTHER GO BACK TO ENGLAND

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—King Leopold, of the Belgians, arrived today for his second visit to Eng- land in two weeks. He traveled incognito and was accompanied by his mother, Dowager Queen Eliza- beth.

Only a station master greeted him at Victoria Station, where two weeks ago he was welcomed by King George VI and Prime Min- ister Neville Chamberlain. The king's secretary said the royal party had accepted an invitation from the wealthy Duke of Port- land to spend the week end at his Welbeck Abbey estate.

NORMALCY REIGNS AMONG JAPANESE, ENVOY HERE STATES

Cuban Ambassador Comments During Stop at Airport.

Life in Japan today is perfectly normal with the Sino-Japanese war causing no excitement among the public, Florencia Guerra, in charge of Cuban affairs in Japan, said here this morning.

The Cuban ambassador, his wife and daughter are en route to Havana from Tokyo. They sailed from Japan November 17, landing in San Francisco yesterday.

Pausing briefly at Candler field this morning to change planes, Guerra telephoned government officials in Cuba and then talked with newspapermen.

Skirts Questions.

Guerra carefully avoided answering questions dealing with official movements in Japan and would express no opinion about the war.

"You must remember I am in the diplomatic service and cannot make such statements until I have reported to my government," he said.

The Cuban said Japanese winter resorts were open and running as usual.

"From the life of the people, you would never guess their country was at war," he said. "You don't notice a thing different. It is all the same as before the war started."

Praises Japanese.

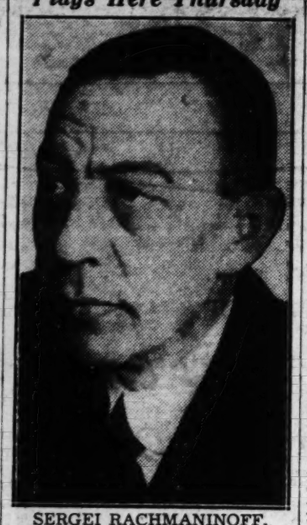

He had praise for the Japanese people.

"The Japanese are very good people, industrious. They do everything they can to make a foreigner feel at home. I hope to finish my business at home within two months and return to Japan. I want to go back."

MORGAN WILL SPEAK.

CEDARTOWN, Dec. 4.—Charles C. Morgan, district supervisor of the state wildlife division, will address the Polk County Fish and Game Club here Monday night.

PRISON BREAK

7 Men Flee From Illinois Farm Dormitory.

PONTIAC, Ill., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Seven convicts escaped from a farm dormitory of the Pontiac branch of the Illinois State penitentiary about 6 o'clock tonight, and stole an automobile.

More than 30 prison guards, state police and other officers joined a search. Reports said the men apparently were armed.

COLLEGE NEWSPAPER CENSORSHIP FOUGHT

MOREHEAD, Ky., Dec. 4.—(AP) Opposition to any attempted censorship of collegiate newspapers was voted today by the Kentucky Intercollegiate Press Association.

The action came at the close of the organization's two-day conference here and followed an address by Dr. J. B. Shannon, of the graduate school of the University of Kentucky, denouncing censorship of college publications.

Named as the best all-round college paper by the college newspaper editors was the University of Kentucky Kernel.

RACHMANINOFF WILL PLAY HERE

All Seats Are Sold for Master Pianist's Recital Next Thursday.

Sergei Rachmaninoff, master pianist and among the foremost of contemporary composers, will be heard in recital at the Fox theater next Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock.

Already every seat in the house, including 110 special chairs placed in the orchestra pit, have been sold and only seats on the stage are available for this event.

The interesting program announced for this recital includes, "Weeping Plaints, Sorrows, Fears" (Prelude after J. Bach), Liszt; Italian Concerto, J. Bach; a Chopin group; "Suite Bergamasque," Debussy; "Prelude," Rachmaninoff, and "Voices of the Woods" and "Dance of the Gnomes," Liszt.

Mr. Rachmaninoff will arrive in Atlanta early Thursday morning, accompanied by the wife and manager.

This is the first time in four years Rachmaninoff has been heard in Atlanta. The concert is one of the feature events of the All Star Concert Series, Marvin McDonald, manager, which is sponsored by the Atlanta Music Club and the Atlanta Philharmonic Society.

3 Fire Stations Answer Call at Driving Club

Firemen, remembering two previous disastrous fires at the Piedmont Driving Club, sent reinforced equipment to answer a telephoned alarm from the club yesterday afternoon.

Firemen and engines from three stations, including the new pumper from the Carnegie Way station, sped to answer the call.

The fire was a slight blaze in a shed back of the tennis courts. Club officials said the damage was "very slight."

Companies answering the call were 19, 15 and 11.

She Asks Nine Judges to Rule in Her Favor

Dorothy Leoles and her father, George Leoles, were back in the news again yesterday as the 12-year-old girl, expelled a year ago from the Crew Street school for failure to salute the United States flag, carried her fight to the United States supreme court in Washington. She is shown above with her father at the time of her suspension from the sixth grade, October 16, 1936.

Atlanta Flag Salute Case Appeal Goes Before U. S. Supreme Court

Dorothy Leoles, Member of "Jehovah Witnesses," Asks Final Decision as to Whether Board of Education Had Right To Bar Her From School.

The case of 12-year-old Dorothy Leoles, barred from classes in the Crew Street school because she refused to conform with the Atlanta Board of Education's rules required all students to salute the American flag, went before the United States supreme court in Washington yesterday contesting constitutionality of the board's regulation.

Dorothy's attorneys asked the supreme court to review a decision by the Georgia supreme court sustaining the school board's expulsion of her from the sixth grade of Crew Street school for refusing to salute the flag.

Basis for Petition.

The petition of her father, George Leoles, who operated a hat cleaning and shoe repairing shop on Marietta street until pickets billing his shop as "un-American" discouraged him from trying to carry on, stated that Dorothy believed saluting any flag was "an act of idolatry, contrary to the expressed word and teachings of God," press dispatches from Washington said.

The girl was suspended from her class October 14, 1936. She told school authorities her religious beliefs forbade her from worshiping other than "Almighty God" and that she was following her father's orders.

Upon her suspension, her father sought an injunction in Fulton superior court against the school ruling. Denied the injunction, he took the appeal to the state supreme court which ruled saluting the United States flag "can by no stretch of the imagination be regarded as a religious rite" and affirmed the board of education's right to expel Dorothy for refusing to carry out the salute.

A "Jehovah Witness."

Dorothy's petition before the United States supreme court yesterday pointed out "she is a member of an organization called 'Jehovah's Witnesses,' which believes that to salute any flag is an act of obeisance or worship of other than Jehovah God and therefore a sin forbidden by God's word and teaching."

On the other hand, board of education attorneys in Washington asked the high court to dismiss the petition "for want of jurisdiction." The supreme court definitely recognizes "right and power of states to control their public schools," they contended.

Terming the salute "an act of respect nigh unto reverence," Dorothy's petition charged "the salute may be fraught with religious significance in the mind of the individual."

Points of Petition.

"As a form, the salute has no meaning either to those who perform or to the state which prescribes it," the petition further charged.

"To coerce an individual in appellant's situation to go through what to her is an empty form is to inculcate hypocrisy, not patriotism in the individual so coerced.

"And indeed this is the real threat to public morality and even to public safety, that the application of such a rule to appellant and to those in her position must needs result in a hypocritical compliance or with none at all.

"As instruction in patriotism, the requirement is valueless; as instruction in false swearing, it is dangerous."

ATLANTA TO BE HOST TO SOFT DRINK MEN

Two-Day Convention Session Will Open Tomorrow at Hotel Ansley.

Bottlers of carbonated beverages from throughout the state meet in their 20th annual convention tomorrow and Tuesday at the Ansley hotel. Approximately 150 Georgia bottlers are expected to be in Atlanta, Fred L. Cannon, president of the Georgia Bottlers' Association, said.

The Georgia bottlers are affiliated with American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages and confine their activities to bottling soft drinks.

Mayor Hartsfield will welcome the bottlers to Atlanta at a "fellowship luncheon" tomorrow afternoon. George S. Cobb Jr., former state president of the association, will give the response.

The convention will be devoted to a series of business meetings, speeches and entertainment programs. Georgia bottlers tomorrow will hear James Oliver, secretary of the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages.

D. B. Stone, of a Baltimore crown cork and seal company, will explain "The Evolution of Machinery in Bottling Plants," and Martin Schmidt, of Louisville, Ky., will speak on "The Kentucky Tax Situation."

A banquet and dance is on the evening program while Tuesday's session will be devoted to winding up the association's business. Robert W. Crenshaw, Atlanta attorney, will speak on "Bussiness at Bay." Harrison Jones, of Atlanta, and representatives of machinery manufacturers and supply houses will also speak. Faber A. Bollinger, Atlanta's "ambassador of good will," will be master of ceremonies at the banquet Monday night.

MAN IS SHOT DEAD BY DEKALB OFFICER

Police Quote Negro, 'I Wanted To Get Six.'

A man quoted as saying he had "six shells in his gun and was going to get six folks" was shot dead last night by DeKalb County Policeman A. B. Curtis at his home on the Winter Chapel road one and one-half miles west of Doraville.

He was John Peeples, 44, negro. Policeman Curtis, with Policeman J. C. Holbrook, went to the man's home after neighbors reported his threats. Curtis went to the front door, Holbrook to the rear of the house. Curtis' demand to open the door in the name of the law was met with the rejoinder, "I don't give a — who it is." A child opened the door, however, and the negro stepped to the porch with a shotgun in his hand, and a "mean expression" on his face.

Curtis fired.

TWO BOYS SEIZED AFTER $1,176 THEFT

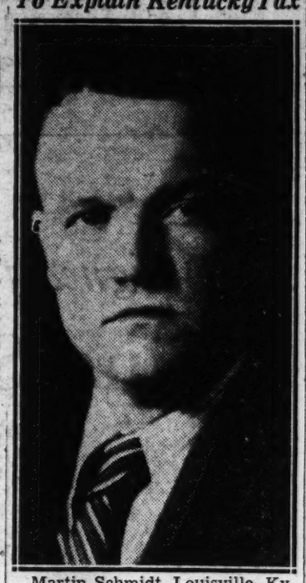

Held in Case of Robbery of Dairy Office.

Two 16-year-old negro boys were arrested last night in connection with the snatching of a cash box containing $1,093 in checks and $83 cash belonging to the Aristocrat Dairies, 165 Haines street, Detectives J. E. Mitchell and P. E. Jones said.

The boys, arrested on suspicion of robbery, were listed as Herbert Davis and Charlie Harbin, both of 618 Greens Ferry, S. W.

Detectives said Davis admitted snatching the cash box as employes were taking it from an upstairs office across the street to put it in a safe at another office. Davis took detectives to 122 Chappell street, S. W., and showed them where the box was hidden, detective Jonees said. The loot was recovered.

To Explain Kentucky Tax

Martin Schmidt, Louisville, Ky., will speak to members of the Georgia Bottlers' Association tomorrow on "The Kentucky Tax Situation."

CROMWELL WARNS THAT HE WILL TALK

Husband of Tobacco Heiress Would Be Senator.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 4.—(AP)—James R. H. Cromwell, wealthy husband of Doris Duke, tobacco heiress, told a neighborhood Democratic club rally tonight that he has been described by friends as a "lousy politician because I talk too much."

The economist, once mentioned as a possible appointee to succeed United States Senator A. Harry Moore, said to members of the Hillsborough Young Democratic Club:

"Whether I go into politics or not, I want to meet and know my neighbors. If Governor Moore (Moore becomes Governor next month) sees fit to appoint me to succeed him, I promise you that the people of America will know that New Jersey has a senator."

MAN, 77 PINTS TAKEN IN OVER-COUNTER SALE

Allegedly selling whiskey over the prescription counter in a building formerly used as a drug store, a man listed as J. B. Thomas, 27, of 427 Highland avenue, was arrested on whiskey charges night, Detectives J. A. Bailey R. R. Davis said.

The detectives reported raided the building at 837 street after watching several sons come out with whiskey drive away in autos. They they confiscated 77 pints of liq

W. S. PHARR DIES; PIONEER IN REALTY OF BUCKHEAD AREA

Civic Leader Was in Tobacco Business Until About 20 Years Ago.

Walter S. Pharr, one of the original property owners in the Buckhead territory and proponent of numerous civic improvements, died last night at Emory University hospital of pneumonia.

Admitted to the hospital last Wednesday, when pneumonia developed after about two weeks' illness at his residence, 304 Spring street, Colonel Pharr had remained in a critical condition. He began sinking yesterday morning and died at 7:15 o'clock last night.

A Fulton county school teacher in his youth, Mr. Pharr entered the tobacco business here after several years of teaching. His school was on the now vacant lot at the corner of Peachtree and Lenox roads.

Since retiring from the tobacco business about 20 years ago, he acquired more property in Buckhead and became interested in improvements of the section. Pharr road is named for him. It was Pharr who stressed the need for grading and paving the strip, and he also played a large part in the building of Lenox road. Mr. Pharr was largely responsible for keeping the Buckhead territory from being incorporated.

Citizens of the Buckhead section gave a gold watch to him when Pharr road was completed, as a token of their appreciation. The watch remained among his most cherished possessions.

His father, Samuel Pharr, was one of the pioneer settlers in this section of Georgia, and the present Haynes Manor property was once his plantation. Colonel Pharr disposed of this property a number of years ago.

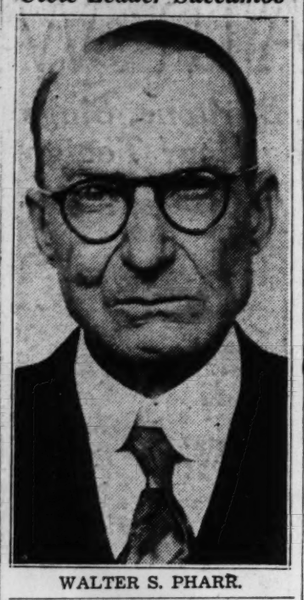

During the administration of former Governor Hugh M. Dorsey, Mr. Pharr was lieutenant colonel on the Governor's staff.

Colonel Pharr never married.

Dr. Henry W. Pharr, retired Atlanta physician, and Alexander J. Pharr, comptroller of the N., C. & St. L. railroad in Louisville, Ky., are the surviving brothers. A sister, Mrs. Sarah Napier, of Harrisburg, Ga., also survives.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

JURY CALL REFUSAL DEFENDED BY JUDGE

Members Inelligible To Probe County Affairs, He Declares.

JACKSON, Tenn., Dec. 4.—(AP) Circuit Judge Frank L. Johnson, under fire for his refusal to recall a September Madison county grand jury reportedly investigating several county offices, said in a statement tonight he could not reconvene the jury because its term of office expired October 16.

The controversy between the jurist and a self-styled Law and Order League originated when Johnson recused himself after summoning the jury. Later, Judge W. W. Bond, of Brownsville, discharged the jury "subject to the call of the regular judge."

In tonight's statement Judge Johnson said he recused himself when he learned certain officials were being investigated by the grand jury "to enable a judge to be designated who would be free from the slightest suspicion of having any interest in the matter."

"Since a term of court," the jurist's statement adds, "expires when a term in another county of the same circuit begins, the term of the Madison grand jury expired with the expiration of the court term for which it was chosen."

He said the Madison court term expired October 16.

"Hence there is no grand jury at the present time."

BRIDE IS KILLED IN AUTO COLLISION

Brother Also Dies and Husband Is Injured.

HEREFORD, Md., Dec. 4.—(AP) Mrs. Augusta Kennedy, 16, of Lutherville, bride of a week, and her brother, Veto Sperra, 24, of Whitehall, were killed tonight in an automobile-truck collision on the York road near here.

The girl's husband, Stanley Kennedy, his sister, Mrs. Margaret Williams, of Lutherville, occupants of the same car, and Jacob Hurkitz, of Baltimore, driver of the truck, were injured.

Baltimore county police said the automobile collided with the truck on a curve at high speed and was cut in half.

TYPHOON ROARING UPON PHILIPPINES

Storm Is Third in Three Weeks; General Warning Issued.

MANILA, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A typhoon of high tensity advanced tonight on the central Philippines, a region in which two similar storms wrought death and havoc three weeks ago.

The new storm immediately isolated the island of Samar, on the east central fringe of the archipelago, where typhoon signal No. 6 was hoisted. The signal system embraces from 1 to 10 to indicate the intensity on an ascending scale.

A general warning also was issued advising the populace that the storm was of the greatest intensity. Signal No. 1 was posted for Manila, indicating prospects of a relatively mild disturbance for the capital.

The central islands still were showing the effect of the two preceding storms. The first of these struck November 11, leaving a known death list of 33 and more than 33,000 homeless around and to the south of Manila.

A terrific storm struck several islands still farther south of Manila November 17. Winds as high as 100 miles an hour tore through some of the 30 provinces affected. The death count at last reports stood at 247, and the homeless at 170,000. Incomplete estimates fixed the property loss at $4,000,000.

MISSING FOREMAN FOUND DEAD IN CAR

Empty Poison Bottle Found Near Automobile.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 4. (AP)—Peace Justice Francis J. Warren said the body of Stanley Birmingham, 42, missing for several days, was found in his parked car in a wooded section today.

The justice said an empty bottle which had contained poison was found near the automobile.

Warren said Dr. R. R. Killinger, Duval county medical examiner, would perform an autopsy. An inquest will be held Monday.

Birmingham was a native of Tupelo, Miss., and had lived in Jacksonville for about 15 years. He was a construction foreman.

Birmingham is survived by his widow, a daughter, his father, a sister and two brothers.

COURT TO REVIEW UNIT PRIMARY LAWS

Tennessee Supreme Bench To Hear Suit Tuesday.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 4.—(UP)—The state supreme court Tuesday will begin consideration of a suit that directly affects constitutionality of Governor Gordon Browning's county unit primary laws which Shelby county charged was part of a "preconceived scheme" to destroy that county politically.

James E. Ezzell, Davidson county taxpayer, challenged constitutionality of the election laws on grounds that five legislators who voted for them automatically vacated their posts when they accepted a second state job. The laws were passed by the barest constitutional majority.

RACE TRACK FIRE RAZES 3 BUILDINGS

Damage Estimated at $30,000 by Maryland Manager.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Fire destroyed the jockey club house, the paddock and a barn at the Cumberland Fair association's racing plant late today.

Harry A. Manley, general manager of the association, estimated damage at $30,000, partly covered by insurance. Carl Schmutz, secretary, blamed a short circuit for the blaze.

A few hours before the big fire, a flare-up in an overhead furnace in which pari-mutual tickets were being burned was quenched without damage.

PERU'S PROGRESS STEADY DECLARES BENAVIDES

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 4.—(UP)—Peru's economic progress has been steady throughout 1937 and the general condition of the country is flourishing, President Oscar Benavides said today.

In an interview with James I. Miller, vice president of the United Press, President Benavides said he hoped to spend $6,000,000 in 1938 on highway construction as part of a three-year plan begun this year.

Loving Gesture Hurts; Woman Snatches Cash

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4.—(AP)—John T. Obarr, 60, told police he was walking along a street when a car pulled up to the curb, a woman stepped out, threw her arms around him and took his wallet from a hip pocket.

Obarr said the woman threw the wallet to a man companion in the car and as they drove off together they tossed it back to him minus $2.

"MILES OF DIMES" BUILDING PAVEMENTS in GOD'S HEAVENS!

Symbolic of the Salvation Army and all it stands for is their Christmas campaign for miles of dimes to bring cheer to the hearts of hundreds of under-privileged families. God Himself in His divine habitation, that is Heaven, must look down with love and compassionate understanding at these His children who are paving their ways to paradise by their thoughtfulness and by their solicitude, both spiritually and materially, in providing at least temporary periods of happiness, in the hearts of those who grasp for the better things in life and find them not. Surely the least we can do is to add our few dimes to a work so full of blessings.

COUNTY ECONOMY WILL HIT MOTORS, DECREASE PAY ROLL

Department Heads Asked To Appear Before Commission Wednesday.

Fulton county commission was sharpening the economy ax again yesterday as Chairman J. A. Ragsdale asked all department heads to appear before Wednesday and state their needs for the coming year.

At the same time Commissioner George F. Longino stated that further slashes in personnel are in prospect either at this meeting or before January 1.

Funds Are Budgeted.

Under the law, Longino said, department heads may state the number of employes they need to operate their departments but it is up to the commission to allot money for salaries. It is then the department head's job to spread the money to take care of his employes.

Reduction in the number of autos used by the county, which was voted at the last meeting, will be put into effect tomorrow, Longino indicated. At least 25 autos must go, it was voted last Wednesday, with each commissioner cutting off cars in his own department.

In furtherance of this program all commissioners except the chairman of the public works committee will give up his personal county car. At least 17 cars will be taken from the public works department, however, it was said.

Grand Jury Instructs.

The economy program is at the instance of the September-October grand jury, which recommended that savings could be made in reducing salaries and operating expenses and in reducing personnel.

All economies to date have been in discharging unnecessary employes and reducing operating expenses. It was indicated that there would be no salary reductions.

At the last commission meeting three employes were discharged, the reason given in each case being that the men were not necessary to the county government.

'Fire Mothers' All Set To Top 'Big Brothers' in Drive

Members of the Woman's Auxiliary No. 1, of the Atlanta fire department, are shown here after Mrs. H. G. Crossley, chairman of the committee for the sale of tickets to the fifth annual Big Brother ball, to be held December 22 in the Shrine mosque, made an enthusiastic pledge that they would try to sell more than any other organizations in the city. LAWMAKER URGES PAY-HOUR REVISION

Representative Hancock Says He Supports Broad Principles.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Representative Hancock, Democrat, North Carolina, said today it is his intention to vote against passage of the wages and hours bill "unless the measure is radically revised in several vital particulars."

The measure is scheduled to come up December 13 on a motion to discharge the rules committee from further consideration. Hancock said he would vote in favor of this motion "in keeping with my conception of true Democratic procedure."

The North Carolina representative, a candidate for the Democratic senatorial nomination next year, made known his views in a letter to Karl Bishopric, president of Spray Cotton Mills, Spray, North Carolina.

"Notwithstanding my hearty approval of both its social and economic objectives, I am firmly convinced that in its present form, it is administratively infeasible and that its application could not be other than injurious to the country and particularly harmful to a majority of the unorganized group of workers it is designed to help," Hancock wrote.

He declared "Standards should be fixed by law and not be decree of a bureaucracy."

"Furthermore," Hancock wrote, "the standards should be set at such a point as not unduly to unbalance economically those areas in which money wages are, because of peculiar circumstances, below average levels.

Here He Is, Girls! Man Will Wed For Groceries

Governor Rivers' trials and tribulations as an involuntary matrimonial bureau for women who want to marry men with $500 cash reached new heights yesterday.

The state's chief executive was in receipt of a letter from a man this time—a man who wants a wife to support him even though he "looks like something the cats drug in" (his own modest description).

But, from the tone and content of his letter, the wife-seeker is a personality to be reckoned with. Witness the last line of his epistle to the Governor, which follows:

My Dear Governor:
A few days ago I read with a great deal of interest a letter to you from a young woman that would marry any man with $500.
Now I think she is asking a little too much.
I would be willing to marry any girl that would put the groceries on the table and buy me a plug of Brown Mule chewing tobacco every day. I would make her a good husband if she would make me a good living. What more could any girl ask?
I am 30 years old, five feet five inches in height, weigh 130, hair black, eyes blue and dark complexion.
You can easily see my looks are nothing to brag about. In fact I look like something the cats drug in.
But girls can't be choosy when husbands are so hard to find. If any are interested have them write or me at once (not collect).
Your ardent supporter.

P. S.—My education is limited and I use good English only by accident.

WOMAN IS HURLED 5 FLOORS, KILLED

Man Accused by Daughter of Victim of Fall.

HOBOKEN, N. J., Dec. 4.—(UP) A bitter quarrel over a rejected proposal came to a tragic end tonight when, police said, William Eichhorst, 34, threw the woman with whom he had been living through the closed window of their fifth-floor apartment.

The woman, Mrs. Emma Kumbartsky, 38, fell to a courtyard just as her 17-year-old daughter, Anna, was coming up the street. The girl knelt by her mother's side and later told police she whispered Eichhorst was responsible. Mrs. Kumbartsky died a few minutes after she had been taken to a hospital and Eichhorst was held on a murder charge.

TRAIN KILLS 11 WORKERS.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—(UP)—Eleven members of a railway labor gang were killed and seven injured today in Pomerania where a passenger train from Berlin ran them down in foggy weather.

150 More 'Big Brothers' Sought To Assure Yule Cheer for Needy

'All You Have To Do Is Agree To Spend 2 Hours Selling a Special Edition of The Constitution' To Assure Days of Joy for Others, Chairman Points Out.

Pleading letters to the Big Brother editor yesterday, from families in distress, gave ample evidence of the need of Big Brothers to join in the army for the prevention of suffering among Atlanta's needy this Christmas. W. M. "Mike" Gilleland, chairman of the paper sales committee, though pleased with the enlistment, asks for at least 150 more men.

"We need that many more Big Brothers to cover the city December 19, for the sale of the special Big Brother edition of The Constitution," Gilleland said. "Ward majors are assigned. All we want now is more Big Brothers to work with them. All you'll have to do is agree to devote two hours' time to selling the special edition."

To enlist, he said, drop by Big Brother headquarters at 58 Peachtree street, call Main 4610 or fill out the coupon appearing in this paper and mail it to headquarters. "Then, you will help fill our remaining quota of 150."

Pleas Pile Up.

Pleas are arriving every day from "a widow with two children," "a cripple with three boys" and numerous jobless families that look with fear instead of joy at the oncoming Christmas which they know will be just another day to their youngsters. "How?" said General Chairman Al Belle Isle, "can any Atlanta Big Brother fail to enlist in this cause, and do his part toward holding this suffering down to a minimum?"

"We're Big Brothers all, but we've got to work and give a little of our time and money to do any good for the city's poor," he said.

High enthusiasm is reported in Decatur by Vernon Frank, city commissioner in charge of that city's Big Brother activities. "And from the looks of things," he said, "we'll more than double last year's record."

Exhibit Crowds.

Crowds are increasing daily at the educational and historic exhibit in the wax museum at 60 Peachtree street, sponsored jointly by Big Brothers and Atlanta Post No. 1, American Legion. Doors will be open at 1 o'clock this afternoon, H. B. Maxey, owner, who has been named Big Brother No. 2 for his co-operation in donating a large part of the proceeds, announced.

Big Brother John Blick has donated a handsome loving cup to be awarded to the organization selling the greatest number of tickets to the Big Brother fifth annual charity ball. It will be held December 22 in the Shrine Mosque. Mackey M. Klein is also donor of a cup, to be awarded the individual leading in sales.

"We realize that the need of the unfortunate families of Atlanta is greater than ever before," Mrs. H. G. Crossley, chairman of the ticket sale committee of the Women's Auxiliary No. 1, of the Atlanta Fire Department, stated yesterday, setting a spirited tone for other organizations to follow. And we are only too glad to be able to participate in this worthy charity drive. I know our hearts will be gladdened on Christmas morning when we know that we have had a part in making hundreds of children happy. We are after the John Blick trophy. Other organizations will have to get busy if they want to top our sales."

TOURNEY PLANNED FOR FIGHT ON POLIO

'National Bridge Party' Sought To Raise Funds.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—American Contract Bridge League officials described plans today for a "great national bridge party" to be held sometime next year in every community to raise funds for the battle against infantile paralysis.

The announcement was made after an interview at the White House between Stephen J. Early, secretary to President Roosevelt, and William E. McKenney, executive secretary of the league.

It is the intention of the league, said McKenney, to provide master point championship tournaments throughout the country with all profits to go to the war against the disease.

EARLY MEETING SET BY RIVERS CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The National Rivers and Harbors Congress announced today its annual convention would be held several months early because of the "critical situation confronting the entire national flood control, waterway and conservation program."

The meeting has been set for January 20 and 21 at Washington.

The announcement referred to pending bills to "take away from the corps of army engineers" jurisdiction over waterway and flood control and to projected sharp cuts in appropriations.

MISTRIAL DECLARED IN SLAYING AT LYONS

LYONS, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A mistrial was declared today in the trial of Sammie Mann, charged with the slaying of Claude Wright. The Toombs county jury received the case yesterday.

Mann, son of a prominent family here, testified he shot Wright in self-defense. Other witnesses testified the shooting following an argument over a 20-cent bill.

CHATHAM WILL ADD 300 TO WPA ROLLS

SAVANNAH, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Donald G. Nichols, field representative of the WPA and area engineer here, announced today at least 300 male workers will be added to the WPA rolls in Chatham county beginning by December 15. It will mean a $15,000-a-month increase in WPA pay just before Christmas.

The purpose of the increase is to speed up city and county construction.

Atlanta Teacher Sticks To Shell-Periled Post

An Atlanta missionary-teacher is one of 30 foreigners remaining in Hangchow, capital of Chekiang province, as the majority of the city's half million population moved out yesterday, fearing Japanese shells.

He is Eugene A. Turner, who 15 years ago was a member of the Georgia Tech faculty. Turner's last visit to Atlanta was in 1935.

LUNSFORD SOUGHT IN BACKYARD CRASH

Police last night were searching for Joel Lunsford, convicted lottery "big shot," said to be the owner of an automobile which crashed in a southside backyard Friday night.

D. F. Smith, of 1450 Metropolitan avenue, S. E., reported that a car driven at a high speed crashed into his garage and damaged his automobile and the building. He found the car but the driver had fled.

Police said an East Point automobile dealer had sold the car last July to Lunsford.

JAN GARBER DENIES WIFE'S DIVORCE CLAIMS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Jan Garber, orchestra leader, filed a blanket denial today to his wife's divorce suit in which she charged he stayed away from home nights, criticized her friends and was abusive.

In her suit, Mrs. Dorothy C. Garber asked division of community property valued at $75,000, and custody of their daughter, Janis, 8.

CEDARTOWN ELECTION.

CEDARTOWN, Dec. 4.—Cedartown voters this week overwhelmingly approved the so-called citizens' slate of five candidates for the city commission. The nominees: F. H. Brewster, D. L. Roberts Jr., C. C. Bunn, R. V. Wood and M. M. Cornelius. They will take office with the inauguration of the recently approved city manager form of government January 1.

PRESBYTERY ACTS TO SELECT EDITOR

Calls Meeting for Tomorrow To Name Survey Head.

Dr. B. K. Tenney, secretary of stewardship and finance, announced yesterday a meeting of the board of editors of the Presbyterian church, U. S., called for tomorrow to elect an editor of the Presbyterian Survey, official organ of the church's general assembly.

He said it would be the first of three committee meetings to determine important steps in the church program. The promotion committee will meet Tuesday; the stewardship and finance committee Wednesday.

Revision of the Presbyterian Survey is scheduled for the Monday meeting. The publication heretofore has had several contributing editors, but no designated editor-in-chief.

Establishment of a quarterly publication for devotional use will come before the promotion committee, which also is slated to pass on action of the board of editors. Reports are due on campaign arrangements for the "every-member canvas" and a course to be given at the assembly training school at Richmond, Va.

Reports from the church assembly's agencies, including the committees on foreign missions, home mission, Christian education, ministerial relief, religious education and publication, will be made to the committee on stewardship and finance.

CIVITANS TO HEAR LELAND M. PRYOR

International President Will Be Luncheon Guest.

Leland M. Pryor, international president of Civitan Clubs, will be the principal speaker at a special luncheon meeting of the Atlanta Civitan Club at 12:30 o'clock next Tuesday at the Atlanta Athletic Club. This luncheon will replace the regular Tuesday meeting of the club this week.

Mayor Hartsfield and the presidents of all civic organizations, as well as representatives from the Civitan Clubs of Georgia, have been invited.

DAUGHTER WINS RACE TO FATHER'S BEDSIDE

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 4.—(AP) Patrick Henry Murray, 77, succumbed today to the illness which brought his daughter by ship and train from Batavia, Dutch East Indies, to his bedside in a race with death.

The daughter, Mrs. L. James Farley, and other members of the family were at the bedside when Murray died. Mrs. Farley's trip began October 25 and took her across the Indian ocean, Red sea, Suez canal, Mediterranean, overland from Genoa, Italy, to Havre, France, and across the Atlantic to New York, where she boarded a train for Rochester, arriving November 23.

HAVANA-TO-MIAMI HOP MADE IN 48 MINUTES

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Major Alexander P. De Seversky, airplane manufacturer who hung up a mark of 5 hours and 2 minutes between New York and Havana yesterday, whipped in over Miami airport at 2:53 p. m. (Atlanta time) today after flight of 48 minutes from the Cuban capital.

STAGE, SCREEN STAR DIES OF CRASH INJURIES

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Ralph Lewis, famed on the stage and silent screen for his characterizations, died today of traffic injuries suffered October 24. He was 65 years old.

Lewis' automobile collided with a car driven by Abdul Maljan, valet and trainer for Jack Warner, producer. The wife, Vera Lewis, of the New York stage and screen, survives.

TWO ARE SENTENCED IN JEWEL ROBBERIES

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Federal Judge Baltzell today sentenced Joseph Yates and Robert Edwards, convicted of transporting stolen jewelry from Tampa, Fla., to Veedersburg, Ind., to 10-year prison terms and $5,000 fines.

The two were paroled in Florida after serving 15 months of life terms for a $125,000 jewel robbery at Tampa, January 4, 1935. Their prosecution here followed.

2 OFFICERS CONVICTED IN MINE LABOR KILLING

HAZARD, Ky., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Marion Banks and Felix Nantz, Perry county deputy sheriffs, charged with killing Rufus Miller, a United Mine Workers' field director, were convicted of manslaughter today.

The jury fixed Banks' sentence at ten years and that of Nantz at five. Miller was shot to death on the street here the night of last September 6.

MINNESOTA GOVERNOR PREDICTS THIRD TERM

PORTLAND, Oregon, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Elmer A. Benson, Minnesota's farmer-labor Governor, predicted in an interview today that President Roosevelt would be nominated for a third term in 1940.

"I hope the people are not so narrow-minded as to stick to third term tradition," he said.

BANK CLEARINGS GAIN $1,000,000 IN ATLANTA

A gain of $1,000,000 was shown in bank clearings last week as compared with the same period a year ago, the Atlanta Clearing House announced yesterday.

Total check transactions for the week were $57,400,000 against $56,400,000 last year.

ON THE AIR WAVES

Lawrence Tibbett, Baritone, Sings On Sunday Evening Hour Tonight

Ginger Rogers Is Guest on Don Ameche's Variety Program.

The internationally famous baritone, Lawrence Tibbett, will be guest soloist of the Sunday Evening Hour broadcast to be heard over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight. The concert will be under the direction of Eugene Ormandy and will originate in Detroit.

The occasion will mark Tibbett's first radio concert of the season. For the past seven months he has made an extensive tour of Europe after singing in special coronation performances at Covent Garden in London. He appeared in France, Austria and the Scandinavian countries and in Sweden was presented with the medal of "Litteras fet artibus" by King Gustav.

Music to be heard on the program includes:

"Bret Harte Overture" (orchestra).
"Eri Tu" (Tibbett, orchestra).
"Air on the G String" (orchestra).
"The Bagpipe Man" (Tibbett and orchestra).

"Mah Little Banjo" (Thomas).

SUNDAY SYMPHONY.

Grace Moore, Jussi Bjoerling and Donald Dickson, of the Sunday Concert Company, will be presented in an "Opera Night" program of the Sunday Concerts with Mishel Piastro, concert violinist, as assistant soloist. The concert will be broadcast from Carnegie Hall in New York city and will be heard over WAGA at 7 o'clock tonight.

Soloist, chorus and 20-piece symphony orchestra conducted by Erno Rapee will be heard in some of the greatest numbers from 11 operas.

Music to be heard on the program includes:

"Intermezzo" (symphony orchestra).
"Toreador Song" (Donald Dickson and chorus).
"Meditation" (Mishel Piastro).
"Connais-tu le pays?" (Grace Moore).
"Bolero" (Grace Moore and chorus).
"Intermezzo" (symphony orchestra).
"Una furtiva lagrima" (Jussi Bjoerling).
"Song of India" (Jusso Bjoerling and chorus).
"March" (symphony orchestra).
"Solenne in quest' ora" (Jussi Bjoerling and Donald Dickson).
"Brindisi" (Grace Moore and Jussi Bjoerling).
"Overture to Rienzi" (symphony orchestra).

OPTIMIST WEEK.

Optimist Week—Elizabeth Dene, who appears daily at 8:45 a. m., on WGST as the Voice of Experience, is joining in the sponsoring of Optimist International Week in connection with her program. Miss Dene will have a message each day this week from the Atlanta Optimist International group. A copy of the Optimist creed and a pamphlet, "Suggestions for Training Children" or "I'll Make You Like Me," will be mailed to all who request them by Miss Dene.

WOMAN CONVICTED OF KIDNAPING NIECE

AMERICUS, Dec. 4.—Convicted of the abduction of her niece, Annie Nell Taylor, from a Sumter county farmer who had adopted the child, Mrs. Kate Mindler yesterday was sentenced to serve 12 months in the state prison.

Counsel for Mrs. Mindler immeately filed motion for a new trial, and bond was set at $350. January 2 was set for the hearing on the motion.

A contempt charge against Mrs. Mindler, growing out of her failure to return the child to Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Coogle, her foster parents, was dismissed.

arking Dogs To Go on Trial; Town in Dither

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Some of our best people out re are in a dither tonight over gs.

The business has a lot of angles. w many cocker spaniels do the wnsend Scudders have, do they rk, why, how long, how loud, w often, and so what?

The village selectmen, who genally prefer worrying over matrs of greater moment than this, ll give the problem earnest attntion Monday night. The cocks will go on trial in absentia, as e selectmen do not wish their ambers cluttered with cockers r obvious reasons.

Mr. Scudder, a retired supreme urt justice of New York state d the jurist who presided at the ath Snyder-Judd Gray murder al, has been getting dirty looks m some of his neighbors for arly a year now on account of ey resent his cockers.

Mr. Scudder has been spoken to litely about the beasts which are nneled on his estate in the ritzy und Hill section. He has replied th equal politeness that it is farest from his and Mrs. Scudder's sire to have the dogs—which ally are Mrs. Scudder's—cause noyance.

The difference of opinion is this: e Scudders argue that the cocks are not a "nuisance to the ighborhood" and do not "bark cessively and create other disrbances." The neighbors, headed Lee W. Maxwell, chairman of e Crowell Publishing Company, y they guess they can tell hether a dog's barking is annoyg them or not, and that the vilge selectmen should do somening about it.

MEXICO PREPARES TO RUN RAILWAYS

President of Semi-Private Unit To Take Charge.

MEXICO, D. F., Dec 4.—(AP)—Mexico made ready today for the ast step before ultimate socialization of her 8,562-mile national railway system.

A government department, newly created by President Lazaro Cardenas, prepared to operate the lines until "direct exploitation" by the workers is arranged.

Cardenas named Antonio Mantrazo, president of the semi-private company which operated the national railways prior to the taking over of the line, to take charge.

Foreign investors hold Mexican railway securities with a face value of $273,123,211. Accumulated interest is almost as much. About 20 per cent of the securities are owned by Americans.

Cardenas has proposed to the National Railway Workers' Syndicate, scheduled to be eventual operators of the lines, that they guarantee the government 14,000,000 pesos (about $3,890,000) annually from operating revenues.

BRITISH FIGHT PACT WITH U. S. ON TRADE

Concessions Opposed by Head of National Union.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(UP)—The National Union of Manufacturers, largest industrial association in the Empire, today advised the Board of Trade against rushing into a trade agreement with the United States for "political reasons" at the expense of British industry.

The group also urged the government to bear in mind the empire trade preferences fixed at the Ottawa conference and "their bearing on the present and future welfare of all British countries before contemplating anything which would weaken this system."

The warning was signed by Sir Patrick Hannon, president of the union, who warned recently in a speech that British industry would not permit unreasonable trade concessions to the United States.

'THE HEAT IS ON,' UNDERWORLD TOLD

Warning Sent Vice Lords in 'Own' Language.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—New York has become "definitely hot" for the underworld.

A series of narcotic raids, following closely on the Dewey racket-busting campaign and the "slap 'em down" orders of Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine, has added a sizzling touch to the dramatic cleanup.

Discussing the latest offensive against organized crime, Major Garland Williams, district chief of the Federal Narcotics Bureau, said:

"The heat is on. That's known to the underworld all over. They're either going to move out of the city or go to jail. They can take their choice."

VETERAN EMPLOYE OF CITY SUCCUMBS

S. B. Holcombe Will Be Buried Today in Crest Lawn Cemetery.

S. B. Holcombe, veteran city employe, died yesterday afternoon of pneumonia at the residence, 1186 Holly street, N. W., after a brief illness. He was 63.

Pfaelzer, a Harvard graduate, is studying law at the University of Pennsylvania.

REHEARING DENIED ON PITTMAN SEAT

State High Court Turns Down Mitchell Appeal.

John C. Mitchell, of Dalton, yesterday lost another effort to obtain the judgeship of the Cherokee judicial circuit which is now held by Judge Claude C. Pittman, of Cartersville.

The supreme court refused a rehearing to Mitchell on its three-to-three decision of November 1 which affirmed Judge Pittman's contention he was entitled to hold office until a successor has been elected at the same time legislators are elected.

An elected successor to Judge Pittman died last year before qualifying for the office, and in the subsequent June 8 general election Mitchell was the only candidate. Pittman retained the bench seat and his contentions were upheld by the high court.

PILOT IS KILLED

Student's Plane Goes Into Spin at Takeoff.

MINEOLA, N. Y., Dec. 4.—(UP)—George C. Le North, 23-year-old student pilot of Linden, N. J., was killed today when he lost control of his Stinson monoplane in a takeoff from Roosevelt field and crashed.

The ship went into a spin at 100 feet and nose-dived to the ground.

It took police and firemen 15 minutes to extricate his body.

FOR 1938

FORD OFFERS TWO NEW CARS and keeps their PRICES LOW

Right, the Standard Tudor Sedan 60 or 85 horsepower
Below, the De Luxe Fordor Sedan 85 horsepower

THERE are two new Ford cars for 1938—the De Luxe and the Standard—differing in appearance, appointments and price—but built on the same dependable Ford chassis.

Both bring you the basic advantages of a V-type 8-cylinder power-plant. The De Luxe Ford has the 85-horsepower engine. The Standard Ford provides a choice of 85 or 60 horsepower engines.

STEP UP TO THE V-8 CLASS

V-type 8-cylinder engines were used only in expensive cars before Ford made them available in The Universal Car. Eight cylinders give great smoothness and flexibility. Compact V-type construction leaves more room for passengers and luggage.

Both new cars are economical to operate. The Standard, with thrifty "60" engine, costs less to run than any other Ford car ever built. And both new cars are priced low. Low price, like economy, is a Ford tradition. Ford founded the low-price field 30 years ago and keeps Ford prices low today.

The De Luxe Ford costs slightly more than the Standard Ford, but provides more style with extra room in the sedan bodies. Both cars, in proportion to price, represent unusual values. Both are built to the same high standard of mechanical excellence. Both bring you the comfort and pride of ownership you have come to expect of a Ford.

BUILDING ON LAST YEAR'S SUCCESS

More people bought the 1937 Ford V-8 than any other 1937 make. It was a good car. But these are better cars, because Ford improvement goes on constantly. You'll realize that when you see and drive either Ford V-8 for 1938.

PRICES FOR CARS DELIVERED IN DETROIT—TAXES EXTRA

Standard Ford V-8 (60 hp.) — Coupe, $599; Tudor Sedan, $644; Fordor Sedan, $689. Standard Ford V-8 (85 hp.) — Coupe, $629; Tudor Sedan, $669; Fordor Sedan, $714.

De Luxe Ford V-8 (85 hp. only) — Coupe, $689; Tudor Sedan, $729; Fordor Sedan, $774; Convertible Coupe, $774; Club Coupe, $749; Convertible Club Coupe, $804; Phaeton, $824; Convertible Sedan, $904.

Both Standard and De Luxe cars come equipped with front and rear bumpers and bumper guards, spare wheel, tire and tube, tire lock and band, cigar lighter, twin horns, and headlight beam indicator on instrument panel, at no extra charge.

In addition, De Luxe cars are equipped with an extra tail light, windshield wiper, sun visor; also de luxe steering wheel, glove compartment lock and clock, and chrome wheel bands, at no extra charge.

ENDOWMENT FUND CHARTER GRANTED GEORGIA ALUMNI

Purpose To Administer Money Given for Faculty Aid and Equipment.

Seventeen University of Georgia alumni yesterday applied for and were granted a charter incorporating the University of Georgia Foundation for the purpose of administering future endowments to supplement faculty salaries and finance new buildings and equipment.

Pope E. Brock, of Atlanta, one of the incorporators and who filed petition for the charter, said that the endowment funds would be developed through donations from friends and alumni of the university.

"It is our purpose," he said, "to make the foundation so effective it will induce friends of the university to make substantial contributions and bequests to the fund."

Dr. Calhoun President.

Dr. S. Phinizy Calhoun, of Atlanta, has been elected president of the board of trustees composed of the 17 charter members. Walter Cothran, of Rome, is vice president; Hughes Spalding, Atlanta attorney, secretary, and Cam D. Dorsey, Atlanta attorney, treasurer.

All funds will be administered by the board of trustees, which is a self-perpetuating organization. There is no capital stock, Brock emphasized, since the foundation is not for pecuniary gain but to be entirely devoted to the university.

Two Main Purposes.

"Our organization has two main purposes," he said. "Firstly we shall devote the endowment income as authorities at the university need it in supplementing salaries of faculty members so that the university may attract the best educational talent available.

"Secondly we shall use the funds in the upbuilding of the university property in financing new buildings and new equipment."

No Athletic Support.

He particularly emphasized that the money would not be used in the support of athletic teams, at the school.

Superior Court Judge Virlyn B. Moore granted the charter immediately upon notice of the petition. By law business charters must be advertised for 30 days before being granted, but an exception is made in the case of charitable institutions.

In addition to those named, the following Fulton county residents, Dan MacDougald, Harrison Jones, Harold Hirsch and Dr. Frank K. Boland were petitioners for the charter.

The petition was sought through the law firm of Spalding, Sibley, Troutman and Brock.

YULE SEALS SALES GAIN 12 PER CENT

$5 Bonds Offered to Clubs and Organizations in This Section.

Sales of Christmas seals in Fulton and DeKalb counties yesterday had reached $2,463.81, an increase of approximately 12 per cent over the same period last year, according to Miss Mary Dickinson, executive secretary of the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association.

While officials of the association are pleased with the generous reception given the 1937 seals so far, it was pointed out that the sum raised this year must be far in advance of the amount contributed in 1936, because the need for funds is much greater at this time. The association depends on the sale of Christmas seals and private donations for one-third of its operating expenses.

Selling $5 Bonds.

For the first time this year the association is selling $5 bonds to organizations and clubs throughout this section. Equivalent to 500 seals which sell for a penny a piece, the $5 bond will supply medical and nursing care for one patient during an entire year. Organizations buying a $5 bond literally adopt a tuberculosis patient for one year, it was pointed out. Two hundred seals will supply an educational kit of tuberculosis literature for a high school library, and one hundred seals pays for an X-ray plate. Fifty seals, or a 50-cent contribution, it was pointed out, supplies a medical chart for a patient. Twenty-five seals buys a bottle of cough medicine, and 10 seals or a dime (which hundreds of school children are contributing), provides a tuberculin test.

Seals Sent Out.

Approximately 6,000 letters containing Christmas seals have been mailed throughout DeKalb county, where a specialized educational program is being conducted in connection with the Christmas seal sale. Mrs. Guy Hudson is general chairman of the DeKalb county group. She is assisted by Mrs. W. M. Graham, chairman of the school committee; Mrs. Chase Van Valkenburg, and Mrs. Forrest Hill, co-chairmen of publicity.

According to J. P. Faulkner, executive secretary of the Georgia Tuberculosis Association, with which the local organization is affiliated, sale of Christmas seals throughout the entire state and among rural communities, is meeting with a brisk demand, many counties having written in for increased shipments of seals.

A boon to the spirit of motherhood is Mrs. J. K. Boone. Yesterday she said "Gather around, my children, and meet your new baby brother, the thirteenth child in our family." But in an aside she added, "I think this will be the last." The new arrival, Jimmy, is in his mother's arms and the other members, left to right, are Beckie and Rebecca, 9-year-old twins; Billy, 11; Douglas, 13; Dan, 7; Jessie, 16; Clifton, 5; Curtis, 19; Retha, 15; Joe, 21, and Franklin Delano, 3. The oldest daughter, Mary Lou, 23, is living at Augusta.

RAIDED CLUB HEAD HELD FOR PERJURY

False Answers on Nude Shows Charged.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Earl "Al" Youst, whose La Paloma Club was raided recently by a band in Ku Klux Klan regalia and closed by sheriff's deputies at an attempted reopening, was arrested today on a charge of perjury and posted $1,000 bond for his release.

County Solicitor Taylor, in a two-count information, charged Youst gave false answers November 29 to questions as to whether entertainers ever appeared in the nude in the club's shows. The questions were asked during an investigation of complaints against the place.

William Green and Seymour Ellis represented Dartmouth.

13th Child Is Born to Atlantan Who Says: 'I'll Leave It That Way'

Arrival of Son Last Monday Makes It Four Girls, Nine Boys and Mother Says "They All Come Home To Roost."

By MAXINE LAND.

Always willing to "take anything the good Lord sends along," an Atlanta woman gave birth to her thirteenth child—a 10-pound boy—Monday morning.

Happy over the new addition to the somewhat crowded household, Mrs. J. L. Boone said yesterday: "I wouldn't change places with any woman for a million dollars." She is the mother of four girls and eight other boys, all of whom are living.

Obviously thrilled over the new son, which has been named Jimmy "for no particular reason," she says her memory still harks back as her greatest thrill to the day her nine-year-old twins, Becky and Rebecca, greeted the world.

They Come Home to Roost.

Although several members of the family told her if she had any more children they were going to leave she believes "they were only joking because they haven't left yet and they're thrilled over the new baby."

"My children are just like chickens," she said. "They all come home to roost at night. Then we realize what a big crowd there is. But most of the time they are running around on the farm here."

"We always know where to find Curtis, our 19-year-old boy," she explained. "He's the neighborhood hog killer. Whenever anyone wants a hog killed they just send for Curtis and he puts on his coat and hat and grabs his gun and starts out. He's a good shot and he just naturally likes to kill hogs."

In the four-room house on the farm off the Bankhead highway there are eight beds. "But we have no difficulty in housing or feeding our family of three girls and eight boys," said Mrs. Boone. "Our oldest girl lives in Augusta. So we decided to take in a boarder." They did—a nice, quiet young man.

Plenty to Eat.

"My husband is a truck driver and without the help of our two oldest sons we might run into trouble but they aid us with part of their wages and we always have enough to eat."

On a huge, round table large quantities of meat and vegetables are placed and the children gather around. "It doesn't take my crowd long to finish a meal," she said.

Mrs. Boone, who is 43, married when she was 19. A year later the first addition to the family arrived. They named her Mary Lou. Two years later came Joe, two years following, Curtis was added to the family group, three years after this Jessie appeared and one year lapsed before Retha was born. Two more years and Douglas was added; following this two years passed and Billy arrived. Still two years later, and the great surprise, when Beckie and Rebecca, the twins, were born. Dan made his appearance in two years and then in two more years along came Clifton and in two years when President Roosevelt was elected Franklin Delano became one of the happy household which boasted but 12 members until Jimmy made his appearance Monday morning and changed it to 13.

Will Keep It at 13.

"But I believe in large families," said the happy mother. "There'd be a lot fewer divorces nowadays if the young folks would think more of having children and less of having drinks. I don't drink, smoke, play cards or go to the movies—and I plan to stay married a long time yet. The only place worth going to is church," she added.

Another advantage of having a large family," she continued, "when I get old I won't have to go to the poor house. I'll have plenty of folks with my children and grandchildren to look out for me."

Taking the sleeping baby in her arms she smiled and said, "But I'll tell you one thing, I'm not afraid of 13 being an unlucky number. I think I'm going to leave it like that."

MAN AND DAUGHTER KILLED BY AUTOIST

Wife and Other Daughter See Accident.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A hit-and-run driver killed a father and his four-year-old daughter tonight as he walked down U. S. Road 40 west of here with the child in his arms.

Noah Russell, 24, of near Bridgeport, and Margaret Russell were killed as Russell's 22-year-old wife, Omie, and another daughter, Myrtle, two, looked on.

Onlookers said the driver of the automobile, a woman, went on down the road a mile, then turned and passed the scene in the other direction.

ATLANTA PLAYER HIGH IN TOURNEY

Henry Chanin Has 214 Points in Bridge Contest.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Dr. Louis Mark and Stanley Schwartz, of Columbus, Ohio, led a field of 96 today in the first qualifying session of the open pair contest of the national contract bridge tournament. They scored 270 points out of a possible 390.

Second place went to Harry Fishbein and Phil Abramsohn, of New York, with 258 1-2 points. Mrs. A. P. Stockvis and Al Roth, of Washington, were third with 252 1-2 points.

Oswald Jacoby, leader of the "Four Aces" team, and Henry Chanin, of Atlanta, scored 214 points.

Fifty-six pairs will qualify for the semi-final round which begins Sunday morning. Thirty-two pairs will fight it out for the title Sunday night.

'Sweetheart of Grady' Returns To Hospital

It's not all sadness in hospitals. There was great joy last week when four-year-old Ann Gaddis returned to Grady hospital, where she has spent most of her life because of breathing difficulties. With Phillip Leach she was the feminine member of the pair known as the "Sweethearts of Grady Hospital." She is suffering from a bronchial infection and was back for a few days' treatment. She is shown here with two of the nursing staff.

'Bunion' Derbyites Halt To Take Bath

The two remaining contestants in the "Bunion Derby" took time out in their 200-mile, non-sleep walking marathon last night for a bath and hot meal in Trion, Ga., and then "hit the road" again.

Four University of the South students began the walk early Friday, announcing they would walk from Sewanee to Atlanta in 70 hours if "physically possible."

David Rose, senior, and Charles Robinson, freshman, announced "we feel a lot better now" after taking the bath and eating. They resumed their march within the hour allowed for rest.

They expect to reach Atlanta some time today.

Lee Bellford, of Savannah, resigned as a contestant at Jasper, Tenn., and Dick Kirchhoffer, of Mobile, gave up at Chattanooga. Both complained of sore feet.

DEATHS IN STATE DECREASE IN 1937

State Health Department Asserts Preventative Measures Showing Effect.

Deaths in Georgia from typhoid fever, malaria, diphtheria, tuberculosis, pellagra, dysentery, influenza, pneumonia, meningococcus meningitis and infant and maternal mortality, have shown a marked decrease for the period from January 1 through August 31, 1937, as compared with the same period during 1936, according to Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the State Department of Public Health.

Through August 31, 1937, there was a total of 29,915 deaths reported caused by these diseases while the number for the same period in 1936 totaled 31,821, or a decrease of 1,906 in the number of deaths occurring in 1937 over 1936.

The reduction in the number of deaths occurring from these diseases is particularly gratifying, the health director declared, and indicates that preventative measures and programs of public health in Georgia are having their favorable effect. Of special interest is the reduction in the number of deaths occurring from pneumonia, influenza and tuberculosis, which are listed among the eight leading causes of death reported annually.

Deaths from influenza showed a reduction for this period of 28.7 per cent in 1937 over 1936; pneumonia, 25.6 per cent, and tuberculosis (all forms), 10.9 per cent.

In addition to these three diseases the cause of death in the state is headed yearly by heart disease, nephritis, accidents, cerebral hemorrhage and cancer.

Heart disease ranked first in 1936, while in 1920 it was fifth. Pneumonia is second and in 1920 it was first; nephritis was third in 1936 and sixth in 1920. Influenza was sixth in 1936 and ranked second in 1920.

PITTSBURGH 'SMOG' LIFTS AFTER 2 DAYS

'Twilight' Over City Worst in Several Years.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 4.—(UP)—A pall of "smog" which kept the Pittsburgh district in constant twilight for two days lifted late today as freshening winds brought a light rainfall to the area.

United States meteorologists announced the high pressure area, which deposited the chick gray mist—blend of fog and smoke from the district's many mills—had moved out. Snow was predicted.

The smog blanket was termed the worst in many years. Automobiles and trolleys in the city's streets were forced to burn headlights throughout the day.

Nobody Has to 'Toot Me Out of the Way'

Mrs. L. A. Johnson, of 38 Saunders street, is 75 years old and got her driver's license yesterday. She plans to drive her 1919 model auto a number of years yet. She believes her driving will compare favorably with any of the younger folks, because nobody has to "toot me out of the way."

75-Year-Old Atlantan Proves Skill In Her '19 Model Car, Gets License

"My Rheumatism Prevents My Walking Anywhere, But I Know I Can Always Get There and Back as long as I Can Drive," Says Mrs. L. A. Johnson.

A 75-year-old Atlanta woman received her drivers' license yesterday and took out her car—a model 1919—to demonstrate her skill as a driver.

"My car is as good as the day I bought it," she said. "And I'm going to drive it several years yet."

Mrs. L. A. Johnson, of 38 Saunders street, backed the ancient auto out of the garage yesterday with apparent ease.

"My rheumatism prevents my walking anywhere these days, but I know I can always get there and back as long as I can drive. My children think I'm getting too old to drive, but I disagree with them," she said. "I know I'm a better driver than most of the people who are driving today. At least nobody has to toot me out of the road. I stay on my side."

The 1919 model Mrs. Johnson bought with her own money and she has taken such good care of it that even today she says that she would not swap the engine for a new one. "I know I can depend on this one," she said.

"When the man came out to teach me to drive, we got in and I drove downtown and came home and he didn't give me a single instruction. In fact, he didn't open his mouth. Maybe he was scared to death. When we got back home he said, 'You can drive all right.' I thought so, too, so I've been driving ever since."

Being one of the first woman drivers, she admitted that she felt very daring to be seen out driving around in her own car. "I thought I was pretty smart," she said. "And I still think so because I've never had an accident. Of course, I've been hit two or three times—but it wasn't my fault."

Mrs. Johnson explained that she never tried to keep account of the gasoline she uses. "I don't want to know. I guess it's because I hate so to buy it."

Restored Sight Brings Friendly World to Youth

HOT SPRINGS, N. M., Dec. 4. (AP)—Julian Galindo, given an eyesight he never knew from birth, was a rollicking 12-year-old explorer today in a friendly world of light and color.

Surgeons have just removed darkening cataracts from his black eyes—already showing a hint of the sparkle which is to come—and Julian is overtaking the wasted years in hot pursuit of the more serious avocations of football, bicycles, dogs and the thousand and one matters vital to 12-year-old existence.

"See," he directed a friendly interviewer, "that's my house. I made it. Aren't those pictures swell? I'm going to get a football, too. . . . You told me, Mrs. Hoover. . . . Oh yeah, it's fun all right, 'specially with trains. Whada we do now? . . ."

Mrs. Adelina Hoover, supervisor of the out-patient service of Carrie Tingley Hospital for Crippled Children, drew a breath out of pure sympathy for her wriggling charge.

"He isn't wasting any time," she commented.

$950,661 APPROVED FOR GEORGIA ROADS

Contracts for 13 Projects Let, With Screven Offers Rejected.

Contracts for 13 projects, including one in Fulton county, at a cost totaling $950,661, were let yesterday by the State Highway Board.

The highway board threw out all bids on two bridges and 1.496 miles of grading and surfacing in Screven county because the figures were too high, W. L. Miller, chairman of the board, said. The projects in Screven will be readvertised and let later.

The 13 contracts let yesterday include elimination of four railroad grade crossings, it was said.

List of Projects.

The projects include:

FULTON COUNTY — An overhead bridge at the A., B. C. railroad on the Atlanta-Newnan highway, between Red Oak and Stonewall. McDougald Construction Company, of Atlanta. $19,601.42.

CHATHAM COUNTY—6.907 miles of widening and repaving on the Savannah-Brunswick road, beginning 0.6 of a mile south of Savannah and ending 1.5 miles north of Great Ogheechee river. Southern Roads Company, Birmingham, Ala., $188,288.51.

COWETA COUNTY—9.877 miles paving on Newnan-Griffin road, beginning near Central of Georgia railroad, approximately 3.5 miles east of Route 14 and ending at city limits of Senoia. Clausasen Lawrence Construction Company, Augusta, $93,501.37.

DADE COUNTY—6.319 miles grading and selected material surfacing on Chattanooga-Birmingham road, beginning two miles south of Trenton, extending 6.319 miles toward the Alabama state line. T. M. Strider & Co., Nashville, Tenn., $111,680.21.

DADE COUNTY—Widening two bridges and constructing two detour bridges on Chattanooga-Birmingham road. Martin Wunderlich Company, Jefferson City, Mo., $24,042.50.

ELBERT COUNTY—7.941 miles paving on Elberton-Toccoa road, beginning at intersection of State Route No. 36 and extending 7.941 miles toward Toccoa. W. L. Florence Construction Company, Powder Springs, Ga., $104,552.53.

HENRY COUNTY—0.541 of a mile grading, concrete paving and overhead bridge over Southern railroad on Jackson-McDonough road. MacDougald Construction Company, Atlanta, $61,300.02.

LEE COUNTY—2.708 miles grading and sand clay surfacing on Leesburg-Leslie road, beginning in Leesburg and extending 2.08 miles toward Leslie. H. E. Turner Construction Company, Bolton, Ga., $19,087.63.

Warm Springs Bridge.

MERIWETHER COUNTY—2.834 miles grading, selected material surfacing and one bridge on Warm Springs-Woodbury road, beginning at Warm Springs and extending 2.852 miles toward Woodbury. E. A. Hudson's Sons, Bolton, Ga., $35,522.06.

MUSCOGEE COUNTY—Paved approaches and an underpass at Central of Georgia railroad on Fourth avenue in city of Columbus. MacDougald Construction Company, Atlanta, $111,870.36.

POLK COUNTY—1.052 mile grading, selected material surfacing and one bridge culvert on Cedartown-Rome road, beginning 1.052 miles south of Floyd county line, extending 1.052 miles north. Hardaway Construction Company, Columbus, Ga., $36,033.71.

TALBOT COUNTY—Overhead bridge and graded approach at Central of Georgia railroad, approximately one-fourth mile from city limits of Buena Vista on Geneva-Buena Vista road. Interstate Construction Company, Nashville, Tenn., $22,757.85.

WILKES COUNTY—3.616 miles of grading, paving and widening two bridges on Elberton-Washington road, beginning at State Route No. 10 in Washington and extending 8.642 miles toward Elberton. W. H. Lovett, Dublin, Ga., $122,428.46.

PILOT WORKS BACK TO PIT, LANDS SHIP

Adjutant General Jumps to Safety.

PIKEVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 4.—(AP) Adjutant General R. O. Smith, of the Tennessee National Guard, jumped to safety in his parachute from an ice-coated plane in the Cumberland mountains near here today.

His pilot, Major Walter M. Williams, sighted a landing spot as he stood on the plane wing poised to jump, crawled back into the cockpit and landed the plane. The two were en route to their homes in Nashville from the Miami air show.

"Our plane became covered with ice as a storm closed in on us over Monteagle, Tenn.," said Major Williams.

"General Smith balled out and his chute caught in a tall pine tree, leaving him suspended about 15 feet from the ground. He dropped to earth without injury."

Major Williams said their last stop was Atlanta. They were in a two-place National Guard plane.

BRITISH POLICY

Chamberlain Prepares for Action in China.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(UP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was reported tonight to be preparing a statement of "decisive policy" for protection of British interests in Shanghai and Hong Kong, which will be submitted to the cabinet next week.

The statement of policy, undertaken as result of the last two days' developments in Shanghai, including the "victory march" of Japanese forces through the International Settlement, was understood to have been called for after consultation with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

BARNESVILLE, Dec. 4.—Joe C. Head suffered a broken leg this week when a limb of a tree he was trimming broke and he fell to the ground.

BRAZILIAN PIANIST TO PLAY IN ATLANTA

Recital To Be Under Auspices of City's Music Club December 14.

Guiomar Novaes, famous woman pianist from Brazil, will be presented in concert on Tuesday night, December 14, at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium. It will be the second in the artist series of the Atlanta Music Club, of which Mrs. Thad Morrison is president.

Madame Novaes is not only one of the most outstanding pianists of the day, but she finds the time and enthusiasm for the affairs of her native country as well as for her duties as wife, mother of two children, and housekeeper of her vast estate in Sao Paulo. Her husband is Octavio Pinto, whis is an architect by profession, but a musical amateur and composer of successful compositions.

Mrs. Novaes will open her program here with three sonatas by Domenico Scarlatti, followed by the entire "Sonata in E flat, Opus 27, No. 1," by Beethoven. The second part of the program offers "Variations and Fugue on a Theme of Handel, in B flat, Opus 24," by Brahms.

MINE DEATH TRIAL

Tenant Polishes Defense for Opening Tomorrow.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Dec. 4. (AP)—A tenant charged with kidnaping his landlord to settle differences over a "bouncing" check prepared himself tonight for appearance in court Monday to defend his life.

The trial of Arnett A. Booth, 46, for the abduction of Dr. James I. Seder, 79-year-old prohibition leader, was set to open with a prosecution demand for the death penalty.

The ace witness for the state, Dr. Seder, was missing. He died of exposure four days after being freed from an abandoned mine in which he was held captive.

Booth is one of three men accused of the crime.

Dorothy Parker's Mate Pays $202 As Speeding Fine

KINGSVILLE, Md., Dec. 4.—(AP) The magistrate-barber of Kingsville, who doffs his white coat for a black one while sitting on the bench in a corner of his shop, shaved $101.45 today from the bankroll of Alan Campbell, actor-scenarist husband of Dorothy Parker, author and wit.

Campbell, in better humor than yesterday when he went to jail rather than pay the fine against himself after paying one of $101.45 for his driver, Louis Bohlman, grinned during the hearing and paid the fine. His attorney gave notice of appeal.

Magistrate Harry D. Probert, who gets 35 cents for haircuts, 15 cents for shaves, and $1.45 costs for hearing speeding cases, found Campbell guilty of allowing his chauffeur to speed 70 miles an hour through a 25-mile zone, despite Campbell's pleas that:

He was on his way to Baltimore for treatment for an eye ailment, had put "drops" in his eyes, was wearing dark glasses, kept his eyes closed to avoid strain, and couldn't see the speedometer.

He had never ridden in the light truck before and didn't know "the feel" of it at high speeds.

"To test his eyes," testfied Sergeant E. S. Haddaway, who arrested Campbell, "I looked under the m's for oculists (when Campbell asked that he look up the telephone number of his oculist.)

"He said 'I think you'll have more success if you look under the o's.' Then he said he would call information for the telephone number. That's my case."

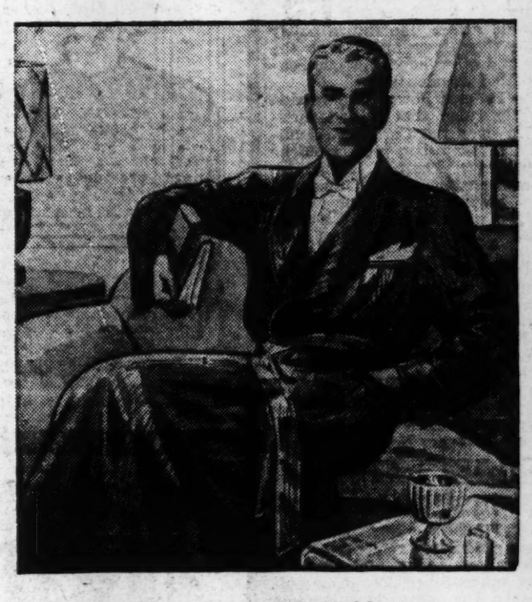

JURY FREES WOMAN WHEN VICTIM RELENTS

VERSAILLES, France Dec. 4.—(UP)—Madame Irene Schmeder, wife of a French manufacturer, was saved from prison late today by the gallantry of her former sweetheart, whom she shot in the back in a jealous rage as they flew in his airplane.

A jury acquitted the 31-year-old woman and student aviator on a charge of attempted homicide after her victim, Pierre L'Allemant, announced at the conclusion of three days of testimony that he was withdrawing his signature from the prosecution charges.

POLICE ARE ASKED TO SEARCH RIVER FOR 11 MAIL BAGS

Robbery From Postal Trucks Strangest in New York Crime History.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(UP)—Postal inspectors today asked the police to drag the East river and lower harbor for six bags of mail still missing after a $50,000 robbery—one of the strangest of its kind in New York crime history.

Chief Inspector James J. Doran said 11 bags had fallen out and one bag contained $7,000 in cash consigned from the Philadelphia Reserve bank to the Mt. Jewett, Pa., National bank. The rest of the loss included a piece of jewelry, valued at $400, and checks and securities, for the most part unnegotiable.

That a robbery had occurred was first disclosed to police by Peter Schieb, fishing for eels in the East river last night. His first catch was not an eel but a mail bag. Then he caught four more bags.

Postal inspectors disclosed that the bags had been part of a truckload which left the main postoffice last night for the Lackawanna terminal in Hoboken, N. J. The truck, its door locked and tested, stopped en route to the Hudson river ferry terminal just once—for a red light. It was aboard the ferry in the Hudson river before the attention of the driver and two guards, all armed, was called to the fact that the back door was open.

One thing was certain, the door was not jimmied. The conclusion appeared to be that the robbers had possessed a key.

RALEIGH TO FIGHT U. S. DAM DECISION

Hoey Declares Federal Claim of Jurisdiction Is 'Absurd.'

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 4.—(UP) Governor Clyde R. Hoey tonight termed the Federal Power Commission's assumption of jurisdiction over the proposed $6,000,000 Tuckertown dam project as "a clear invasion of the right of North Carolina to control streams within its borders."

Asserting the power commission's position "almost approaches absurdity," the Governor warned it would affect "the future policy on all rivers passing through the state and other hopes for our contemplated developments."

The Federal Power Commission recently ruled that it had jurisdiction over the Carolina Aluminum Company dam project on the Yadkin river because, it claimed, the construction of the dam would affect navigability of the lower Pee Dee river in South Carolina.

The Governor's statement said North Carolina "stands ready to render the Carolina Aluminum Company full assistance and support in its efforts to obtain a rehearing or procure an appeal to the courts."

"The whole matter is held up on the pretense of navigability of a stream so dotted with shoals and bars it would be impossible of navigation even if there were no dams," Governor Hoey added.

CHILDREN BREAK UP BRIDGE CELEBRATION

BALTIMORE, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Scores of children romped through police lines today and made a noisy snake-dance of a parade opening the new Twenty-ninth street bridge across Jones Falls valley.

Swarming over the driveway ahead of the official procession led by Mayor Howard W. Jackson, the children danced around two drum majors, separaed them from their bands and broke the ranks of marchers following them.

When police had shooed away enough youngsters to clear a path, the first automobiles crossed the span.

CHAPMAN TO ADDRESS ATLANTAN LIONS CLUB

Paul W. Chapman, dean of the College of Agriculture at the University of Georgia, will address the Atlanta Lions Club at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow at the Henry Grady hotel.

"Fact Findings in Georgia Agriculture" will be the subject of Dean Chapman's address. He is a member of the citizens' fact-finding committee which is assembling information on the state's resources and development.

ACE TECH END TERMED BEST SINCE HUTSON

Rimmer, Lumpkin, Chivington, Appleby, Konemann, Maffett Lauded

EDITOR'S NOTE—By agreement in 1928, representatives met in Nashville, Tenn., Thanksgiving evening and selected the 1937 All-Southeastern conference football team that would be recognized by the several newspapers. Those participating in the selection of the team were William McG. Keefe, Times-Picayune; Harry Martinez, States; Fred Digby, Item, of New Orleans; Bob Phillips, Age-Herald, and Zipp Newman, News, Birmingham; Fred Russell, Banner, and Raymond Johnson, Tennessean, Nashville; Jack Troy, The Constitution; Morgan Blake, Journal, and Ed Danforth, Georgian-American, Atlanta.

Reports of coaches and scouts as well as personal observation were the means of checking on the accomplishments of the players selected for All-Southeastern conference honors. The team selected this year was reached after exhaustive study of reports on the various players from every section of the conference and as fair an evaluation of their merits as could be made.

The 1937 phantom team, the committee believes, expresses the high caliber of Southeastern football this year. Six or seven teams from this section were closely matched and could have given any team in America a good game with an even chance of winning. Alabama, undefeated and untied, won the championship and the bid to the Rose Bowl, yet the Crimson Tide was hard-pressed to win from more than one southern opponent.

THREE TRIPLE THREATS.

The imaginary team as selected would have three outstanding triple-threat men, three great punters, four or five passers, two of the finest ends in America, a big rugged rush line, skilled in offense and defensive blocking, and enough weight to stand up in any company. Consistency and performance against hard opposition also were given great weight.

Eight of the 13 conference members supplied the players, indicating the widespread distribution of material. Alabama, Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech placed two apiece and the others one each.

For ends, the board selected Bill Jordan, of Georgia Tech, and Ken Kavanaugh, of L. S. U. Jordan was unanimous choice for one flank position and recognized as the outstanding man in his position in this section. For three years he has been a brilliant performer, both offensively and defensively. He has been the pivot man in Tech's famous razzle-dazzle attack that has thrilled thousands of spectators in Dixie. Jordan weighs 190, is 6 feet 4 inches tall, a wonderful pass-receiver and a natural-born competitor. He is the best all-round end developed in Dixie since Don Hutson.

KEN KAVANAUGH.

At the other end the board selected the sophomore pass-catching sensation, Ken Kavanaugh, of L. S. U. He weighs 194 pounds, is 6 feet 3 inches tall. Kavanaugh is potentially the finest end in southern history and a certain All-America performer before he is through. Vanderbilt players stated after their game with L. S. U. that Kavanaugh gave them more trouble than any Tiger lineman.

Kavanaugh has scored four touchdowns this season, three of them on forward passes. A 100-yard run with a recovered fumble against Rice was a high spot of a brilliant sophomore career. His other touchdowns were made on passes from Young Bussey. They were (yardage includes pass and run) 39 yards against Miss. State, 51 yards against Louisiana Normal, and 20 yards against Tulane. He has caught 12 of 29 passes thrown him by Young Bussey, for a total of 323 yards.

With Sims, Hartman, Kilgrow and Mayberry, the all-conference backfield tossing passes to Jordan and Kavanaugh, any defensive team would have a terrible afternoon.

Other fine ends in the conference were Jones, of Tech; Warren and Shoemaker, of Alabama; McElreath, of Vandy; Maffett, of Georgia; Wenzel and Frederichs, of Tulane, and Eldred, of Tennessee.

KINARD AND RUSSELL.

Frank Kinard, of Ole Miss, and Torrance Russell, of Auburn, known respectively as "Bruiser" and "Bo," compose a set of tackles that for sheer speed can hardly be equaled in major college football. Both are powerful and durable. Kinard is the perfect specimen, a 6-foot 2-inch fellow weighing 220 pounds. He has run the 100-yard dash in 10.4 seconds and that is easy to believe after seeing him tear around behind the line of scrimmage and nail fleet halfbacks for a loss on reverses. Kinard was on several All-Americans last year and his fine work his senior year is likely to make him a pretty unanimous pick. Russell, a junior, is not as large as Kinard, but at 199 pounds he is fully able to take care of himself physically. He is particularly effective in blocking on offense and has been a consistently good tackle for Auburn through one of the very toughest schedules in the country. Jim Ryba, of Alabama, and Eddie Gatto, of L. S. U., gave Russell a hard run for recognition, with Walter Rimmer, of Georgia Tech, and Bill Miller, of Tulane, getting some backing.

Leroy Monsky, Alabama's inspirational leader and 198-pound whipping guard, and Ed Merlin, the Vanderbilt 196-pounder, leave nothing to be desired in brilliant guards. Monsky rates as one of Alabama's greatest guards. He has speed, power and a mind quick to diagnose a play. Alabama's running attack functioned when he was in there to run interference for the backs. Ed Merlin has played great football for three years for the Commodores. He is a great battler and earned the tribute of being the finest lineman the Alabama Seniors had played against in three years. Many thought Merlin was the outstanding player in Vanderbilt's line in the Alabama game.

There were many fine guards in the south. Auburn had a fireballer in Ralph Sivell, Florida boasted of a fine saw-off guard in Frank Koscis. Tulane had a fine guard in Norman Buckner, co-captain. Lew Bostick, who was injured for three games, is another very fine guard, the type that could up-root a line. In Milton Howell the Auburn Tigers had probably the finest sophomore guard in the conference.

Unanimous choice for All-Southeastern center was Carl Hinkle, captain of the successful Vanderbilt team. He was considered one of the finest linemen developed in the south in the past 10 years.

A regular from his first game as a sophomore, Hinkle played 13 60-minute games in three years. Despite bruising tackles in his position of backing up the line, he never was removed because of injury. And he never was credited with a bad pass. Hinkle was an inspirational leader, a keen, heads-up performer rated by Ray Morrison as the finest competitor he ever saw.

LUMPKIN, CHIVINGTON.

Other first-rate centers were Lumpkin, of Georgia; Smith, of Tulane; Antley, of Auburn; Chivington, of Georgia Tech, and Hinklebein, of Kentucky.

Three of the four members of the backfield captained their teams. They are Fletcher Sims, quarterback, Georgia Tech; Bill Hartman, fullback, Georgia, and Walter Mayberry, halfback, Florida. Joe Kilgrow, halfback, did everything but act as captain for Alabama's Crimson Tide.

This backfield has everything. Sims, Mayberry and Hartman are exceptionally fine punters. All three are great defensive players and excellent blockers, as is Kilgrow.

Mayberry is generally considered to be one of the best running backs in the south. The Florida captain, playing magnificent football in every game, did it largely on his own. The 'Gators offered him a minimum of blocking and little protection on passes.

HARTMAN LAUDED.

Kilgrow is an outstanding runner, too, and a fine passer. The best passing back of the combination is Captain Sims, of Tech, however. He's considered one of the finest passers in the country. Kilgrow also can punt, although he isn't often called upon to display his talents in this direction.

Hartman, of Georgia, a great inspirational leader, started out as a fullback and finished his career as a quarterback. He came through with a great play in the Tech-Georgia game, running back a kickoff 93 yards for a touchdown. It was the first time that had been done in the series of 32 games, which started back in 1893. It earned a tie for an underdog Bulldog eleven.

There are other fine backs in the south who rate honorable mention, namely, George Cafego and Babe Wood, Tennessee; Raye Hapes, Mississippi; Bert Marshall and Jimmy Huggins, Vanderbilt; Harry Appleby and Marion Konemann, Georgia Tech; Ralph Brunner and John Andrews, Tulane; Pinky Rohm and Cotton Milner, L. S. U., and Charley Holm and George Zuvich, Alabama.

Here Is Sandy Sanford - - The Crimson Tide's $100,000 Field Goal Kicker - - In Four Rare Poses

Associated Press Photos.

- Sanford -

Gives Tide's Foes Jitters; Real Threat to Golden Bears.

By THAD HOLT.

A gentleman on the west coast, concerned with publicizing the Rose Bowl game featuring Alabama against California, as if the Tide's fifth appearance at Pasadena needed any emphasis, asked Coach Frank Thomas if he might inform the 85,000 fans who will pack the big bowl on New Year's if they should expect to get a glimpse of Sandy Sanford, Alabama's celebrated sophomore field goal kicker. "Yes," replied Mr. Thomas, "tell them they'll be seeing Sanford quite often."

Mr. Thomas is not only a keen student and masterful teacher of football, but he seems to be able to give the opposition an "Alabama complex." He gives them something to stay up nights worrying about. He reminded Vanderbilt that the Commodores had as much at stake in the Thanksgiving game as did his team; that Ray Morrison's eleven could gain a bowl bid if it won. He put all the pressure he could on the opposing team, so that it couldn't go into the battle with one of those dangerous devil-may-care attitudes which has upset so many favored teams.

THE PLOT THICKENS.

And now the cagey Mr. Thomas has started to work on the Golden Bears of California, ranked as one of the coast's great teams of all times. He wants them to think long and often of Sandy Sanford; to fear his mighty foot; to become so Sanford-conscious that some time during that game he will be able to shake loose Joe Kilgrow or Charley Holm for a touchdown run or one of his ends to snap the winning pass.

Alabama has been one of the country's most deceptive teams all season. It's handling of the ball, the invincible mouse trap play, the perfectly timed end arounds, good passing and fine kicking has run the opposition ragged. But California is apt to see an even more varied attack on New Year's. Mr. Thomas is not one to let such an opportunity pass him by. He realizes that in Sanford he has the perfect decoy. The Bears will expect the Arkansas threat to boot a field goal and Kilgrow will take that ball and run with it or whip a pass.

WHERE ARE WE?

When the big Bears come charging through to block Sanford's fake kicks, they may leave themselves helpless to Thomas' intricate running attack. All this would seem to give the Tide a mental advantage which they are likely to need. We do not contend that Sanford will not attempt field goals. But his presence on the field will make the rugged defense of Stub Allison's coast champions a little less poised. And sure.

Thomas related at the Birmingham alumni dinner Friday night how he secretly knew that Alabama would win the conference title this season.

"Back in 1933 and '34," he said, "we had a Jewish manager each season. 'Vell, this year we not only had a Jewish manager, but we had a Jewish captain (Leroy Monsky). This, of course, gave us the edge right from the start."

President Harmon W. Caldwell and Dr. W. O. Payne, faculty chairman of athletics at the University of Georgia, yesterday declared that the party who approached Frank Thomas regarding the position of head football coach at Georgia did so without authority. "No one has the authority to approach Thomas now," they said.

If Mr. Mehre's resignation takes effect, the athletic board will Tuesday name a committee to take the proper steps for obtaining a successor to the former Notre Dame player.

A GUEST COLUMN

By Jack Troy

Editor's Note—In the absence of Ralph McGill, today's guest column is written by Jack Troy, assistant sports editor of the Constitution

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 4.—The healthy condition of that red-cheeked kiddo, Minor League Baseball, is a most encouraging thing. But it makes it tough for a club that needs a star player or two.

Clubs can afford to be independent. They have money and don't have to sell. Operating expenses are in the bank and the baseball official who heretofore could wave a fat check and be assured of getting practically anything desired along the player line might as well forget it now. Money isn't talking.

Because of this situation, encouraging though it be, it is a rather nice feeling to realize the resourcefulness of President Earl Mann.

It is going to take clever manipulation to get the players the Crackers need. Clubs that have major league affiliates can get help without a tremendous lot of trouble.

But it's a lot different with the independently operated Crackers. They have to scuffle now for what they get. Says President Mann, "We'll get what we need or I'll play myself. That's a promise."

Organized baseball had its greatest season last year. And it appears headed for even greater things. Southern league officials confidently expect attendance to be around the million mark.

The brand of baseball to be seen will justify such attendance, of course. As usual, the other clubs are bent on stopping the Crackers who, more than ever, will take a lot of stopping. But, as President Mann says, if the players needed are not forthcoming, he'll play himself. That would be different.

GREATEST MINOR MEETING.

Milwaukee was host to by far the greatest minor league meeting ever held. There were 1,002 baseball men from every section of the United States and Canada in attendance. Some 400 others weren't registered.

This largely was because of the sound condition of the national game. The location helped, too. A centrally located city attracts more baseball people.

A year ago at Montreal, there was a fine gathering. There weren't nearly as many delegates as there were at Milwaukee. Significant, too, is the fact that there wasn't any talk of depression at the recent meeting. A year ago a lot of owners were singing the blues.

There is strong talk of holding the 1938 meeting in the south. New Orleans and Jacksonville are bidding for it and members of the executive committee, two of whom are Earl Mann and Dan Hill, will cast their votes for one of these two places rather than favoring an eastern or midwestern town, it is understood.

Such a meeting is good for a town's business and there is no little prestige connected with it. Either Jacksonville or New Orleans well could handle it.

Atlanta will be selected some day. And that some day may not be far distant. Baseballmen readily recognize Atlanta as the top town in the minors. They are always asking about the great attendance records.

BILLY BEARD OF FLOWERY BRANCH.

The cleverest gag ever pulled at a minor league meeting gave the south a lot of fine publicity. Billy Beard, one of the greatest black-face comedians some years ago, was brought from Atlanta for that purpose.

It happened at the annual banquet. There were 1,000 baseballmen in the great hall. The toastmaster was introducing notables at the speakers' table when Beard, sitting in the back of the room, leaped to his feet and said:

"Mister Chairman: I am from away down south in Jaw-ga. I have been at this meeting for three days and no one has recognized me. Instead of being at a minor league meeting, I might just as well be in Asia Minor. I demand to be heard."

Well, there were only a select few in the know, so to speak.

Crackers Announce Sale of Catcher Jim Galvin to Little Roc

St. Louis Browns Get Vito Tamulis

Chisox Continue To Dicker With Senators; 1938 "Little World Series" Assured.

By EARL HILLIGAN.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Major league baseball's trading cauldron continued to simmer steadily today with prospects that selling and buying of diamond talent would reach the boiling point when the American and National circuits open their annual meetings Monday.

Going into bargaining huddles which were well-rehearsed at the minor league meetings in Milwaukee, club owners, managers and scouts held "conferences" which added to the already bumper crop of "ivory" transaction rumors. For the most part, however, actual deals made today were of minor league interest, with the likelihood that the major David Harums would keep their ears to the ground and pens in pockets until the meetings get under way.

The St. Louis Browns, who figured in two of the three all-major league transactions, completed at Milwaukee, gave further indication they would make every effort to improve the club. They obtained Vito "Round Man" Tamulis, young left-handed pitcher, from Newark's Bears for First Baseman Harry Davis and cash.

TRAUTMAN ELECTED.

The American Association, which elected George Trautman president for three years during the minor league sessions, swung into its annual meeting by voting to use the Shaughnessy playoff system again in 1938. The International League previously had taken similar action and another "Little World Series" between the International and American Association circuits thus is assured.

The Chicago White Sox, who took part in the biggest piece of business at Milwaukee by trading three players to Detroit, continued in the market by dickering with Washington's Senators. The Sox, it was known, have offered Zeke Bonura, first sacker and hitting star, plus Lou "Boze" Berger, utility infielder, to the Senators for Joe Kuhel, first baseman, and Buddy Myer, second sacker. The Senators, however, are holding out in the faint hope they can trade Myer and Kuhel for Bonura and Minter (Jackie) Hayes, nimble White Sox second baseman.

MUNGO DEAL.

The Van Lingle Mungo deal continued "on the fire," with the Chicago Cubs and New York Giants known to be seeking the Brooklyn pitching ace. The Giants, however, are loath to part with Mel Ott, the little slugger who Manager Burleigh Grimes, of Brooklyn, thinks would hammer holes through the Dodger right-field wall. The Cubs are balking at giving the Dodgers their "lone" outfielder—Frank Demaree, with the result that Manager Grimes and Mungo, who don't hit it off too well, still are mates on the Flatbush crew.

Gerald Walker, the outfield slugger acquired by the White Sox from Detroit, stopped here long enough today to sign a contract for 1938 and predict "a big season for the White Sox next year." He expressed pleasure with the undisclosed terms before continuing on to Detroit, where he was well liked by the fans.

Little World Series Assured for 1938.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The American association voted today to adopt the same Shaughnessy playoff system for the 1938 season as was used in 1937.

The action was taken to insure another little world series between the winners of the International league playoffs and the association. The International agreed at the minor league convention in Milwaukee, earlier in the week, to use the same system.

This was the only action taken before the meeting adjourned to resume later in the day.

Other developments included: Newark, of the International league, released Pitcher Bob Miller to Kansas City, of the American association, on option. Miller was with Oakland of the Coast league last year.

Gelbert Released By Tigers.

DETROIT, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Charley Gelbert, veteran shortstop, was released today by the Detroit Tigers to Toeldo of the American association.

Hofmann To Coach St. Louis Browns.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(UP)—The St. Louis Browns announced the signing of Fred Hoffman, former Yankee and Red Sox catcher, as coach. Hofmann managed the Columbus South Atlantic Club to the pennant last season.

Hinkle and Monsky On Sun All-American

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The New York Sun, in its All-America football selections today, places two California players in the first team backfield, and, for the second straight year, rates Yale's Clint Frank as the country's outstanding player:

Golfers Make 3 Records Here

With the close of football, golf activities picked up and moved into high gear in a hurry Saturday afternoon with large crowds on all the courses.

Three outstanding achievements of the fall season were recorded at Capital City and East Lake courses.

The most unusual of all golf records was made at Capital City when an ace, eagle, birdie and par in succession were made on the eighth hole. The same record was made at Ansley Park last year. Only twice has this feat been accomplished in the south and it is unique in golf history.

Alton Irby Jr., sank a brassie shot on the 250-yard hole for the ace. His ball hit about 10 feet from the cup and rolled in. V. W. McKinney sank a second shot for an eagle two. Harvey Hill, a former University of Georgia golfer, got a birdie three and Roby Robinson, former Atlanta newspaper golf champion, got a par four.

Irby had a 31-35—66 and paired with Robinson, beat McKinney and Hill, 3-2. Irby and Robinson had a best ball of 61, 10 strokes under par. The ace was Irby's fifth.

Irby's card:
444-442-414—31
535-335-434—35—66

Yates Cards 64 At East Lake.

Charlie Yates turned in his best round on the East Lake No. 2 course with a 64 Saturday afternoon. Yates played with J. H. Irwin, secretary of the Western Golf Association, recently transferred here from Chicago, and finished all square with Tommy Barnes and W. D. Tumlin.

Barnes, former city open and amateur champion, had a 67, Irwin a 77, and Tumlin a 74.

A record crowd for the past three months played over the two East Lake courses and a record entry of 94 participated in the weekly blind bogey.

And a record of 38 golfers shared in the prizes.

First place went to T. B. Robertson, J. Michael, J. R. Wham, W. A. Rhodes, F. W. Rade, Cliff Curry, C. N. Elliott and Dr. C. L. Douglas. The winning score was 73.

Second place was divided among M. V. Brandt, A. J. Jones, E. S. Humphries, B. Barrett, L. F. Meng, C. G. DeNormandie, L. A. Scott, J. Robertson, W. E. Franklin, H. A. Hauptman, E. E. Lyon, B. M. Gatlin, J. H. Irwin, P. G. Hanahan, P. G. Lombard, W. R. Prescott, P. D. McCarley, S. M. Haw, W. D. Owen, Travis Johnson, J. J. McConneghey, W. P. Branch, A. C. Spinks, W. L. Markert, F. H. Witting, Bob Warwick, W. P. D. McDowell, A. Gomilla and J. R. Harris.

The booby prize was won by R. H. Massey.

Another of the weekly dogfites will be played on the No. 2 East Lake course this afternoon.

Entries must be in the golf shop by noon, so that play can start at 1:30 o'clock.

REAL PLAY WINS.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Real Play, one of the most consistent of the 1937 2-year-olds, added the $2,000 Biloxi handicap to her string of victories today when she carried the silks of the Southland stable to an easy triumph over nine other juveniles.

PETRELS OFFER FRANK PATRICK COACHING POST

May Return Next Spring To Accept Very Attractive Proposition.

Frank Patrick, star fullback of the Pittsburgh Panthers, and who very probably will assist his brother, John, at Oglethorpe University next year, left Atlanta yesterday for Pittsburgh after he had been offered a "very attractive" proposition by Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe.

After a conference with the president, Patrick said he would return to Atlanta next spring and the terms of the contract offered him would be "made definite."

Patrick was enthusiastic over the talk with Jacobs and said he would be back to help his brother with spring practice if "only for a week."

It is understood that the hiring of the Pittsburgh star, who graduates next spring, would be the first step in reviving "big time" football at the Buckhead school.

He would come to the school as backfield coach, an assistant to his elder brother who has worked wonders with inferior material and small squads for years.

Asked what he thought of Alabama's chances in the Rose Bowl against California, Frank replied:

"I wish Frank Thomas all the luck in the world, but I believe the Bears will be too tough for his team."

Patrick had previously expressed the opinion that California would defeat Pittsburgh if the latter were invited to play in the New Year's Day classic.

'BIG TEN' LIFTS BAN ON CADETS

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The faculty committee of the Western conference today lifted the ban against Army as an opponent of Big Ten football teams.

The members waived restrictions they had imposed because of the difference in eligibility requirements at West Point and the conference schools.

Illinois, which played the Army in 1934, led the move to renew competition with the Cadets.

The committee decided to postpone a decision on sanctioning a modified training table until its meeting in Columbus, Ohio, next May.

The moot subject of permitting Big Ten teams to engage in post season contests failed to come up for official consideration.

The committee approved raising the limits on the number of men to be taken on trips from 40 to 46 but stipulated only 36 would be eligible to play.

Army Grid Card Filled Until 1942.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Army athletic officials, while expressing satisfaction today over removal of further barrier to football relations with Big Ten colleges, pointed out that West Point gridiron schedules are already booked solid up to 1942.

Illinois, which played a colorful series with Army until it was interrupted by the Big Ten ban, probably will be the first conference college to return to the Soldier schedule. Several others have indicated their desire to play Army.

The differences between the Big Ten and West Point were a product of the historic Army-Navy break of 10 years ago. Navy demanded that Army lifit football competition of cadets with previous college varsity experience and broke off relations when the Military Academy refused to alter its policy. Two charity games were played before relations officially were resumed, in 1932, on the basis of Navy's abandonment of its original demands.

Army has long had a rule prohibiting plebes, the West Point equivalent of freshmen, from engaging in varsity sports, but thereafter permits three years of competition for its athletes, regardless of their previous college experience.

Welter King Weds Today

Barney Rasofsky-Ross, world's champion welterweight boxer, and Miss Pearl Siegel, of New York, obtained a marriage license at Chicago yesterday. They will be wed by a rabbi today in the hotel suite of Miss Siegel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Robert Siegel. Ross, who used the name of Rasof on the license, gave his age as 27, Miss Siegel as 25.

BULLDOGS TALLY SIX TOUCHDOWNS

Cate and Fordham Are Offensive Stars as Team Scrimmages.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 4.—The Georgia football team scrimmaged against the freshmen this afternoon, running up six touchdowns. The Bulldogs stopped Miami plays cold on defense.

Jimmy Fordham and Gus Cate starred on offense for the Bulldogs. Coach Vernon Smith, who saw South Carolina beat Miami Friday night, gave the frosh pointers on how the Hurricane ran plays.

Smith praised the play of Eddie Dunn, 185-pound left halfback, who is good both as a passer and runner. He also lauded the work of Captain Bob Masterson, end., and Lew Chesna, 197-pound fullback.

16TH S. C. MEET SET FOR FRIDAY

By BARTON PATTIE.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Revision of Southern conference regulations relating to financial assistance to athletes was foremost today among controversial subjects likely to be considered at the 16th annual session of the loop here next Friday and Saturday.

This debate-provoking eligibility matter was a contributing factor to the resignation of the University of Virginia in 1936 and has furnished major fireworks in the two preceding meetings.

Officials of the 15-member colleges have for the past week been studying proposals for changes in the conference by-laws but the nature of these changes has not been divulged.

Dr. W. H. Wannamaker, of Duke, conference president, said "there is nothing very important to come before the meeting."

The present rules governing scholarships and jobs for athletes and aimed to eliminate subsidization are a modified form of the widely publicized "Graham plan." These measures, sponsored by Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina, passed the conference by one vote at a special January session in 1936. Several teeth were extracted last December but most of the provisions of the original plan were retained over the objections of the four South Carolina members, Duke and Virginia Military Institute.

The conference now requires that all scholarships, loans and jobs within the direct control of the institutions be equally open to athletes and nonathletes alike.

Ernie Lain Leads Rice to 15-7 Win

Great Substitute's Play Gives Owls Victory Over S. M. U. for Southwest Title.

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Rice Institute's greatest "substitute," burly Ernie Lain, today scored the touchdowns that defeated Southern Methodist, 15 to 7, won the Southwest conference title and obtained for the Owls an invitation to play in the Cotton Bowl classic here January 1.

A 218-pound trouble shooter who never starts a game but who figured in 12 of Rice's 13 touchdowns this season, Lain gave a crowd of 13,000 a one-man show.

The Owls trailed, 6-7, when Lain got the "go" signal from Coach Jimmie Kitts late in the first period. Five minutes later he had passed and bucked Rice to a touchdown on the first play of the second period.

Early in the third period Lain personally took charge again and threw two passes to Frank Steen and Johnny Neece that netted 31 yards, crashed the line down to the four and blocked out a Methodist line surge as Jack Vestal kicked a field goal from the Methodist 13 that put the Owls ahead, 9-7.

The big halfback plucked off one of Jack Morrison's wild passes in the fourth period on the Methodist 21 and returned to nine, from which point he scored on three drives.

J. Curtis Sanford, president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, immediately tendered an invitation to Rice to meet Colorado University and its "Whizzer" White in the Cotton Bowl.

The victory today gave Coach Kitts his second conference title in four years.

Score by periods:
Rice	0	9	3	6	—18
S. M. U.	7	0	0	0	—7

Touchdowns—Rice: Lain 2. Field goal from placement, Vestal.
Southern Methodist: Belville. Placement point after touchdown, Belville.

Weekly Skeet Shoot Is Scheduled Today

The West End Gun Club, with grounds at Fort McPherson, will hold the regular weekly skeet shoot today beginning at 9 o'clock, with continuous firing until dark. Cakes and fruit have been provided by the club to be awarded to winners and runners-up in classes A, B and C.

No entrance fee will be charged and the competition is open to all amateur shooters. Spectators and new shooters will be welcome and no admission is charged to the grounds.

Rice Sent Bid To Cotton Bowl

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 4.—(UP)—J. Curtis Sanford, president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, tonight invited Rice Institute to represent the southwest in the New Year's Day game here against the University of Colorado.

Jimmy Kitts, coach of the Rice team which won the Southwest conference title with a 15-to-7 victory today over Southern Methodist, expected to give Sanford an answer soon.

Rifle Shoot Slated Here Next Sunday

One of the season's best rifle shoots is scheduled for next Sunday, December 12, at the Atlanta Rifle Club on Alabama street.

The shoot is open to any person and the match will be a 50-yard unlimited affair with five high sets of targets constituting each person's score. Highest possible score will be 500x500.

Prizes will be awarded winners and an electric hot plate will be given as top award.

TROJANS DOWN U. C. L. A., 19 TO 13

California Rally, Featured by 65-Yd. Pass, Falls Short; Lansdell Stars.

MEMORIAL COLISEUM, LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Seventy thousand fans saw the Trojans of Southern California defeat the Bruins of University of California at Los Angeles in a spectacular gridiron battle today, 19 to 13.

For three quarters Trojan power crushed the reserve-weak Bruins into the bottom of the Pacific Coast conference cellar but the Uclans came back in the final period to score two touchdowns on the miracle arm of big-footed Kenny Washington, negro halfback star.

Trailing 19 to 0, Washington fired a touchdown pass, good for 44 yards, to Hal Hirshon. Walt Schell kicked the extra point.

Twenty-six seconds later, on the first play after taking the kickoff, Kenny sailed a perfect spiral that traveled no less than 66 yards and maybe as much as 73 yards. Hirshon made the goal dash.

From the start, Troy's great quarter' ack, Grenville Lansdell, his blocking mate, Big Bob Hoffman, and Fullback Bill Sangster, ran the Bruins ragged.

Joe Cox, Wally Dusek Clash Here Thursday

Jack Dempsey was quoted recently as saying that Dynamite Joe Cox, the Kansas City wrestler, could whip any man alive in an "anything goes" battle. Fans who saw Cox chop down 255-pound Wee Willie Davis last week at the Atlanta theater are inclined to agree with the former world's champion.

Cox, ex-boxer and now a mat villain of the first rank, has been matched with Wally Dusek in next Thursday's main event. Dusek showed he was a topnotcher in his convincing triumph last week over treacherous Jim Coffield. He is big and fast and hard to hold and hurt.

Wee Willie Davis, despite the fact that he sustained a scalp wound that needed 12 stitches when Cox crashed the giant Virginian's head against an iron ring post, returns to the firing line Thursday. Davis says: "Huh, that's nothing. Up in the mountains Ma used to whip us if we came into the house complaining of little nicks like that."

Davis' foe will be the classy Ed Meske, Ohio champion and exponent of a fine hold which he calls the barrel roll. Meske is one of the best young wrestlers to hit Atlanta in many a day.

Jim Coffield, bad boy from the east, and Mike Strelich, Utah's buzz-saw, open the show.

RECEIVER SO TO DOC PROTH AT 'GOOD' PR

'Shotgun' Williams To Richards' Secon String Catcher.

Moore, 'Ole Hoss Remain Joble

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 4. Both Eddie Moore and Rig Stephenson, Southern leag managers with Atlanta a Birmingham last year, le the Windy City witho landing new jobs. Moore h designs on two AA job however. Stephenson ma retire from the game.

By JACK TROY.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 4.—Sal Catcher Jim Galvin to Little R was announced today by Presi Earl Mann.

Galvin, who becomes an A man, will be used as first-st catcher by Doc Prothro, who ways has liked the fight and s it of the rugged Irish receive

Galvin brought a fine pr Doc Prothro was in a spot w his ace catcher, Ray Thomps retired to become a policem at the minor league meeting Milwaukee.

It was quite a shock to D He knew that Thompson thinking about quitting the ga but he figured he'd play one m season.

That left him only with Cob a B receiver. And, knowing lanta couldn't use two A catche Doc made a strong bid for Gal and got him. Other clubs wa ed Galvin, who went to the hig est bidder.

THE "SHOTGUN."

The Crackers' B catcher for ne season is Dewey (Shotgun) W liams, a youngster whose spi and ability undoubtedly will i press Atlanta fans.

Williams played outfield and i field for Macon last season. T Crackers had him at the Panam City camp and farmed him out the Peaches for experience. has, as his nickname imples, great arm. And he has a wor of confidence in his ability.

Manager Paul Richards, hea ing that Macon wanted to make deal for Williams, promptly tur ed thumbs down. "Williams going to be the reserve catch on the Cracker club," he declare

The Crackers apparently a complished little at the min league meeting and they may little more actual trading at t major league meeting here, b there is no cause for alarm.

DEALS ON FIRE.

Two deals are in the makin and, while it may take time f them to materialize, the fact r mains that sooner or later the will be put through and t Cracker club then will be set.

"A lot of Southern league clu wish they were as well fixed a we are right now," Presiden Mann said.

The two deals that are on th fire involve a right-handed pitch er with a reputation and a right handed hitting outfielder.

Both species, as you may hav suspected, are almost as tough t find as Captain Kidd's burie treasure. Clubs that have play ers of the type the Crackers wan demand almost everything includ ing the Ponce de Leon bleachers

There is, as mentioned, n cause to worry about the Crack ers, however.

Connie Mack is coming through in the spring with a player o two. He wants to look over sev eral likely prospects in sprin training and has promised to le Atlanta have what they then need

President Earl Mann never ha let the fans of Atlanta down. And he is not going to start now.

WILL BE READY.

"Be assured," he said today "that when the bell rings the At lanta club will be in as good shape as the next one."

What the Crackers actually have accomplished to date involves sale of Galvin and purchase of Pretzels Pezzulli, a left-handed pitcher and "Colonel" Huston, a young second baseman.

On the surface, Little Rock, Chattanooga, Birmingham and Nashville accomplished a lot more good at the meeting than did the Crackers. This is but natural since these clubs had the benefit of being aided by major league clubs with which they work.

The Crackers remain independent, which may be the best idea. They get a little help from Connie Mack now and then, but they're not tied up with the A's.

It looks like a real race at this distance. Chattanooga is involved in a sink-or-swim proposition and Joe Engel is determined to have a winner.

VOLS TO BE GOOD.

Larry Gilbert is obliged to please his new bosses at New Orleans. Charley Dressen, returning to Nashville, already has spread the word that the Vols will be in the running. In fact, Dressen has been quoted as saying they'll win by 20 games.

He denied this at Milwaukee, but admitted he thought the Vols would be tougher than somewhat.

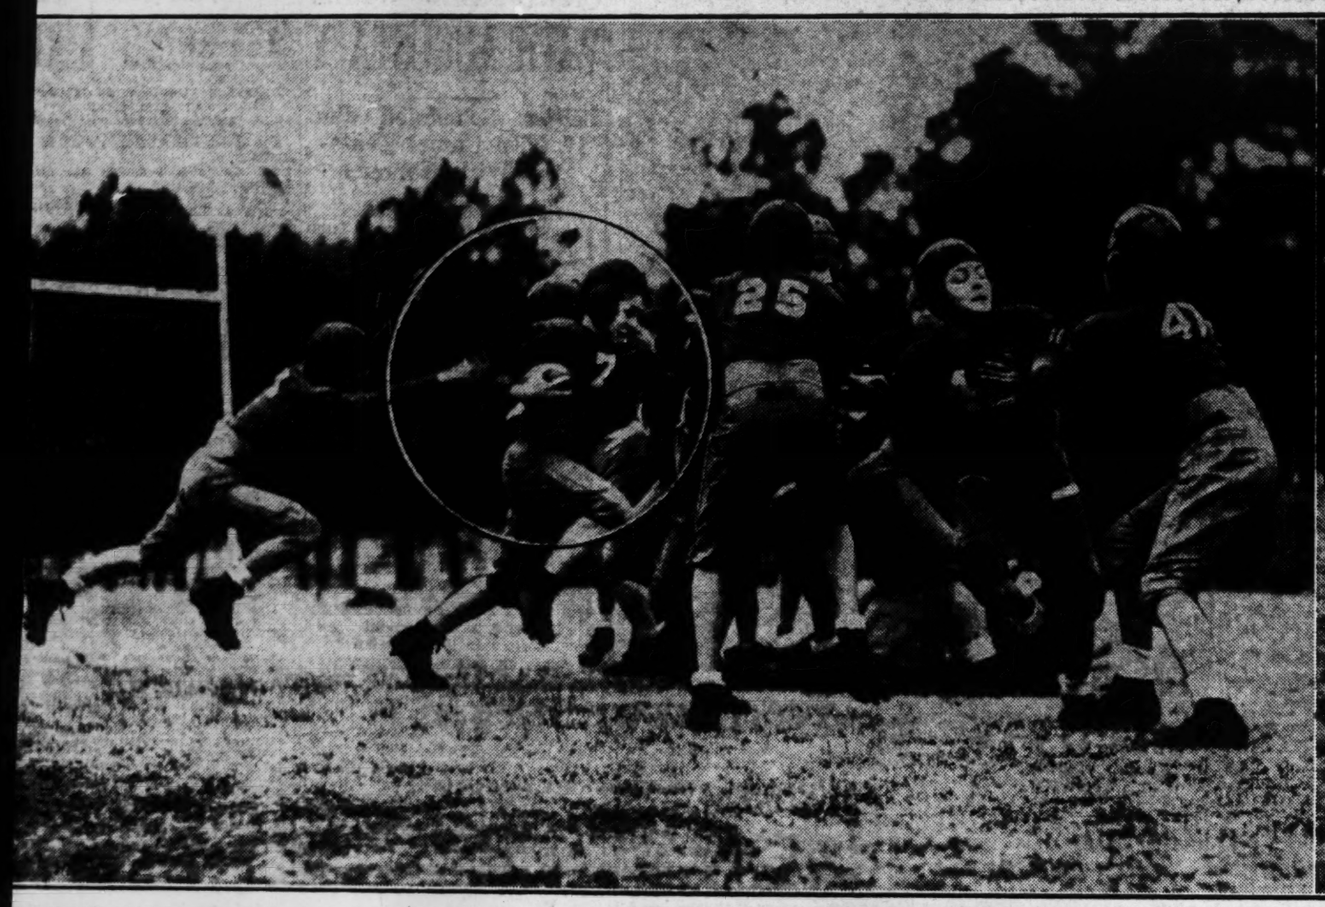

The other clubs aren't standing idly by, either. Knoxville expects to be improved. Doc Prothro, rebuilding his team, expects to have a contender. Birmingham also is looking for a better club.

Close competition should result. The eventual winner will know it has been in a fight.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 4.—(AP) The Portland baseball club of the Pacific Coast league today traded Harold Carson, right-handed pitcher, today for George Darrow, left-hander of Birmingham in the Southern association.

Gators Down 'Cats As Mayberry Stars

Florida Captain Gains 153 Yards; Leads Team to Third S. E. C. Victory.

By JOHN WILDS.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Florida cashed in on Ed Manning's 58-yard run today to turn back Kentucky, 6 to 0, in the season's finale for both football teams.

Closing out his brilliant career, Walter Mayberry led the 'Gators through 60 minutes of wide-open, rough and tumble play. Both teams set up sterling pass defenses and interceptions halted a number of promising advances.

It was Manning, Mayberry's substitute, who sparked the 85-yard drive to the lone touchdown in the third period. Kentucky had taken the kickoff and smashed deep into 'Gator territory after Vincent Robinson returned the kick 44 yards to the Florida 41.

The Wildcat attack bogged down on the 18 and the 'Gators took over the ball. On the first play Manning was dumped for a 3-yard loss, but he tore loose for 11 on the next try. From deep punt formation, he sped around left end, cut back across the field and almost managed to elude the safety man before he was slowed down and tackled on the Kentucky 16. Paul Delaney circled left end on a reverse for 14 more yards, then dashed over guard for the touchdown after two plunges failed.

KICK BLOCKED.

Manning's place kick for the extra point was blocked by Lawrence Garland, able end, but the 10,000 'Gator rooters were satisfied with six points.

Mayberry carried the ball 153 yards from scrimmage to outdistance Bob Davis, the Wildcats' high-scoring halfback, by 30 yards. A constant threat, Davis, never was able to break into the open.

Recording 14 first downs to seven for Kentucky, Florida outgained the Wildcats 224 yards to 112 rushing and 63 to 16 on passes. Five Kentucky aerials fell into the hands of alert 'Gator backs, while three of Mayberry's heaves went to the enemy.

Kentucky came back in the closing minutes with a determined rush—failing of a touchdown on one of the last plays when Robinson dropped a long pass from Davis on the 2-yard line.

MAULDIN, LOPEZ BATTLE MONDAY

Promoter Frank Bettis has matched Gentleman John Mauldin, Atlanta's own referee and wrestler, with the rough Mexican, Lopez, at the Spring Street arena Monday night in one of the main matches on the program.

Lopez has run rough-shod over all opposition since coming here, beating up referees and wrestlers alike. However with his undertaking to shellac Gentleman John this will be something else. Mauldin refused to referee his bout last week, stating he would watch the Mexican in action and then challenge him for this bout. The fans may expect plenty of action when this pair tie up.

Jack Bloomfield, the Jewish star, has been matched against Son Almand, former Atlantic Steel worker, in the semi-final bout. Almand has not lost a match since his return here from Florida. Both of these wrestlers are clean, scientific matmen and strength will play an important part as to the winner.

Mike Cassidy, known as the Omaha Terror, returns here from the western states. The promoter has him matched against Young Gotch, formerly of Miami, in the opening bout on the program.

The Spring Street arena is located at the junction of Spring, Peters and Garnett streets.

GRIFFIN MENTOR HAS FINE RECORD

GRIFFIN, Ga., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Three undefeated and untied teams in the last five years lend a high rating to Coach Dana McLendon, of Griffin High school, in southern prep school football records.

Two of McLendon's "perfect" record teams were produced in Beaufort, S. C., where his teams dropped only five games out of 60 in six years of competition.

McLendon's coaching record is 70 victories against eight losses. Only one of his teams during his career has lost more than one game in a season.

In his second season at Griffin, McLendon coached the school's first undefeated team. Griffin played and won nine games, scoring 324 points against 12 for opponents.

This year Griffin's team was declared co-champion of the North Georgia Interscholastic Conference along with Spalding High, also of this city. Griffin was not scored on by a N. G. I. C. team.

MONTAGUE FAILS TO GET GOLF BID

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4.—(AP)—John Montague, whose golfing reputation was deflated recently by Babe Ruth, won't be invited to the national match play open championship here February 9.

But the Babe, who conquered Monty in informal matches, will get a bid, along with 35 of the nation's top-notch players.

Montague, however, may enter if he chooses.

Frank Nibley, of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsoring the event, said "Montague won't be excluded. He simply won't be invited. Montague might be a great gallery attraction, but certain parties are not enthusiastic over him being issued a special bid."

Montague recently was acquitted of a robbery charge at Elizabethtown, N. Y.

Spalding Is Offered Purple Gridiron Date

GRIFFIN, Ga., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Spalding High school's undefeated football team, co-champion of the North Georgia conference, has been offered a place on the 1938 schedule of Boys' High, Atlanta, Coach Art Graves announced today. No decision has been made.

EMORY COUNCIL ABOLISHES GOLF

Emory University's Athletic Council this week abolished intercollegiate golf and adopted a new system of awarding "E's" for participation in sports.

High cost and the few participants was given as the reason for dropping golf. The school now has two intercollegiate sports—tennis and swimming.

Effective immediately, freshmen will not be given numerals as in previous years, but will be eligible to receive "E's." Under the new system sports will be divided into two classes—major and minor.

In major sports—football, basketball, baseball, tennis and swimming—a maximum number of letters was set.

For the minor sports—boxing, wrestling, track and fencing—"minor letters" are to be awarded. Students earning two minor letters in one year, or three in one sport during their entire college careers, will be entitled to "E's." All awards must be passed upon by the Athletic Council.

Senior managers of the various sports will again receive jackets, and junior managers will be given keys. The awarding of fraternity cups will be continued as under the old system.

In football, basketball and baseball members of the All-Emory teams get letters. In tennis, awards will be made to the five high-point men in the intercollegiate matches. Each man must have at least two intercollegiate victories.

Letter winners in swimming will be the five high-point men, with a minimum of 15 points.

Winners in each division of the boxing and wrestling tourneys will get minor letters. The all-campus fencing champion also earns in minor letter. In track, a total of 13 points, including the cross-country races, is needed in order to win a minor letter.

BOXING SCHEDULE.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Syracuse and Penn State will be among seven boxing foes of the University of Virginia during the 1938 season.

Orr Club Ends Season Before Big Grid Crowd

Green Wave Downs Purple Hurricane; Bluebirds Beat Red Devils; Army, Navy Tie.

By ROY WHITE.

Three sensational games, two deciding championships and anbther ending all-square, were played Saturday afternoon as more than 100 members of the Fritz Orr Club closed their annual football program on the Orr field.

The Army Yellows and the Navy Blues fought to a scoreless tie in the mite class, for players six, seven and eight years old.

A last minute touchdown gave the Green Wave a 6-to-0 victory over the Purple Hurricane in the Midget class, for players eight, nine and 10 years old.

Two fine reverses and a quarterback sneak, gave the Bluebirds a 19-to-7 victory over the Red Devils, and the title in the Giant class for players 10, 11 and 12 years old.

A record crowd, including the fathers and mothers of every player on the club, Coach W. A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech, Judge Virlyn Moore Sr., one of Georgia's first football players, and many others who have won fame on the gridiron, sat through every minute of the three games, so keen was the interest and fight on the field.

ARMY-NAVY.

The timer's whistle robbed the Army Yellows of a victory over the Navy Blues in the opening of the triple-header. Both teams fought for an opening through three quarters, and not until the last minute did the Army eleven threaten to score. A 40-yard drive, the only concentrated offensive of the game, gave the Army team the ball on the Navy's one-yard line and first down coming up, but time ended the game, before another play could be run.

Both teams played well, but the two defenses, except for the lone drive, were superior to the offensives.

The Bluebirds and Red Devils in the Giant class played the second game, with the Bluebirds winning 19 to 7. Early in the second quarter, Little Billy Appleby, captain of the Bluebirds, scored from the eight-yard line on a quarterback sneak, after Hampton Hume had passed 25 yards to Billy Black to place the ball in scoring position. It was Appleby's first run with the ball and caught the Red Devils by surprise.

REDS FIGHT.

The Reds fought right back and scored shortly before the half ended when Captain Jack Hook went wide around end. DeSales Harrison went around end for the extra point and the Reds led 7 to 6 at the half.

Neither team had a scoring chance in the third quarter, but in the fourth, Hampton Hume, on a perfectly timed reverse, and behind some fine blocking, scored from the 13-yard line. He came back late in the game on the same play for 12 yards and another touchdown.

RAZZLE-DAZZLE.

The Bluebirds gave the spectators a thrill late in the game with a perfect execution of the razzle-dazzle play. It took the spectators by surprise and caused Coach Alex to open up with a big laugh—and comment on how well the play worked.

The Bluebirds outgained the Red Devils 10 first downs to three, but only on the two reverses and a forward passing combination, Hume to Black, were they superior to the Red Devils.

Bobby Jones III, son of the illustrious golf star, played well at center on offense and tackle on defense for the losers.

Failing to get anywhere near scoring territory for three quarters, the Green Wave broke loose in the last three minutes of the game with a running attack which won the title less than a minute before the game ended. It was the only offensive of the game, and

JASPERS, TULSA BATTLE TO DRAW

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 4.—(AP)—A goal line fumble when a Manhattan touchdown seemed a certainty and the bottling up of Tulsa's passing attack spelled a scoreless tie today in the intersectional football game between Manhattan College and the University of Tulsa.

Halfback Victor Fusia was the victim of the goal line bobble that cost Manhattan a touchdown in the second.

It was first down on the Tulsa two-yard line. Halfback Harold Savage made a yard. Fusia smashed the left side of the line and as he hit a pile of players on the goal line the ball spurted from his arms and into clear. It rolled behind the goal line where R. Gregory fell on it for Tulsa.

Washington Defeats Dunbar High, 29-13

Dominating the game with the exception of brief intervals in the first and last periods, Washington High school, city colored prep champions, kept their unbeaten record intact before a good crowd at Ponce de Leon park Saturday afternoon, downing the Dunbar High school eleven of Lexington, Ky., 29 to 13.

The visitors, also previously unbeaten this season, got the jump with a touchdown on a neat pass in the first period, but Washington's razzle-dazzle boys began to click smartly in the second period and kept up the attack long enough to sew up the game.

Dunbar was bewildered by the intricate pass plays, and offered little resistance at this stage. They rallied, however, to put over another touchdown on passes in the final period. Neither team could advance the ball consistently with a running attack, but both passed well.

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 4.—(UP) The University of Arizona Wildcats crushed the University of Oregon Webfeet, 20-6, today in a spectacular football game.

Tennessee Swamps Mississippi, 32 to 0

Cafego and Harp Star as Vols Trounce Rebels in Cold Rain.

CRUMP STADIUM, MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 4.—(UP)—A trio of hard-running Tennessee backs—Walter Wood, Red Harp and George Cafego—ripped through an unsteady Mississippi line today to lead the Vols to victory, 32 to 0, in a Southeastern conference game.

Playing in a cold rain that made fumbles numerous, the brilliant Tennessee backs slashed off the tackles, over the guards and around the ends to score five touchdowns against a Mississippi team which flashed offensive power only in the first period.

Cafego scored two of the Vol touchdowns after sustained drives in the third period.

CAFEGO GAINS.

Putting the ball in play on the Tennessee 35, Cafego sliced off tackle for 37 yards and then passed to Hunter for 13 more to carry to the Mississippi 15. Cafego hit center for 7 and Harp made 6. Cafego plunged over for the score.

A few moments later Cafego and Harp took turns at carrying the ball to reach the Mississippi 3, from where Cafego went over a second time for the marker.

In the fourth period the Mississippi line gave way for two more Vol touchdowns. Sneed, a substitute back, plowed over from the 1-yard line for one and Harp circled end for 10 yards and the final marker just before the final whistle.

REBELS THREATEN.

Mississippi threatened twice in the first period when Parker Hall completed a half-dozen passes to Ward and Hapes to move to the Tennessee 15. Three line plays failed, however, and a fourth-down pass was incomplete.

Shortly before the period ended Hall completed a pass to Hapes that carried to the Tennessee 20 but the attack bogged down.

COLGATE STARS PLAY FOR EAST

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(UP)—Captain Red Chesbro and Eddie Lalor, of Colgate, were the first to accept invitations by Coaches Andy Kerr and Bernie Bierman to play with the All-East team in the annual Shrine hospital game at San Francisco New Year's Day, Dick Hanley announced today.

Hanley, former Northwestern coach, is a member of the selection committee, Bierman, coach of Minnesota's Big Ten champions, replaced Hanley as co-coach, with Kerr, of Colgate, this season but left the selecting to Hanley.

Chesbro is a tackle, rated one of the fastest in the country. He weighs 215 pounds. Lalor, 190-pound fullback, played virtually every minute of each game, gained 4 1-2 yards per try and backed up the line.

Major Lawrence (Biff) Jones, of Nebraska, and Orin (Babe) Hollinberry, of Oregon, will handle the All-West team.

scored in the second period when Herring intercepted a Mississippi pass and raced 40 yards across the goal line.

Score by periods:

Tennessee	0	7	13	12	32

Touchdowns, Herring, Cafego 2, Sneed, Harp. Points after touchdown, (place kick), Herring 2.

Warren Cagers To Play Chicopee at Gainesville on Wednesda

LUBY, WILLIAMS, BAGBY IN LINEUP OF 1937 CHAMPS

Team To Leave Next Sunday for South Georgia Games.

By ROY WHITE.

Warren's southern amateur championship basketball team will play the Chicopee five Wednesday night at Gainesville in the fifth game of the schedule, which will include some 40 games with the strongest opposition possible.

A series of games with the Olson Swedes, the Celtics, House of David and other outstanding teams touring the country is being arranged for early January.

Following a couple of games this week, Warren will leave Sunday night for a week's trip through south Georgia.

The road trip will open Monday night, December 13, against the Nehi Reds, at Columbus. The Columbus Manufacturing Company five will be opponents for Warren Tuesday night.

PLAY BLUES.

Wednesday the team will journey to Albany for a game with the Albany Blues. Thursday the team moves to Savannah for a game with the Jewish Educational Alliance and Friday Warren will play the Medicos in Savannah. Efforts are being made to play Mercer Saturday night on the return trip.

Work on the new Warren indoor arena, on Delta street, S. E., is rapidly being completed and a dedication game already has been planned for December 21 or 28, depending on when the arena will be completed.

It is the most complete indoor arena in Atlanta and will seat more than 4,000 spectators. It will be semi-convertible and can be used for other sports as well and through the entire year. It will be home of Warren's basketball teams and available for use for other sports when not in use by Warren's teams.

Ample parking space for some 500 cars has been provided for just south of the arena and traffic men will be stationed to direct the parking, free to the public.

NEW MEMBERS.

Several additions have been made to the team since it won the Southern Amateur championship last March on the Atlanta Athletic Club court.

Almon Williams, former Cracker and Philadelphia Athletic hurler; Hugh Luby, former Cracker second baseman, and Jim Bagby Jr., former Boys' High basketball and baseball star, and voted the most valuable player in the New York-Pennsylvania league last fall, have been added to the squad. And another outstanding player will soon join the team.

Joel Tierce, guard, and Mike Hudson, center, are missing from last year's team.

Ed Copeland, former Oglethorpe star, is a holdover center. Virlyn Moore Jr., the most valuable player in the tournament last year; Fred Bradford and Murray Witcher, are forwards.

GUARDS RETURN.

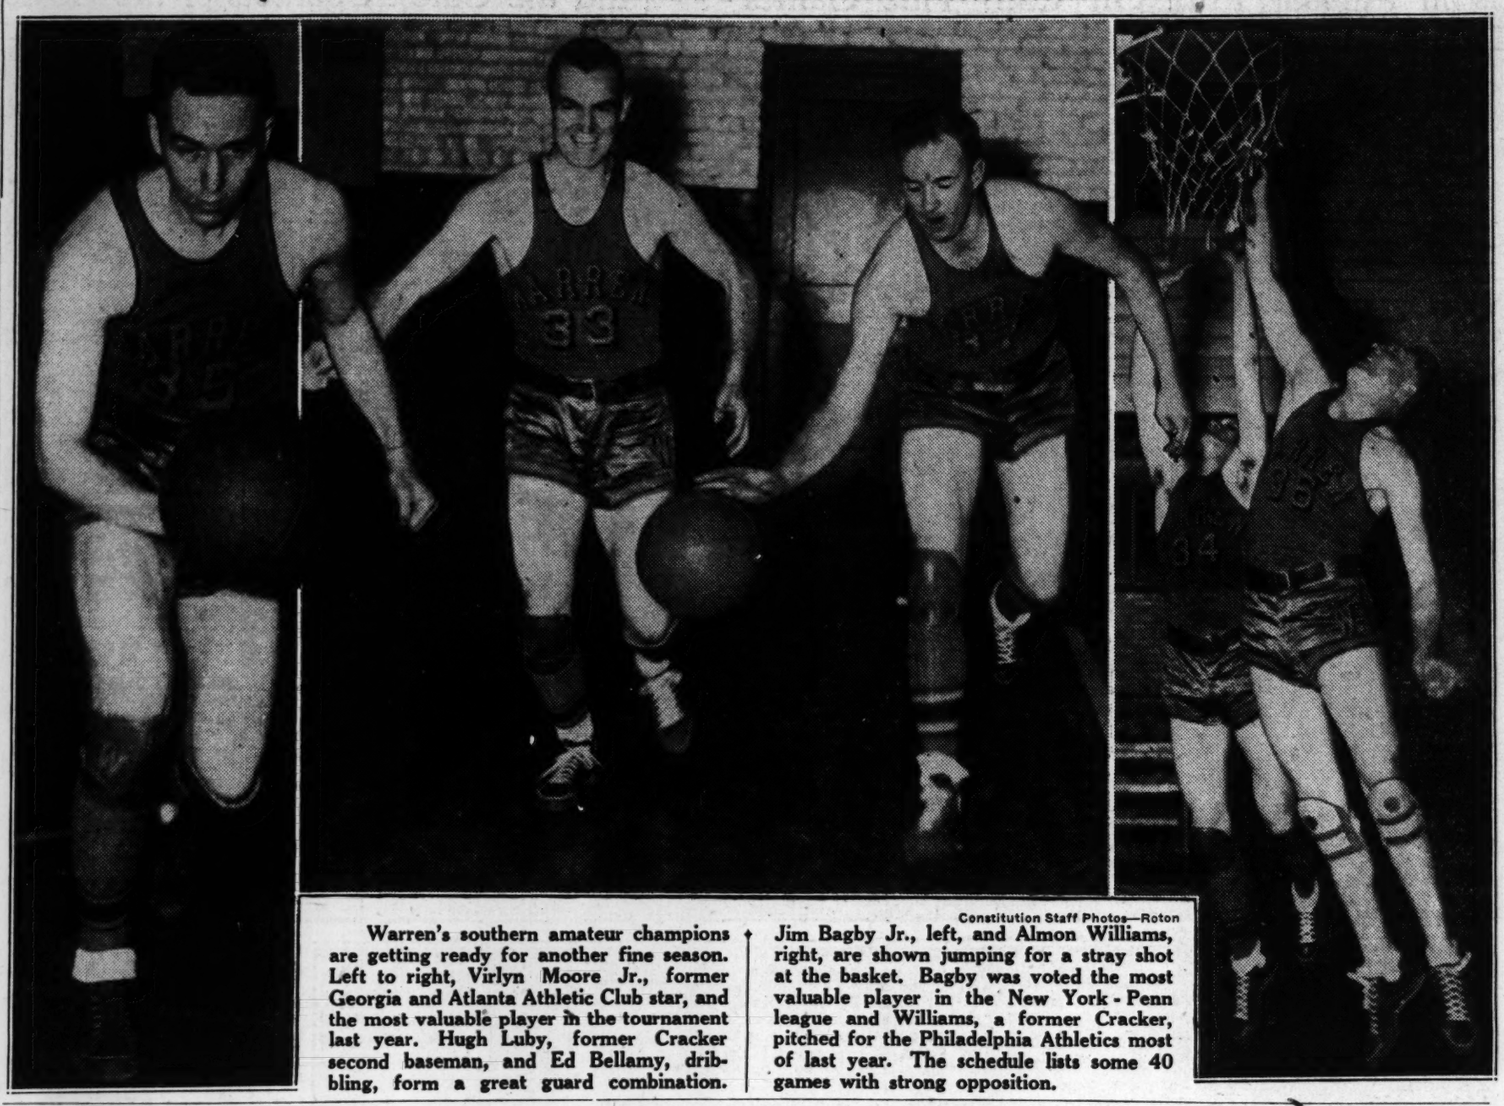

Ed Bellamy, Cherry Foster and Gene Warlick are guards from the 1937 championship team.

Luby plays guard, Williams plays center, and Bagby plays either center or forward.

Joe Bean, veteran Atlanta Athletic Club coach, has taken over the reins of Warren's team, and already it has beaten Peerless 30 points in Chattanooga. And Peerless won the big Textile tournament in which some 120 teams participated last March.

The complete schedule will not be announced until after the Christmas holidays.

Warren's southern amateur champions are getting ready for another fine season. Left to right, Virlyn Moore Jr., former Georgia and Atlanta Athletic Club star, and the most valuable player in the tournament last year. Hugh Luby, former Cracker second baseman, and Ed Bellamy, dribbling, form a great guard combination.

BREAK O' DAY

And one can well imagine the consternation and embarrassment that prevailed. Southern delegates blushed and made moves toward getting out of there. Hector Racine, president of the Montreal club, sitting next to Beard, got up and left the room. He wasn't doing it as a gag, either.

Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International league, was sitting next to Earl Mann, at the speakers' table, and he said, "If that uncouth person gets up again I'll throw him out myself."

The toastmaster finally got Beard down, but not for long. All the introductions had not been made before he was up again. The toastmaster waved his hands futilely and appealed to Judge W. G. Bramham. "Bring him up here and let him be heard," the judge finally said.

By way of introducing himself, Beard said he was from Flowery Branch, Ga., and for the next 30 minutes he entertained the delegates in hilarious fashion.

So relieved were the delegates, especially those from the south, when they realized it was just part of the entertainment that they were in a really receptive mood for the vast array of funny stories and gags Beard related in rapid-fire fashion for half an hour.

He stole the show. The baseball men will be talking about Billy Beard, of Flowery Branch, Ga., until they meet again. He was a sensation and he really gave the state of Georgia a lot of neat publicity.

LUKE APPLING IS TOPS.

It is nothing short of treason up here to suggest that any other shortstop in baseball has anything on Luke Appling, of Atlanta.

The White Sox star is very popular. And, while his hitting was considerably off last season from the season before, his fielding was better than ever.

He is regarded as the best fielding shortstop in the game. He's an idol of the White Sox fans.

YORK IS IN DEMAND.

Rudy York, of Cartersville, Ga., is much in demand because of his sensational work for the Detroit Tigers last year. The White Sox want him.

Mickey Cochrane is sort of on a hot spot because of trading off "Gee" Walker, a great favorite with the Tiger fans. But he is not thinking of letting another "people's choice" go.

York will catch regularly for the Tigers and they are looking for him to wallop a slew of homers.

York broke Ruth's record for one month during the last season by hitting 18 homers. He had a hard time breaking into the Detroit lineup, but once he made it there was no getting him out. That went for the rival pitchers as much as anybody else.

Atlanta and Georgia have made a great contribution to the national pastime, both past and present. A fellow named Ty Cobb and another named Nap Rucker, among many others, helped considerably in putting it on the baseball map.

Warren Plays Montgomery Today

Warren's Bulldogs, city and state sandlot champions in the 135-pound class will play the Capitol Heights eleven, from Montgomery, Ala., at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon on the Cherokee field. Admission will be free and the public is invited.

Warren last year won the southern sandlot championship for the 135-pound class and thus far is undefeated and untied in 11 games this year.

The Bulldogs have scored 238 points and have held the combined opposition to only one touchdown.

Capitol Heights won the championship of Alabama by defeating the Montgomery Owls by a score of 13 to 7. The Bulldogs succeeded in defeating the Owls 6 to 0. The game Sunday is expected to bring together two of the best sandlot teams in the south.

Osgood's Record Displaces Towns'

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Paul R. Jordan, chairman of the National Amateur Athletic Union records committee, announced today the committee had approved a new record of 14 seconds for the 120-yard high hurdles set by Robert D. Osgood, of the University of Michigan, last May 22 in the Big Ten outdoor meet.

The mark displaces the old record of 14.1 seconds held by Forrest Towns, of the University of Georgia. Towns still holds the A. A. U. record of 14.1 seconds for the 110-meter high hurdles, however. The 110-meter course is 10.7 inches longer than 120 yards.

29 Freshmen Get Numerals at Georgia

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 4.—Numerals will be awarded 29 members of the 1937 University of Georgia freshman football squad, it was announced today by Coach Jimmy Broadnax.

The following men will receive the awards: Rupert Blount, Woodrow Brown, Herbert Burgess, B. L. Kersey, Emmett Lyons, Lee McKinney, Forrest McCready, Allen Moore, Jack Matthews, Marvin Pittman, Joe Reid, James Skipworth, C. D. Slater, John Stegeman, J. D. TIDE ANNOUNCES 1938 GRID CARD

'Bama Opens With Southern California; Nine Games Scheduled.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide will end the present season and start the next on the Pacific coast, Coach Frank Thomas revealed tonight in announcing the football schedule for next year.

Alabama, meeting the University of California in Rose Bowl on New Year's Day, will face the University of Southern California next September 24 in the Coliseum at Los Angeles, just 14 miles from the Pasadena bowl.

The Southern California game will be the first ever played between the two schools.

Southern California will supplant George Washington and North Carolina State will take the place of South Carolina. Other foes for next year were met this season, including six Southeastern conference rivals.

THE SCHEDULE.

September 24—Southern California at Los Angeles.
October 1—Howard College, here.
October 8—N. C. State, Birmingham or Tuscaloosa.
October 15—Tennessee, Birmingham or Tuscaloosa.
October 22—Sewanee, here.
October 29—Kentucky at Lexington, Kentucky.
November 5—Tulane at Birmingham.
November 12—Georgia Tech at Atlanta.
November 24—Vanderbilt at Birmingham.

THOMAS SPEAKS AT P. C. BANQUET

CLINTON, S. C., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Approximately 200 sports writers, coaches and football players are expected to attend the Jacobs blocking trophy banquet at Presbyterian College Tuesday night.

Frank Thomas, University of Alabama coach, and Edwin Camp, Atlanta sports writer, will speak.

Leroy Monsky, Alabama guard, will receive the Southeastern conference blocking trophy; George Watson, North Carolina halfback, will receive the Southern conference trophy, and Don Willis, Clemson fullback, will receive the South Carolina state award. The three were voted by sports writers and coaches as the best blockers in their circuits.

William P. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian College and donor of the trophies, will make the awards.

ROSE BOWL CHATTER

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 4.—(AP) A shout of approval went up from the majority of Pacific coast sports editors and writers, on the choice of Alabama's Crimson Tide to oppose California's Golden Bears in the Rose Bowl classic New Year's Day.

However, from several coast scribes came suggestions that another team may have been a better choice.

Here's what the coast had to say:

Bill Leiser, associate sports editor, San Francisco Chronicle—No matter how strongly they're rated at home, the Crimson Tidemen when they land in strange (northern) country in front of 100,000 strange fans, always hit emotional and mental peaks that make them well near unbeatable. California has a job on her hands. It is obvious that California wanted Dartmouth and Minnesota. These two couldn't play. Alabama always was first choice among California officials, of the three available teams—Alabama, Pitt and Fordham.

Harry Smith, sports editor, San Francisco Chronicle—Personally I would have preferred Pittsburgh or Fordham. Alabama has a good team but I would rather have seen one of the others.

Art Cohn, sports editor, Oakland (Cal.) Tribune—Well, anyhow it follows the Rose Bowl formula: When in doubt, invite Alabama. In keeping with California's intention of choosing an opponent of like academic and athletic ideals, the marvel of it is it took Graduate Manager Kenneth Priestley only eight days to find a team with such ideals. At least now we know what California's standard of comparison is. They tell me Fordham's graduate manager waited by the telephone for the bid. It appears Fordham's telephone wasn't out of order but that Fordham was.

George M. Varnell, sports editor, Seattle Daily Times—And thus the Crimson Tide from Tuscaloosa becomes the leading team in the country, outside the Pacific Coast conference in the number of visits to the Rose Bowl, five. Incidentally, an Alabama team has yet to feel the sting of defeat in Rose Bowl competition. Three victories and a tie stand on the Crimson Tide record.

C. R. Stark Jr., sports editor, Spokane, Wash., Spokesman-Review—Alabama is the logical choice in an illogical season. I didn't believe California would follow logic, but now they have a bang-up, knock down and drag out fight as indicated.

Dan Walton, sports editor, Tacoma News-Tribune—I think the Alabama-California game is the best of the proposed contests. It should be a close game. Fordham's team is good, but its record indicates it is primarily a defensive team and would not give California as interesting a game as Alabama.

Herb Ashlock, Spokane (Wash.) Chronicle—It's too bad Coach Frank Thomas and his boys must defend their spotless Tournament of Roses record against the Golden Bears, whose gridiron profits come from either land or air. People weren't surprised when Alabama received the bid. And everybody likes the right kind of a surprise once in a while.

Bill Henry, Los Angeles Times—Well, the Crimson Tide licked Washington once, Washington State once, and Stanford, and then, for good measure tied Stanford, so perhaps it's a good thing to have somebody else take a crack at 'em on behalf of the coast conference. If the Tide fails to give us a good game in the Bowl, it'll be their first flop in five trials.

George Bertz, sports editor, the Portland Journal.—In selecting Alabama as its opponents for the Rose Bowl game, California did not pick an easy mark. The Crimson Tide is in my estimation a well-balanced club, capable of straight and open football and will give the Bears a real test.

L. H. Gregory, sports editor Portland Oregonian.—It's okay by me. Ought to be a grand game. Alabama never sent anything weak to the Rose Bowl.

Sid Ziff, sports editor, Los Angeles Evening Herald and Examiner.—Alabama had the best record of any major team in the United States and therefore was entitled to be selected for the Rose Bowl. But somehow, I feel a bit saddened that the bid did not go to Fordham. It's just because they wanted it so much.

Jack James, Los Angeles Examiner.—Frank Thomas and his boys are only too pleased to come, without question. Rose Boyl trips are becoming quite traditional on that campus. This will be their fifth start—a record surpassing that of any other outfit throughout the land. And be assured of this, in case you've any lingering doubts, such as some of us entertained regarding Pitt last year—those boys will put up a ball game! A winning ball game, chances are. You know, they've never been defeated at Pasadena yet—and probably have no intention of breaking that continuity on this occasion. As for confining their schedule to teams in their own part of the country—whom did California challenge outside the Coast conference? California Aggies and College of Pacific! So let's not go looking for any motes in the neighbors' eyes on that score!

So welcome to our midst, Alabama! And that goes double for your personable Mr. Thomas. We haven't forgotten you (and his) Howell-to-Hutson combination and will be looking forward to more of the same.

Tom Akers, San Diego, Cal., Tribune.—Alabama enters the Rose Bowl this time something of a popular choice, in spite of the fact that the Golden Bears have come through with flying colors in the Pacific Coast conference, a powerful, resourceful, game team. Certain it is that the game in Pasadena holds out certain promise of being something more than just another football contest.

Orange Bowl Squad Named by Bachman

EAST LANSING, Mich., Dec. 4. (AP)—Coach Charley Bachman announced today that he would take 41 of his Michigan State College football players to the Orange Bowl in Miami, Fla., where State is scheduled to play an as yet undisclosed opponent on New Year's Day. The squad is the largest that the Spartan coach has taken with him this season.

Bachman said the team will leave December 21 and will work out for two days on the University of Florida field at Gainesville, where Bachman coached before coming to Michigan State.

J. P. C. WILL OPEN CARD NEXT WEEK WITH AUGUSTA Y

Celtics Scheduled Jan. 17, Two Games Tentative With Warren..

By MELVIN PAZOL.

Hopes of a championship team at the Jewish Progressive Club this year rest on the accurate shooting of Barney Medintz, All-Big Ten guard at Northwestern, who is the only addition, and the rapid rounding into form of several of the younger players from last year's squad.

The Pryor street five will open their 1937 schedule with the Augusta Y. M. H. A. as foes a week from tonight.

Coach Shep Lauter, starting his third year at the helm of the J. P. C., will have at his disposal every member of last year's varsity squad, excepting Kaufman, a guard. In the two years Lauter has been with the J. P. C., his teams have not lost a scheduled game with an amateur team. Last year they were taken in the Southern invitational tournament, which meet they won the year before.

ALL PLAYERS RETURN.

Players returning are Benny (Pony) Minsk, veteran guard who is starting his ninth year at the age of 23; Gordon (Gabby) Greenberg, guard; Morris (Kitty) Katz, forward; Hyman (Little Kitty) Katz, forward; Henry (Steve) Browdy, center; Manuel (Happy) Ginsberg, forward; Emanuel (Koob) Kulbersh, a youngster who is looking great in practice at guard; Elliot (Angel) Rubin, guard, and Nathan (Right) Leff, guard.

Team Manager Meyer Balser directed letters to every major southern college squad in an attempt to arrange a well-balanced schedule. Tech, Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Furman have refused to schedule a game. Games have largely been secured with the Y. M. H. A. clubs of Augusta, Birmingham, Mobile, New Orleans and Knoxville, and Peerless Mills, of Chattanooga, and Union College, of Barbourville, Ky. The New Orleans game will be played there during Mardi Gras on March 2.

TWO WITH WARREN.

A home-and-home series has been arranged with Warren, bitter rival of the past few years, but no dates have been decided upon. Games are tentative with Canton Indians, Columbus Manufacturing Company, Nehi Bottlers, Savannah Medicos, Albany Y, Chattanooga Y, Chattanooga Jubs, The Citadel, Mercer, University of Chattanooga and Oglethorpe. Any team desiring games is asked to write or call Meyer Balser.

The Celtics will be met here on January 17.

The J. P. C. Reds, who are being coached by Buster Herman, will play a preliminary game on opening night with the Nordau five. Joe Moret is manager of the Reds.

A complete new squad, with the exception of Perry Rubin, is out for the Red team.

ORR CLUB ENDS GRID CAMPAIGN

the only scoring chance for either club.

The drive started on their own 45-yard line. Bobby Ingram got away for a nice 15-yard gain. Bobby Strickland followed with another 15-yard gain, both on wide sweeping end runs. A first down was made on short gains, and then Bobby Strickland went wide around right end for eight yards and a touchdown. The point was missed, and the game ended three plays later.

The lone touchdown drive enabled the Green Wave to outgain the Hurricanes, six first downs to four.

Sideline activities were as interesting to some spectators as the football games, for a group of the youngsters went to the south end of the field and began riding and playing with their goats and Shetland ponies. Another group was in the barnyard south of the field, with goats and ponies.

8:40—Genuine Parts vs. Polk Mu Shop.

Beck and Gregg will challenge Sou ern Business University supremacy the Atlanta league Thursday night what looks as though it would be best game on the program. Beck a Gregg is a newcomer and has played one game which was lost to Polk Mu Shop by a one-point margin. This really no test of their strength and S. B. U. outfit will be able to definit assign them to their place in the leag standing.

Sons of Pericles plays Techwood A. In the opener, and this looks like second best attraction on the card. Th have the same percentage in the stan ings column, and Techwood has but slight edge on the Pericles outfit.

All players are urged to be rea to play at the time specified so t schedule can be maintained.

GARNER LEADING LADIES' PIN LOOP

Individual and team competition is humming in the bowling leagues this season, with the rivalry keener and the scores closer than in any previous season.

In the Ladies' Commercial league, Sarah Garner is topping the list in individual average with a count of 105 for the 29 games that she has bowled in this pin loop with her Atlanta Paper Company team. Her teammate, Bebe Bangert, is runner-up with an average of 104.

Two teams are tied for the lead, Atlanta Paper Company and Ansley Hotel, with the other teams close enough to the leaders to make the competition keener than ever before.

The Passenger Club league has Charlie Williams topping the list with one of the highest individual averages to be held in this league, at this stage of the season. Williams is clipping the pins from their respective positions to the tune of a 109 average.

In the Federal league, a three-way tie exists for first place among the teams. Procurement, Construction and Operations are in the deadlock for the lead and the competition from this point until the end of the half will be "hot."

L. B. Outler's 116 takes top honors among the bowlers in individual performance. Others who are making good headway toward besting the 100 mark are Charlie Ross, 108; Troy Nabers, 104; John Conyers, 100; J. MacDaugall, 102; Wallen, 103; George Vogel, 104; Kelly B. Heffner 105; Brown, 100; Bergman, 100; Bridges, 103; Heard, 101; Ray Hutchins, 106; Allen, 100; Frazier, 103; Goodson, 100, and Wynne, 104.

Bill Hargrove, of the Gulf Pride team, topped the Gulf Oil league bowlers in a five-game handicap sweepstakes on the downtown alleys Saturday afternoon with a count of 601 for his five games.

Christine Bishop had the winning total in the ladies' event with an even 500 for her five games which included a handicap of 40 pins.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—trength of industrial specialties ept the stock market on the up-ade today despite the usual week nd selling and a variety of switch-g operations.

Dealings were slow throughout nd for the wee! the transfer ag-regate was the smallest for any imilar period since early Septem-er.

Favored farm implements, build-ng materials, chemicals and other miscellaneous issues got up around to 6 points at the best, but most nded under top marks for the day nd there was a sizable assortment f losers at the close.

The Associated Press average of 0 stocks registered its third suc-essive gain. It was up .2 of a point t 46.7. At the same time the turn-over was the most meager in three weeks, amounting to 566,970 shares compared with 1,141,230 last Sat-urday.

The machinery group apparently reflected revised hopes congress will put through the much-debated farm bill to expand rural purchas-ing power. Construction material shares continued under the stimu-lus of the administration's housing program.

Although steels were among the best net performers of the day, they tagged behind the rest of the list today on indications next week's production rate would reg-ister another decline.

Spot news, on the whole, was without particularly motivating qualities this week, but speculative forces generally turned to the buy-ing side on the theory the lengthy slide in stocks may have discount-ed business recession and that a trade comeback in the early part of the year was more than likely.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.
Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, middling f. o. b. 8.60.

AVERAGE PRICE.
NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—(AP) The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 7.88 cents a pound. The average price for the past 30 market days was 7.89 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Cotton eased today under hedge selling and liquidation. March declined from 7.98 to 7.91 and closed at the low with final prices 4 to 7 points net lower.

The market opened unchanged to 4 points lower in quiet trading. Buying was limited principally to trade account. Late in the session a little foreign buying appeared but contracts were supplied by week end hedge selling. Dull conditions were reported from the cotton goods markets where sales for the week were estimated at about 10 per cent of the week's production.

The Commodity Credit Corporation reported that 3,077,576 bales had been pledged to the 1937 loan program through Thursday. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance was estimated at 168,000 bales, against 252,000 last year and 208,000 two years ago.

Foreign interest here was small and mixed. Although orders from abroad seemed to be on the buying side on balance, Bombay was credited with selling here. Some commission house offerings also appeared.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON DECLINES 6-9 POINTS

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Week-end liquidation and hedge selling softened cotton prices here today and the market closed steady at net declines of 6 to 9 points.

Prices were on the downgrade through the short session although at no time was trading more than moderate. The approaching government forecast and uncertainty over the farm bill checked enterprise and restricted business to evening up transactions.

Port receipts 24,894; for week 24,894; for season 5,114,348. Exports 56,638; for week 56,638; for season 2,743,367. Port stocks 3,230,064. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 133,192; last year 226,010. Spot sales at southern markets 21,184; last year 24,515.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The price of wheat made little change today in a quiet, desultory market which lacked leadership.

Prices fluctuated within a range of scarcely more than a cent a bushel, bobbing at times as much as 3-4 cent above Friday's close, then falling back 3-4 below and closing 1-4 lower to 1-4 higher.

The wheat market was under the pressure of persistent profit-taking sales, but firmness in securities and estimates of around 300,000 bushels export sales of North American wheat, including 125,000 bushels of Pacific coast grain to Norway, helped keep the market steady. Some traders, however, expressed disappointment at the export volume overnight.

A decline of 1 1-4 to 1 3-8 cents in Liverpool wheat was reflected only partially here, being offset by an advance of 1-8 to 1 1-8 at Buenos Aires.

Corn prices advanced fractionally and were higher most of the session. Export sales were estimated at 300,000 bushels. Some traders expressed belief farm offerings would tend to decrease because of better returns for corn when fed to livestock.

IRREGULAR TRADING NOTED ON CURB LIST

Market Subject to Cross Currents With Price Swings Uneven.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The curb market was subject to cross currents today and closing prices were mixed within a fractional range.

A little higher were American Gas & Electric at 29 1-4, Hecla Mining at 10 7-8, Molybdenum at 6 3-8 and St. Regis Paper at 3 7-8.

Humble, off a point at 62, led a downward drift in the oils. Gulf closed at 38 1-4, off 3-4. Aluminum Company yielded 1, while American Cyanamid "B," Fisk Rubber and Niagara Hudson Power met support after fractional losses.

Transactions totaled 112,000 shares against 186,000 last Saturday.

LINT BODY STUDIES NEW CLASSING PLAN

Decentralizing Activities Places More Responsibility on State Groups.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—(UP) Directors of the American Cotton Co-operative Association have under consideration a suggestion for further decentralizing its activities, placing more of the responsibility back on subsidiary state organizations, it was learned tonight.

Decentralization Proposal.

E. F. Creekmore, vice president and general manager of the ACCA, revealed the decentralization proposal—made in a letter to directors last August—in a statement denouncing the Cotton Trade Journal for publishing a story today saying that he had recommended dissolution of the ACCA.

Changes have been made for years, it was explained, when members had ideas which they thought would work better. In that way the Federal Farm Credit Administration began loaning funds directly to state organizations instead of only to the parent ACCA. The state organizations then dealt directly with the farmers.

Two or three years ago the North Carolina organization took over all handling of the cotton placed in that association—grading, buying and selling it to the mills. The same plan has been growing in Georgia and South Carolina.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

'The Awful Truth' on Rialto Screen Drawing Throngs in Its Third Week

Now in its third week at the Rialto theater, "The Awful Truth," with Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, continues to play to capacity audiences. This latest romantic comedy from the Columbia studios has taken its place with that growing list of smash hits which have been the sensation of the film world for several years.

Irene Dunne is even cleverer and funnier in "The Awful Truth" than she was in "Theodora Goes Wild," while Cary Grant repeats, and probably surpasses, the excellence he displayed in "Topper." Other outstanding members of the cast include Ralph Bellamy, who turns in a new, comedy type of performance marvelously well, Cecil Cunningham, Molly Lamont, Robert Warwick, Mary Forbes, etc.

There is another vitally important comedian, the wire-haired terrier remembered so delightfully from "The Thin Man." The canine star this time is "Mister Smith," the pet over which the divorcing couple wage their bitterest fights.

The story, scenarioed by Vina Delmar, is brilliant in dialogue and riotous in situations. It is the love story of a married couple, after the legal separation. Each wants to "make up" but doesn't want to "lose face" and their antics and schemings provide enough fun for a half a dozen ordinary films.

Leo McCarey both directed and produced for Columbia. He has come to front in recent months as one of the top-ranking half dozen among Hollywood's directors and there is no one who can now surpass him for modern comedy.

Just how long "The Awful Truth" will remain at the Rialto theater is unknown. During the two and a half weeks it has already shown there has been an increase, rather than a let-down in the crowds who have thronged the box office.

Carole Lombard and Fredric March Panic Film Fans at Loew's Grand

A beautiful girl, doomed to die, comes to Broadway to spend her last days amid the gaiety and glitter of the night life. That is the story the Morning Star told its subscribers, and the thousands of newspaper readers who increased its circulation. But, alas, Hazel Flagg wasn't really dying at all, though the editor of the newspaper believed she was, and so did the reporter who brought her to New York from her native Vermont village.

This is the plot of "Nothing Sacred," which Ben Hecht has written for Carole Lombard, Fredric March, Charles Winninger, and Walter Connolly, now at Loew's Grand Theater. A technicolor film, produced by David O. Selznick and directed by William A. Wellman (who gave us "A Star Is Born"), this film is one of the swiftest, shrewdest and most glittering bits of entertainment Hollywood has provided this season.

Carole Lombard is Hazel. A news story reports her the victim of radium poisoning, and in New York an editor (Walter Connolly) dispatches his star reporter (Fredric March) to Vermont to get the story of Hazel. March does better than that—he gets Hazel and brings her back to New York. Before Hazel left Vermont her family doctor (Charles Winninger) confessed that his diagnosis was all wrong. There isn't a thing the matter with Hazel. But, having been hustled to New York, she can't admit now that the report is false.

Quickly Hazel becomes Broadway's newest sensation, a sentimental nation's newest darling. The newspaper exploits her most profitably, and Hazel is a cymbol of feminine heroism. March soon falls in love with her, and Hazel with the reporter. Hazel at last admits she isn't going to die, but the public demands the finale of its newest morbid sensation, to the very real concern of the sweethearts, and the vast entertainment of audiences who are hailing "Nothing Sacred."

SING AND BE HAPPY NOW AT CASCADE

'Thin Ice' Scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday.

Today and tomorrow the Cascade offers "Sing and Be Happy," with Tony Martin, Leah Ray, Joan Davis, Dixie Dunbar and Helen Westley. "Hotel Haywire," with Leo Carrillo, Lynne Overman, Mary Carlisle and Benny Baker, is the feature Tuesday.

Sonja Henie and Tyrone Power are starred in the magnificent musical of the Alpine slopes, "Thin Ice," Wednesday and Thursday. Friday brings "Blonde Trouble," with Eleanore Whitney, Johnny Downs and Lynne Overman. Clarence E. Mulford's "Borderland," with William (Hopalong Cassidy) Boyd, Jimmy Ellison and George Hayes, is listed Saturday. There will also be the third chapter of the serial, "Painted Stallion," plus selected short subjects, and at 8:15 another stage show.

A seven-ton plow, recently completed on the Pacific coast, will be drawn by three 95-horsepower tractors in reclaiming land to a six-foot depth where floods have washed sand over it.

The kind of tuberculosis germ that infects cattle rarely, if ever, causes tuberculosis in human lungs, but it can cause the disease in human bones, joints and glands.

Galaxy of Top-Notch Films on Atlanta Screens This Week

The inimitable Shirley Temple is really "the whiskers" in this scene from "Heidi" with Jean Hersholt in the film at the Fox theater, which started a week's run Friday. Shirley is again at her best in this production, and fans are flocking to see her.

Here are just a few of the beautifuls in the screen play, "Merry-Go-Round of 1938," on the silver screen at the Paramount theater. This is one of the best film musicals of the new season and it's full of zip and go from start to finish—not a dull moment.

Atlanta film fans continue to jam the Rialto theater to capacity as Cary Grant and Irene Dunne, in "The Awful Truth," keep the audiences in a panic. This is the third week at the Rialto for this production and it more than likely will again be held over.

Wendy Barrie is back again. This time with Walter Pidgeon in "A Girl With Ideas," and what ideas! She's full of 'em in this play, which appears on the Capitol screen today for a week's run. The Capitol also offers a top-flight vaudeville program.

GARY COOPER FILM LISTED AT FAIRFAX

Marlene Dietrich Also on Week's Offerings.

Pictures' most famous soldier-of-fortune, Gary Cooper, comes to the screen again as an adventurer in what has been called the most powerful role of his distinguished career in "Souls at Sea" today, tomorrow and Tuesday at the Fairfax theater.

"I Cover the War," on Wednesday's program, presents John Wayne in the role of newsreel cameraman. Owen Gaze, a newcomer, co-stars with Wayne.

Marlene Dietrich and Robert Donat are cast in leading roles of "Knight Without Armor" Thursday, a thrilling love story. A biographical story of Jim Fisk, who in the aftermath of the Civil War rose from a peddler to power and fame as one of the country's early captains of finance and industry, is depicted in "Toast of New York," Friday. Edward Arnold, Cary Grant and Frances Farmer are starred.

Bob Steele in a drama of the west, "Gun Ranger," ends the week Saturday.

'THIN ICE' ON SCREEN AT PALACE THREE DAYS

Entertainment program at the Palace theater this week opens today with a three-day run of "Thin Ice," starring Sonja Henie and Tyrone Power. On Wednesday, "King Kong" will return, with Fay Wray and Robert Armstrong.

Frances Farmer and Fred MacMurray, with Charlie Ruggles and Lloyd Nolan, will star in "Exclusive," which will be shown on Thursday and Friday. On Saturday William Boyd will again ride across the screen as the star in "Border Land."

For laughs and more laughs and a bit of real drama interspersed, Carole Lombard and Fredric March are tops in "Nothing Sacred," now drawing throngs to the Loew's Grand theater. There isn't a dull sequence in the entire picture, which is really tops in comedy.

Wendy 'Girl With Ideas' Appears At Capitol; Excellent Vaudeville

With a big parade of stage and screen hits booked to be offered throughout the entire month of December, the Capitol theater offers the first of these fine new programs starting today at which time the screen attraction will be "A Girl With Ideas," starring Wendy Barrie, Kent Taylor and Walter Pidgeon. "Around the World" revue is the stage offering with a big cast of international favorites.

"A Girl With Ideas," the Capitol's feature tells what happens when a group of society girls decide to clean up the town by becoming newspaper publishers in the best Emily Post manner. Drawing upon their private stock of society gossip, and their inside knowledge of the city's big shots, the girls write stories for the paper that literally turn the town upside down. In spite of their mistakes and highly amusing errors, they put their pretty heads together to make newspaper history.

Wendy Barrie, in the leading role, is cast as the rich banker's daughter who wins a newspaper in a libel suit over a story that has been printed about her. Kent Taylor is seen as the man who wrote the offending yarn, and who is retained to work for the "Lady Boss" as managing editor.

"Around the World" revue the Capitol's stage offering for the week boasts as one of its attractions the "Girls Of All Nations." A better than usual stage band, an exceptionally clever comedian, who escorts the diverse acts en tour, and other novelties assist in making up the offering.

'SHEIK STEPS OUT' AT PONCE DE LEON

'Easy Living' Scheduled Thursday, Friday.

Today and tomorrow the Ponce de Leon theater presents "The Sheik Steps Out," starring Ramon Novarro and Lola Lane. It is a romantic tale of love in the desert. Tuesday's offering is "Rose Bowl," starring William Frawley and Eleanore Whitney.

"King of Gamblers" is scheduled Wednesday, starring Lloyd Nolan and Claire Trevor. Thursday and Friday "Easy Living" is on the screen, starring Edward Arnold and Jean Arthur.

"Angel's Holiday," starring Atlanta's own Jane Withers, is Saturday's offering.

Broadway's and Hollywood's Be Now Being Shown at the Paramou

Broadway's best came to the screen at the Paramount theater Friday in "Merry-Go-Round of 1938." Broadway's best and Hollywood's best.

Produced by Buddy Desylvia, who is credited with dozens of outstanding screen hits, including the early musical, "Sunny Side Up," and five Shirley Temple productions. "Merry-Go-Round of 1938" presents Billy House, Bert Lahr and Jimmie Savo, direct from Broadway and the major capitals of the world. Savo and Lahr will introduce specialty numbers in the picture which were hits from their last year's Broadway offerings.

Joy Hodges, sweetheart of the airways, has the romantic feminine lead in the picture. Hodges has been heard over c to-coast radio chains with the crestra of Ted Fiorito. Carol ner, Jimmie Grier and the Penner hour.

Films stars who support comedians and singers are Mi Auer, Alice Brady and Lo Fazenda, with John King, se tional young leading man "The Road Back," playing o site Miss Hodges.

Dance and specialty num music by Dave Apollons' orc tra, songs by Harold Adamson Jimmie HcHugh, and score other surprises are offere "Merry-Go-Round of 1938."

As an added attraction the rent issue of the March of will be shown.

Shirley More Glorious in 'Heidi' With Jean Hersholt Now at F

A Shirley Temple more glorious than anyone has ever known and a beloved story that has enthralled millions the world over arrived Friday on the screen at the Fox theater in the never-to-be-forgotten picture, "Heidi," Johanna Spyri's enchanting tale brought to such laughing, loving life by Twentieth Century-Fox that it touches the deepest corners of the heart.

"Heidi," one of the world's famous stories, had to wait for its star before it could be brought to the screen, declares Darryl F. Zanuck, and the reason is evident. Shirley was cast in the title role in response to the thousand movie fans who besieged the dio with requests that she play part.

Heading the cast is Jean sholt, famous veteran actor, gives his greatest characteriza as the grandfather of "Heidi." taciturn recluse dwelling high in the Alps, the character is most difficult that he has ever to portray, Hersholt says, bec the burden of delineation is pla on physical mannerisms and att tion to details of action and dr

Arthur Treacher, as the co butler in a rich Frankfort home Heidi's sole defender in m dramatic scenes, and a sympath portrayal of "Blind Anna" is p trayed by Helen Westley. Ot leading roles are played by Pau Moore, Thomas Beck, Mary N Sidney Blackmer, Mady Christi and Sig Rummann.

On a novel set depicting Zuyder Zee, Shirley and a la chorus enact an elaborate da sequence, with special routined ranged by Sammy Lee. Shir also sings the grand new nove song, "In Our Little Woo Shoes," written by Lew Poll and Sidney D. Mitchell.

COMEDY, DRAMA AT THE BUCKHEAD

Mystery, Adventure Make Up Week's Offerings.

"Souls at Sea" is the feature at the Buckhead theater today and tomorrow. It is played by an excellent cast headed by Gary Cooper, George Raft and Frances Dee.

One of the spiciest mystery-adventure stories of the season, "Sophie Lang Goes West," will play Tuesday, starring Gertrude Michael. Also another chapter of the Dick Tracy serial will be shown on the matinee only.

"Confessions," starring Kay Francis, will be the feature for Wednesday. Ian Hunter will play opposite Miss Francis. A wild buckaroo out where the west begins, "Ginger" Jane Withers, begins where the wild west leaves off in her grandest comedy, "Wild and Woolly," which will be shown Thursday and Friday.

Saturday's feature will be "Cherokee Strip," starring Dick Foran. Also another chapter of "Wild West Days."

Stars in "You Can't Take It With You"

Rene Roberti (left), Dagmar Karling (center) and Elwyn Harvey, three principal stars in the play, "You Can't Take It With You," scheduled for the Erlanger December 16, 17 and 18, with a matinee Saturday.

ERLANGER PLAY MEETS ACCLAIM

'You Can't Take It With You,' Here 3 Days.

Here's good news for the patrons of the legitimate theater in Atlanta —"You Can't Take It With You," the 1937 Pulitzer prize play concerning which so many glowing reports have reached theatergoers, will include this city in the transcontinental tour of the special company organized by its producer, Sam H. Harris, in compliance with the demands by thousands of theatergoers all over the country. "You Can't Take It With You" will be the attraction at the Erlanger theater December 16-17-18, with matinee on Saturday.

"You Can't Take It With You," which opened its New York engagement at the Booth theater in that city on December 14, 1936, and its Chicago one a few weeks later at the Selwyn theater, has been playing to standing room at every performance in both places ever since its opening night. So great is the success of these two companies that they will remain in these two cities for many months.

And so Mr. Harris, in order to permit theatergoers in other cities to enjoy the play without waiting a long, long time, has organized a company of the finest New York players and equipped it with a production comparable in every way to the New York and Chicago ones. It is this high-class organization that will appear in this city, en route to play long engagements in Los Angeles and San Francisco for which it is headed.

Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, the authors of "You Can't Take It With You," are said by the critics to have done one of their finest jobs of playwriting in this piece. And that is saying a great deal when their past performances are taken into consideration. These two talented writers are the ones who collaborated on "Once in a Lifetime," which ran a solid year in New York, and "Merrily We Roll Along," another huge success. Mr. Hart has to his credit such never-to-be-forgotten hits as "As Thousands Cheer" and "Face the Music," while Mr. Kaufman is the author of at least 27 stage hits, among them being "Of Thee I Sing," which enjoys the honor of being the only musical play ever to win the coveted Pulitzer prize. This Mr. Kaufman wrote with Morrie Ryskind.

BIG APPLE REVUE COMES TO CAPITOL DEC. 19

Earle M. Holden, manager of the Capitol theater has announced that Dan Fitch, producer of some of America's greatest revues and stage entertainment will bring his "Big Apple Revue" to the Capitol theater as the stage offering for the week beginning Sunday, December 19.

While the unit will feature a variety of vaudeville acts, the main feature of the revue will be the presentation of "The Big Apple," by dancers who were secured direct from the Carolinas where the dance originated. These dancers have appeared in many of the largest theaters in the country and for the past couple of months have been on tour with Dan Fitch.

Not since the days of the "Charleston" craze has a new dance sensation swept the country like the Big Apple. It is being talked about from coast to coast; songs are being written about it and it is still increasing in popularity.

FAYE AND AMECHE AT DEKALB THREE DAYS

Spotlighting a swiftly paced parade of outstanding entertainment personalities, Twentieth Century-Fox offers a grand festival to topnotch singsational musical comedy. "You Can't Have Everything," which comes to the DeKalb tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday. Heading the cast are Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Charles Winninger, The Ritz Brothers, Tony Martin, Louise Hovick and Rubinoff and his violin. Another amusement expert is Arthur Treacher.

One of the most laughable and lovable characters in American fiction, as only Will Rogers could play him, brings delightful humor, thrilling romance and gripping action Thursday and Friday in "David Harum," an adaptation of Edward Noyes Westcott's famous novel.

"West Bound Limited," a railroad drama of exciting incidents co-starring Lyle Talbot and Polly Rowles, will be shown Saturday.

WEIRTON CASE ACTION PROTESTED TO F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(UP) Representative Alfred N. Phillips, Democrat, Connecticut, tonight sent a protest to President Roosevelt against action of the National Labor Relations Board in subpoenaing records of Mill & Factory, a trade publication.

The records were subpoenaed by the board after the magazine published a critical article on the board's inquiry into labor relations of the Weirton Steel Company.

They Really Make It "Tough to Handle"

Frankie Darro (left), Kane Richmond and Phyllis Fraser, three top-notch stars in the film "Tough to Handle," appearing on the screen at the Cameo theater tomorrow and Tuesday. It's a first showing.

'TOUGH TO HANDLE' ON CAMEO PROGRAM

'Little Big Shot' To Be Shown Wednesday.

Today's feature at the Cameo theater is "Behind the Headlines," starring Lee Tracy and Diana Gibson.

Tomorrow and Tuesday's feature is "Tough to Handle," starring Frankie Darro, Kane Richmond and Phyllis Fraser. With a plot as fresh as today's newspapers . . . the expose of racketeering counterfeiters who flood the world's markets with spurious sweepstakes tickets, and with a cast that is fully adequate and keeps the story moving at a brisk pace, "Tough to Handle" is a picture that should find little difficulty in capturing the fancy of local audiences.

The story is woven around a young chap whose grandfather's death is caused by racketeers' threats, when it has been discovered that he has been inadvertently sold a forged sweepstakes ticket with a winning number. What happens from there on in, and how the young boy, his sister and a newspaperman friend track down the malcreants furnishes "Tough to Handle" with its fast action, suspensive plot and thoroughly unexpected climax.

Both Darro and Richmond offer brilliant performances, while Phyllis Fraser, as the sister, is an eye-filling little miss you'll want to see more of.

Wednesday's feature is "Little Big Shot," starring Glenda Farrell, Robert Armstrong, and Sybil Jason. For Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Gene Autry will be presented in his latest and greatest western feature, "Springtime in the Rockies," in which Gene gives a "new deal" in thrills. In addition to the feature, chapter one of the new serial, "Radio Patrol," will be shown. A Mickey Mouse cartoon, "Mickey's Amateurs," will complete the program.

GENERAL LUDENDORFF SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

MUNICH, Bavaria, Dec. 4.—(UP)—Doctors said tonight that General Erich Von Ludendorff, 72-year-old German World War commander and neopaganist, has shown slight improvement during the last few days, but that his condition remains serious.

He is suffering from kidney and heart complications following an operation on November 4.

REDS ARE ACCUSED

Have Secret Arms Caches, Says French Deputy.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A rightist deputy today threw the French chamber of deputies into an uproar when he accused Communists of having secret arms caches.

The deputy, Rene Dommange, inquired:

"What has the government done about all the arms they found which belonged to Communists?"

His charge was made during debate on the 1938 budget for the Surete Nationale, the French national police, which was charged with investigating what the government described as a widespread rightist plot to overthrow the republic.

500 Men in Public Eye Wonder Who'll Be Gridiron Club Victims

Roosevelt Only One Sure To Be Razzed; Newspaper Group Has Been Hoaxing—and Making—History Since 1885; Members, Guests Pledged to Silence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Five hundred men in the public eye—ambassadors, justices, cabinet officers, senators, Wall Street financiers, labor leaders and others—are wondering what will happen to them next Saturday night.

The Gridiron Club has invited them to its semi-annual banquet. But they won't know until the jokes are sprung whether they were asked to laugh, or to be laughed at.

The only guest who's certain is Mr. Roosevelt. The Gridiron Club has never failed to razz a President.

Since 1885, the club of newspaper correspondents has been hoaxing history in the making. And sometimes history has been made in the hoaxing.

Ferret Out Stories.

Although the members and newspaper guests are pledged not to report what occurs inside the dining hall, reporters who were not present often have ferretted out "big stories" from Gridiron events.

America's entry into the World War was forecast early in 1917 by a strong speech from Woodrow Wilson at a Gridiron dinner. The message was so important that members won the President's permission to publish it.

A year earlier, Wilson had told the club guests—according to one report—"America ought to keep out of this war at the sacrifice of everything except . . . her sense of humanity and justice."

The famous "Roosevelt-Foraker incident" broke up a gridiron dinner in 1907 before the fish had been served. Guests left at midnight still hungry—but happy at the show they'd seen.

Theodore Roosevelt and Senator Foraker, of Ohio, shot angry barbs at each other, while J. P. Morgan waved his napkin and shouted in applause, and other guests left their cooling food to cheer.

"T. R." had ordered a whole negro regiment dismissed from the army for a Texas episode. Foraker had protested, and the debate became a leading issue of the day.

Roosevelt came to the dinner in nervous mood. He read in the program a jibe at Foraker: "J. B. Foraker sez, sez he: 'All coons look alike to me.'"

Fidgeting, Roosevelt turned to the club's president in the midst of dinner. He asked permission to speak at once, instead of waiting his turn on the program. Waiters bringing in the terrapin were shooed from the room, and Roosevelt cut loose.

First he stormed at the financiers. J. P. Morgan, H. A. Harriman and others were seated, as a joke, in a "millionaires' row," and Roosevelt talked directly to them.

Then he turned to Foraker. He read again the program jest, and shouted: "Well, all coons do not look alike to me."

Guests said later his attack was scathing. When Roosevelt finished, the club president called on Foraker, and the senator replied in kind, declaring he would not be intimidated.

The dinner ended in confusion at midnight with the singing of a solo—"The Song That Reached My Heart."

Diplomats Stunned.

Diplomats of many nations sat stunned during the brazen speech of the Grand Vizier of Persia in 1904. Mirza Ali Asgar Kahn was passing through the United States after a trip around the world. Several newspapers carried stories that he would appear at the Gridiron Club.

The Vizier appeared in royal robes. In his speech he predicted a war in which "the eastern civilization will overcome the western civilization." He called Russia "treacherous," "hypocrite," "false friend." He called Germany "barbarous." He called Great Britain "the traditional enemy of the free American people."

When he was reminded repeatedly that foreign diplomats were present, the Vizier shouted "You have no free speech. I go!" He bowed with a sweeping gesture, pulling off his wig. It was a club member; the real Vizier had sailed for Europe that day.

MRS. JOHN CURRAN, OUIJA WRITER, DIES

'Patience Worth' Dictated 2,000,000 Words.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Mrs. John M. Curran, 54, who wrote verse and prose at what she said was dictation through the ouija board of the spirit of a 17th century Englishman, died here yesterday of pneumonia.

Mrs. Curran said the name "Patience Worth" was disclosed to her in St. Louis in 1913.

From 1913 to 1920, Mrs. Curran said, the spirit of "Patience Worth" dictated more than 2,000,000 words.

GUN BATTLE

One Killed, Suspect and Deputy Wounded.

SPRINGFIELD, Tenn., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Officers shot and killed a suspected robber near here early today and wounded another in a gun battle, in which Deputy Sheriff Bunyan Randolph also was wounded. A third suspect escaped. Twenty shots were fired.

The officers were seeking three men for the robbery late last night of a storekeeper. The captured man, identified himself as James Doran, 34, of Union City, Tenn.

The slain man was known to Doran only as "Shorty" and was said by him to have served a term in the Eddyville, Ky., penitentiary.

BEST U. S. FARMERS

Illinois Growers Win Honors at Exposition.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Illinois farmers ranked today as the best all-around agriculturists of the world on the basis of honors won at the 38th International Livestock Exposition.

A summary of prizes awarded during the eight-day run, which ended tonight with the 12th horse show of the week, gave Illinois 73 championships and 158 first places. Illinois led last year, too.

Oklahoma moved up into second place with 25 purple and 28 blue ribbons, displacing Indiana, which fell to fourth position with 23 and 51. Iowa advanced one position to third with 23 and 53.

The Dominion of Canada outranked all states but Illinois, however, finishing with 28 championships and 63 firsts. Ontario led the provinces with 23 and 47.

Georgia won six first places in the championships.

MANCHURIA CONQUEST PROTESTED BY CHINA

GENEVA, Dec. 4.—(UP)—China today filed a formal protest with the League of Nations against Italy's recognition of the Japanese conquest of Manchuria, describing it as a defiance of the Washington nine-power treaty and the League of Nations' covenant.

The protest asserted also that recognition of Manchukuo violated the recent resolution of the League assembly blaming Japan for the present war in China.

Idaho Defies Maine In Potato Contest

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP) The house of representatives' restaurant became tonight a field of honor for potato producers.

Idahoans want to prove their claims to superiority or—fall in distaste before Maine entries. They issued a general challenge today to Maine producers. The challenge proposed:

"A potato dinner contest in the house restaurant in the United States capitol at 12:30 p. m., December 7, when both Maine and Idaho potatoes will be served."

'Freedom' Expert Held on Charge Of Beating Boy

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A couple of snowballs have kindled the fire of controversy out in erudite Evanston.

On one side was Dr. John J. B. Morgan, an expert in child psychology at Northwestern University who has advised parents to give their youngsters a measure of freedom, because model youths frequently become colorless citizens.

Mrs. Faith Sherrie, who has an only child, 10-year-old Donald charged that Dr. Morgan manhandled the boy. She obtained an assault and battery warrant. The professor was released on his own recognizance pending a hearing December 21 before Judge Harry H. Porter.

Her version of the snowball incident was this:

"Donny was standing at the curb (last Monday), sliding pieces of man came along in his car. The man parked, got out, came back snow into the street, when this to where Donald was standing, gripped him by the neck and kicked Donny with his knee."

Dr. Morgan, author of "Psychology of the Unadjusted Child," declined further comment. He has insisted he did not cuff the boy, but merely reprimanded him.

ORIENTAL QUIZZED

Photographer of Air Tests Freed by FBI.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4.—(AP)—An oriental who was observed taking pictures today of air maneuvers in which navy planes were participating was released tonight after brief questioning by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents. He was questioned at the instance of a Miami reserve officer.

The man, whose identity and nationality were not disclosed, voluntarily accompanied the reserve officer who asked that he explain his actions.

COLD WAVE SPEEDING SOUTH, IS PREDICTION

Colder weather is in prospect for Atlanta this afternoon, the weatherman predicted yesterday.

"Rain and a low temperature of 40 degrees is expected Sunday morning, but a change to colder will occur in the afternoon," the weatherman said. He indicated that temperatures will probably reach freezing by Monday morning.

The cold wave, which promises to continue for several days, is sweeping southward from Canada, the weather bureau announced. The city enjoyed mild temperatures yesterday, the mercury ranging between 44 and 53 degrees at the airport.

SAN DIEGO-MIAMI HOP IS MADE IN 14 HOURS

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Richard Archbold, of New York, brought his 14-ton flying boat down on Biscayne Bay today to complete a non-stop flight of 14 hours, 10 minutes from San Diego, Cal. He carried three passengers and a crew of four.

Archbold, research associate of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, brought the plane for a flight to New Guinea and said the 2,300-mile trip from San Diego was a "shakedown" cruise. He said he would return next week.

The plane has a cruising range of 4,000 miles.

PERPETUAL BAR TO LOW COTTON PRICES URGED BY BROWN

5 REVENUE AVENUES OPEN FOR GEORGIA, DEAN BROOKS SAYS

School of Commerce Head Discusses Sales Tax, Gain in Expenditures.

ATHENS, Dec. 4.—Five possibilities of revenue are open to the state legislature in the opinion of Dean R. P. Brooks, of the University of Georgia school of commerce, who discussed the present problem in the trend of Georgia finances in an interview today.

Based upon the estimated $3,500,000 that the legislature will have to raise over and above that expected to come from known sources, Dean Brooks listed the possible new sources as (1) an increase in the insurance premium tax of one-half per cent on the gross premiums with an estimated income of $250,000; (2) a state inheritance tax, with a possible revenue of $300,000; (3) state-operated liquor stores in communities desiring them, a tax upon which Dean Brooks believes would bring in from $300,000 to $1,000,000; (4) diversion of the gasoline tax which alone would bring in $3,000,000 from only a one-cent diversion to the general fund; (5) a sales tax.

Sales Tax Possibility.

Commenting upon the last possibility, Dean Brooks said:

"If the first four suggestions are not feasible, there would seem to be no way of finding revenue except the sales tax. Twenty-seven states now have sales taxes. In most cases, these taxes are simple 2 or 3 per cent taxes upon the retail sale of goods. In a few states the tax is called the gross income tax and it is levied upon practically all sources of income. It is likely that either one of these taxes would produce in Georgia about $10,000,000. There are many objections to such a tax, the most important being that the sales taxes lay burdens on the minimum of subsistence. The per capita income of Georgians for 1935 was only $253. Vast numbers of the people of the state had incomes far under this amount. These depressed classes are living on the very minimum of subsistence, and any tax laid upon them would merely sink them deeper into the economic mire. A contrary point of view is that since the benefits of old-age pensions, the public schools, the free textbooks, and so forth, mean more to the poorer classes than to others, there is some justice in forcing these classes to contribute through the imposition of a sales tax."

During the period from 1906 to 1936, he said, state government expenditures increased about 500 per cent while the population grew only 50 per cent.

Expenditures Analyzed.

Analyzing expenditures, Dean Brooks discussed certain categories: The school fund, which has increased 358 per cent, but which, nevertheless, has left Georgia last among the states in education achievements; pensions, which have increased 29 per cent during the period, because of the increase in the amount of the annual pension and the extension of the time during which pensioners may marry and leave their widows eligible for pensions; eleemosynary institutions, with an increase of 200 per cent. "Despite this fact," the speaker said, "we hear from all sides that the sanitarium at Milledgeville and other institutions in this category are sadly in need of larger appropriations."

For higher education, Dean Brooks' figures indicated an increase of nearly 700 per cent, which was brought about by a huge increase in enrollment and the fact that the per student cost has increased 100 per cent, indicating vast improvement in the quality of services rendered.

Prison System Cost.

A decrease in prison appropriations was explained as having resulted from the abolition of the leasing system and the turning over of the convicts to the counties.

"Georgia had barely begun to pay any attention to health problems in 1906," he declared. "Whi'e the 1936 appropriation was more than 1,000 per cent greater than that of 1906, we were still doing very little on this important activity until the current year, when the general assembly increased the appropriation five-fold. This is one of the most striking accomplishments of the present state administration."

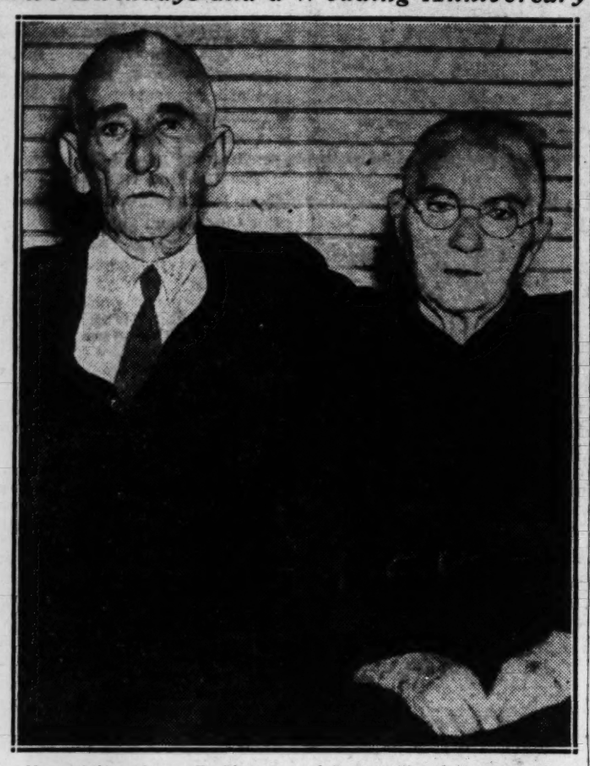

According to Dean Brooks, the most important new development occurring in Georgia in the last 30 years has been the good roads movement.

Analysis of Receipts.

In an analysis of state receipts, the fact was pointed out that since 1906 a breakdown of the general property tax has occurred on a nation-wide scale. Declaring "it is abundantly evident that it is impossible to reach intangibles under a system which requires that they be assessed and taxed as other property," Dean Brooks predicted an enabling act on the subject of classifying property into several different groups with the application of so low a rate to intangibles as to induce owners to declare them probably would be passed during the present session of the general assembly.

The increase in receipts from the capital stock tax is said to reflect the growth in importance of the corporate form of business organization. It is estimated, according to the speaker, that the future cigaret and cigar taxes will be much more productive, and that the maximum tax rate as raised by the general assembly this year will produce a considerable increase in revenue.

Two Birthdays and a Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Chapman, of Fayetteville, shown here, today will mark the 62d anniversary of their marriage. The occasion was informally celebrated yesterday at a reception at their home, with their daughters as hostesses. Mr. Chapman reached his 81st birthday Thursday. His wife will be 78 on December 20.

Fayetteville Couple To Observe 62d Wedding Anniversary Today

Reception Held at Home in Honor of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Chapman; Both Have Birthdays This Month, 81st for Him, 78th for Her.

FAYETTEVILLE, Dec. 4.—For Mr. and Mrs. James T. Chapman, December brings two birthdays and their 62d wedding anniversary.

And so, this afternoon, their daughters entertained at the Chapman home here with an informal reception in honor of their parents, who were married 62 years ago tomorrow. A large number of residents of Fayetteville and Fayette county gathered to honor them and to extend congratulations on their long lives of devotion to their home.

The day found both Mr. and Mrs. Chapman in good health.

Mr. Chapman celebrated his 81st birthday two days ago, on December 2. His wife, whom he married in 1875, when she was a girl of 15, will mark her 78th birthday December 20.

Mr. Chapman was born near Warm Springs, in Meriwether county, and he and his wife have lived in Fayette county since 1876, the year after their marriage.

They have nine living sons and daughters, 45 grandsons and granddaughters and 34 great-grandchildren.

Mr. Chapman was engaged in farming near here for many years.

There is little question about the serenity of their 62 wedded years. To questions of this kind, Mrs. Chapman merely nods at her husband and adds: "There he is; he's still here."

GEORGIANS NAMED IN ANTI-TRUST CASE SET FOR TUESDAY

Brokerage Fee Payments to 'Dummy' Firm Charged in FTC Action.

A Federal Trade Commission examiner will open hearings here Tuesday on a complaint charging a Georgia wholesale food company, a brokerage firm and nine wholesale and manufacturing companies with violation of a section of the Robinson-Patman act relating to price discrimination.

John Darsey, counsel for the commission, said the section cited by the complaint was to prevent payment of brokerage to a controlled or 'dummy" broker on sales of goods.

The case is the second to be heard by the commission since amendment of the Robinson-Patman act. An injunctive order was issued in the first case a few months ago and court proceedings instituted.

Georgians Named.

The Webb Crawford Company, of Athens, a wholesale grocery company, and the Daniel Brokerage Company of Athens were the Georgia firms named.

The complaint charged three men who owned a majority of the Webb Crawford Company stock were officers of the Daniel Brokerage Company. It charged the brokerage company officers acted as intermediaries in buying from various seller respondents on behalf of the Webb Crawford Company and other wholesale buyers not included as respondents.

Ed D. Wier, president; E. L. Wier, vice president, and Carter W. Daniel, secretary-treasurer, of the Webb Crawford Company, were named as partners in the Daniel Brokerage Company.

The answer filed by the Webb Crawford Company stated that, in transactions in which the Daniel Brokerage Company sold merchandise to the Webb Crawford Company, it acted as an agent of the sellers and not as an agent or intermediary of the Webb Crawford Company.

Seller Respondents.

Seller respondents named were: Charles F. Cates and Sons, Inc., packers of pickles and preserved fruits, Faison, N. C.; Godchaux Sugars, Inc., New Orleans; J. Aron and Company, Inc., New Orleans; Myles Salt Company, Ltd., New Orleans; Morton Salt Company, Chicago; J. D. Johnston Jr., Co., peanut butter manufacturer, Brundidge, Ala.; Shotwell Manufacturing Company, confectionery specialties, Chicago; Cincinnati Soap Company, Cincinnati; Jackson Hay Company, Jackson, Mich.

Under Federal Trade Commission procedure, a "desist" order would be issued if the alleged practices were proved. Court action is provided if such orders are disregarded.

The hearing was expected to require four or five days in Atlanta and Athens and two days in New Orleans.

TRIAL OF WEATHERS SET FOR TOMORROW

U. S. Park Slaying Case To Be Heard in U. S. Court in Rome.

ROME, Dec. 4.—Trial of Roy Weathers, 23, and his wife, Virgie Weathers, on a charge of murder in connection with the "butcher" slaying of 21-year-old James C. Revels in Chickamauga Park last August, is scheduled to open in United States district court here Monday before Judge Charles B. Kennamer, of Montgomery.

Revels, who lived in Chattanooga, was slain while visiting relatives in Georgia, and his badly slashed body, with head almost decapitated, was found in Chickamauga creek on the government reservation.

In a preliminary hearing, the couple pleaded not guilty and the case was originally set for trial during the November term of United States district court here before Judge E. Marvin Underwood. However, the case was postponed until a special adjourned session, which will begin Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Federal agents said that previous to the preliminary hearing, Weathers and his wife confessed the slaying of young Revels, giving as a motive revenge for contraction of a venereal disease.

BRITISH, GEORGIANS TO DEBATE TUESDAY

Democratic Government vs. Professional Politicians To Be Issue.

ATHENS, Dec. 4.—The annual English debate, in which a University of Georgia team meets a team of English students, will be held at the University of Georgia chapel Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. The query will be: "Resolved: That Democratic government and professional politicians are incompatible." The Georgia speakers will represent the negative side of the question.

This year's English team is composed of one Oxford student, James A. Brown, and one Cambridge representative, Ronald V. Gibson. Speaking for Georgia will be Morris B. Abram, of Fitzgerald, and Harry Baxter, of Ashburn.

Abram's Connections.

Abram, a senior in the academic school, is president of the International Relations Club; a member of Phi Kappa Literary Society, Phi Kappa Phi, Omicron Delta Kappa, Pericleans, president of the freshman law class, winner of the junior oration, 1937; a University of Georgia nominee for a Rhodes scholarship this year; manager of debates, participated in the 1936 English debate and the 1936 northern debate trip, and will make this year's annual trip. This is his third year on the varsity debating team.

Baxter received the A. B. degree from the university in 1936 and is now a second-year man in the school of law. He was valedictorian of the class of 1936, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Sphinx, Demosthenian Literary Society, Omicron Delta Kappa, Pericleans, was editor of the 1936 Pandora. This is his second year on the varsity team.

Brown An Ulsterman.

Oxford Student Brown is an Ulsterman by birth and a liberal by conviction. Until he was 18 he was educated in northern Ireland, then spent six months in Germany, part of the time at Heidelberg University. For the last four years he has been at Balliol College, Oxford, reading for the honours degree of modern history. He became president of the University Liberal Club and of the Oxford Union. He plans to practice as a barrister in England.

Gibson is a Scot, reared in England, brought up a liberal, and is now a moderate Socialist. NEW TYPE OF ENGINE ANNOUNCED AT ROME

ROME, Dec. 4.—Perfection of a new principle in steam engine design, which they claim will revolutionize production of steam power, is claimed here by Joseph F. Oldham, of Monticello, Ky., inventor, and his brother-in-law, Frank Doss, of Rome.

The new engine, Oldham states, will produce three times as much power as the ordinary steam engine with the same amount of fuel. Its great economy, he asserts, is effected through utilization of the full force of steam pressure into the cylinder and by interior control of the exhaust.

Oldham states he began working on the new design nearly 28 years ago.

STAR TO BREED RABBITS.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Irene Rich said today she had imported eight English angora rabbits and planned to breed them on a two-acre farm near here.

'Aunt Ellen,' 110, Still Able to Visit Marietta Shops

By CHESS ABERNATHY.

MARIETTA, Dec. 4.—In earlier life she spent 34 years in slavery!

But that was 67 years ago. And now "Aunt Ellen" McAfee, Cobb county's oldest known resident, is basking in her twilight years at 110, living serenely in the knowledge that her present-day "white chillun," about whose "goings-on" she expresses frank concern, will take care of her until her "sweet chariot" swings low to carry her home.

Though the fleeting years have dimmed Aunt Ellen's eyes, and though she is able to walk only with the aid of a cane and a small boy to lead her, she makes regular visits to Marietta's public square shopping area each Saturday and buys her week's supplies, "visits" her white friends, and returns in the afternoon to her home near here.

Knows Friends' Voices.

Despite her failing sight, "Aunt Ellen" possesses an acute sense of hearing and of touch, and usually is able to identify, by their voices, the friends she encounters during her visits in town.

"Aunt Ellen" was born August 12, 1827 (as nearly as records can verify), in Mississippi, and was sold as a slave at the age of 9. She was mistreated, she relates, by her first owners, but later was traded to an old Kentucky colonel, and thereafter received kind treatment from her "marster."

Freed in Kentucky in 1870, she moved southward again, and came to Cobb county, where she has since become a well-known character.

For many years now, "Aunt Ellen" has been completely supported by her white friends, and she never wants for any necessity to make her last years comfortable.

Married Only Once.

Sitting quietly at home, she lives amid the memories of years agone. She was married, she relates, to James McAfee, her only husband, in the home of a justice of the peace in Mississippi, and they lived together 55 years, until his death. Of their seven children, all are now dead except one, a daughter, whom "Aunt Ellen" says is 50 years old and lives in Chattanooga.

An outstanding characteristic of this old "mammy" is her frankness, for she has something of a reputation as a reader of character and will not hesitate to tell anyone "what she thinks about you."

Smoking for Girls.

Although she has smoked a stone pipe (given to her by her mother) for many years, she strongly disapproves of young girls smoking, even to "quiet the nerves," which she says is the reason for her own pipe-smoking.

She frowns on social security and, in fact, is much concerned about the "goings-on" of today's white generation. Never in her life, she says, has she witnessed such scandalous times as these, what with murders, suicides, robberies, wrecks and all, and warns that "nothing good will come of such carryings-on."

Invited recently to take an airplane ride, "Aunt Ellen," completely dismayed, replied emphatically: "Lemme tell you, chillun, whenever yo' see me in the air, you'll see me in the chariot going up."

G. S. W. C. TO OBSERVE 25TH YEAR ON JAN. 2

VALDOSTA, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The Georgia State Woman's College here will celebrate the 25th anniversary of its founding next month.

The college opened January 2, 1913, as the South Georgia State Normal College. In 1923 its curriculum was enlarged to include a four-year liberal arts course, and its name was changed to the Georgia State Woman's College.

President Frank R. Reade announced special celebration ceremonies would be arranged for January 14 and 15.

Nearly 6,000 women have attended the school. Its present student body numbers in excess of 300.

Two other presidents beside Dr. Reade have headed the institution: Dr. R. H. Powell, now dean of the Co-ordinate College of the University of Georgia at Athens, was its first president, and the late Dr. Jere M. Pound succeeded him.

GEORGIA MAY LOSE 476,000 LINT ACRES

State's Percentage Declines; Most Favorable Plan Sought in Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Crop control plans debated in the senate and house this week would effect reductions in Georgia's cotton plantings which might run as high as 476,000 acres.

The state's percentage of the national cotton acreage has decreased during recent years, while that of southwestern and western areas has increased sharply. Georgians, therefore, insisted on a long-time historical basis for establishing acreage quotas.

The 476,000-acre reduction would apply, according to the Agriculture Department figures, under terms of a proposal by some western members to base 1938 quotas on 1937 acreage.

Assuming the national quota to be 28,000,000 acres of cotton, the Georgia share would be 2,155,000. This year Georgia has 2,631,000.

This is but one of several proposals. Georgia would fare most favorably under the senate bill, which on a 10-year historical quota basis would give the state 2,166,000 acres in 1938. The house bill's proposed 5-year basis would permit 2,158,000 acres.

Basis of Allotments.

Georgians were prepared for a fight on any attempt to base the allotments on 1937 plantings alone, and the other proposals failed to get unanimous support from the delegation.

Representative Tarver, for example, drew up a set of statistics on Georgia and Texas allotments to show the plan would be unfair to his state.

In 1935, he said, Georgia produced 48 per cent as much cotton as Texas, 38 per cent as much in 1936, and 33 per cent as much in 1937 based on ginnings prior to November 14.

Texas' Provisions.

But under the five-year quota plan, Texas would be permitted to plant 10,663,000 acres of cotton, nearly five times as much as that estimated for Georgia.

"That difference arises, of course," Tarver said, "because of the low average production per acre of Texas lands planted to cotton; in 1935 it was only 133 pounds and in 1936, 119 pounds, whereas in Georgia during these years average lint cotton production per acre was 235 pounds and 228 pounds, respectively."

STATE DEATHS

IRVINE L. BREVARD.

MACON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Irvine L. Brevard, 55, brother of Mrs. Davenport Guerry, of Rivoli, died in a local hospital today after a week's illness of pneumonia. Mr. Brevard, a native of Kentucky, aided Mr. Guerry in the operation of the latter's nursery. The body was shipped to Hickman, Ga., today, the funeral to take place in that city Sunday.

MRS. WYATT ROWAN.

McDONOUGH, Dec. 4.—Rites for Mrs. Wyatt Rowan, 57, wife of the former tax collector of Henry county, who died at her home here today after a brief illness, will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday in Mount Carmel Methodist church, the Rev. J. E. Holbrook officiating. Burial will be in the churchyard. Mrs. Rowan is survived by her husband; four daughters, Mrs. Quillian Owen, Mrs. C. C. Goss and Misses Lucile and Bess Rowan, all of McDonough; one son, Joe Rowan, of McDonough; two sisters, Mrs. Grover Bailey, of Fayetteville, and Mrs. H. Snow, of Filippen; and three brothers, O. B. and W. C. Dailey, of McDonough, and the Rev. S. A. Dailey, of Jonesboro.

MRS. ROSALIE M. WAUGH.

LAGRANGE, Dec. 4.—Mrs. Rosalie Moore Waugh, 33, died in a local hospital Thursday, and rites were held yesterday in the First Baptist church, the Rev. Dr. Willis E. Howard officiating. Burial was in Shadowlawn. Mrs. Waugh, native of Harris county, had lived most of her life in Troup county, near here. She was a member of Pine View Baptist church. Surviving are her husband, G. E. Waugh; three sons, Walter Harold, Fred and Earl Waugh Jr.; a daughter, Faye Waugh; her father, J. L. Moore; three brothers, B. F., Harvey, and Olin Moore, all of near LaGrange; and a sister, Mrs. George Godfrey, of West Point.

MRS. ALLIE D. DIAL.

NEWNAN, Dec. 4—Mrs. Allie D. Dial, 67, died in a local hospital today after a short illness. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. J. D. Viney, of Sharpsburg; Mrs. L. G. Meadon, of Franklin, and Miss Ruth Dial, of Moreland; seven sons, Paul Dial, of Moreland; F. D. Dial, of Sharpsburg; Arthur Dial, of Cartersville; C. M. Dial, of Haralson Canyon, Cal.; J. B. Dial, of Newnan; D. W. Dial, of San Diego, Cal., and Emmet Dial, of Sargent; two sisters, Mrs. J. M. Gable, of Tampa; and Mrs. J. A. Holman, of Newnan; and two brothers, T. M. Hyde, of Newnan, and J. R. Hyde, of Chattanooga. Rites will be held at 2:30 o'clock Sunday in Moreland Baptist church, Dr. J. B. Graham officiating. Burial will be in Liberty cemetery, Coweta county.

FARM PROSPERITY HINGES ON INCOME, GEORGIAN ASSERTS

Voluntary Control With Attractive Provisions Is Advocated by Solon.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Lasting prosperity in the country will never become an actuality until the American farmer is assured sufficient wage to enjoy the absolute necessities of life, Representative Paul Brown, of Georgia, told his house colleagues this week during discussion of the proposed new farm program.

Expressing a preference for voluntary cotton control program with benefits attractive enough so that no farmer could afford to stay without the program, the Georgian said the average grower knowing the yield of cotton this year will be more than 18,000,000 bales, will recognize easily the folly of not reducing his crop, and will co-operate with the government provided there are substantial benefits.

Mr. Brown urged that congress find a way that will forever prevent low priced cotton.

Present Provisions.

As now written, the bill provides for the domestic allotment plan and the tilled-acreage base for farmers of cotton producing counties of each state. The five calendar years immediately preceding the calendar year in which the acreage allotment is determined is substituted for the old base period of 1928-32 inclusively.

"Under this plan," Representative Brown declared, "I believe it is preferable that each individual farm should be allotted its quota of acreage to cotton based upon the tilled land of farms throughout the cotton belt. The method of allocation of acres and money should be included in the final act, and also, as far as possible, the method of administration should be included in the act. Nothing should be left to rules and regulations of the Department of Agriculture that can be definitely set forth in the act.

"In many ways agriculture is the foundation on which our whole economic structure rests.

Foreign Trade Issue.

"The farmers need a government policy to protect them against the cheap labor products of foreign growing areas which already are offering serious competition in the world markets. In other words, with a government policy that tends to maintain a high price level for industrial products by reason of a high tariff wall, our farmers naturally look to the government to regulate domestic prices at compensatory levels and at the same time provide export bounties for cotton shipped to world markets."

He explained that unless the buying power of the farmer was materially raised, many industries of the country could not operate profitably and thousands of farmers would be forced to leave their farms and go on relief.

"From the standpoint of relief," he asserted, "it is essential that we help the farmer all we can, because if we don't the government will spend its money in other directions with less hope of permanent prosperity. Farm relief legislation is absolutely necessary because the welfare of approximately 40,000,000 people, directly and indirectly engaged in agriculture, demands it."

Legality of Compulsion.

"The uncertainty of the constitutionality of any compulsory program at this time, when cotton is selling for less than half the parity price," he declared, "is a chance too great for this congress to take, but the present bill does carry a very mild compulsory feature.

"In my judgment, cotton growers need price protection that will enable them to sell their cotton in any market and obtain sufficient funds to keep them in the necessities of life. There are many counties in my district where cotton is the only money crop and the only means of bringing in goods from industrial areas.

Parity for the South.

"It does not seem unreasonable to contend that if northern and eastern industrial labor is protected from cheap foreign labor by a tariff, that western and southern farmers, whose purchasing power is diminished by just that amount, should be placed on a parity and benefits paid them to offset this disadvantage."

A compulsory program, he argued, was much more satisfactory to wheat and corn growers than to cotton growers because corn and wheat were consumed mainly in this country while only about half of the domestically produced cotton was consumed here, and the cotton farmer had to face competition from such substitutes as rayon, jute and wool, in the bargain.

He insisted that whatever farm legislation was enacted, the government should not forget its foreign markets.

NRA REFUND SOUGHT FOR GEORGIA COMPANY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The senate heard an echo today of the controversy which raged over the national recovery act when Senator Russell, Democrat, Georgia, introduced a bill to reimburse the Georgia Marble Company, of Tate, Ga., for $12,861 in "increased cost of labor and materials" in construction of the Nashville, Tenn., postoffice, because of the NRA code.

So Says
Mr. McCollum—
"Take things always by the smooth handle."
LIFE'S too short to go through it doing things always the hard way. Now the man who is struggling with a load of scattered obligations is doing a lot of worrying needlessly. Under my plan $60 to $1,000 can be consolidated and divided monthly over ONE OR TWO YEARS at low interest. If you have a problem, let's talk it over at the Seaboard Loan & Savings Association, 12 Pryor St., S. W.

Constitution of United States Outlined for Essay Contest

By WILLIAM W. BREWTON,
Director, State Sesquicentennial Commission.

ARTICLE 7. THE PATTERSON PLAN.

An oustanding advocate of state sovereignty and state equality (what was later denominated state rights) was William Patterson, of New Jersey. While the centralists were rallying to the Virginia plan, a group of state equality men put their heads together for formulating a plan that would prevent the states with large populations from running the government over the smaller states. On June 15, Mr. Patterson introduced it, saying that "several of the deputations wished it to be substituted in place of that proposed by Mr. Randolph."

What Patterson Plan Was.

It was here agreed to refer both the Randolph and Patterson plans to a committee of the whole house.

The Patterson plan mainly provided:

1. That they do no more than revise the articles of confederation, as they had been sent there to do.

2. That in addition to powers congress already had, it be given power to levy a tariff on all imported goods, regulate trade between the states on more definite terms, as well as with foreign countries, but leave to the states the power to punish for any violation of such regulations, with appeal to United States courts.

3. That requisitions on the several states for money for the federal government be by proportion to population, counting all white persons, and three-fifths of all Indians and negroes, excepting that Indians who were not paying taxes would not be counted.

4. That congress elect the executive, to consist of more than one person, the number to be determined, which executive could not be re-elected, and none of the persons making up this executive could "take command of any troops so as personally to conduct any military enterprise as general or in any other capacity."

5. A supreme court was provided, to be appointed by the executive during good behavior.

6. That the articles of confederation, with changes here made, and laws and treaties pursuant thereto, should be the supreme law of the land, as to states and citizens, and all courts should be so bound, with power in the executive to call out military force against all and sundry who violated this principle and policy.

7. Then we have this provision, in language considerably redundant: "That a citizen of one state, committing an offense in another state of the Union, shall be deemed guilty of the same offense as if it had been committed by a citizen of the state in which the offense was committed."

No wonder Mr. Lansing wanted to wait to get some of this straightened out. However, the Patterson plan was the monkey wrench thrown into the machinery which the centralists were using for a steam-roller.

(Tomorrow, Mr. Brewton discusses the turmoil the convention had now reached.)

RULES GUIDING ESSAY CONTEST

Contestants in The Constitution's prize essay contest on the Constitution of the United States may use any source of information they choose in gathering material for the essays.

Under the rules of the contest—open to all grammar and high school students in Georgia—essays must be written on the typewriter or with pen and ink. Only one side of the paper should be used and contestants must write their name, age, school and class attended plainly at the top of the first page. Entries must be postmarked before midnight, December 22, in order to be eligible for one of the three cash prizes.

For the best essay, The Constitution is offering a silver cup and $10 in cash; for the second best, $10 in cash, and for the third best, $5 in cash. The winning essay will be read at the state celebration in Augusta January 2, the date of the 150th anniversary of Georgia's ratification of the Constitution of the United States.

Bewildered Pup Will Sire Strain To Guide Blind

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Mr. Von Sonnebach—now just a bewildered, 4-month-old German police puppy—is destined to become the sire of a strain of pedigreed dogs that in the future will lead Alabama's blind "through the dark."

Governor Bibb Graves sketched Mr. Von Sonnebach's future to a press conference shortly after the pup arrived as a special gift to the chief executive from Judge Edgar Watkins Sr., an Atlanta friend.

Governor Glows.

Glowing proudly, the Governor told of his plans, "which may take two or three years," to provide every sightless graduate of the Alabama State School for the Deaf and Blind with a highly bred guide dog.

A staff member of the Talladega Institution, the chief executive said, will take Mr. Von Sonnebach to the Seeing Eye Institute, world-famous guide dog training center. The staff member will learn to train the now straggling pup's descendants, aiding them in developing what the Governor hopes will become inborn traits of guidance.

Serve as Friend.

"At the beginning of each blind student's senior year," the Governor said, "we hope to provide him or her with a dog or puppy that will serve as a friend and guide through life, or at least a big portion of it.

"Over that year human being and canine can form an undying attachment and the animal will lead his master in lanes of safety, even learning through his training to know the traffic light signals.

"Judge Watkins' pedigreed pup, we hope, will prove a God send to our sightless fellow Alabamans."

RELICS OF KING TUT STOLEN IN LONDON

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(UP)—The theft of a wooden box containing relics from the tomb of Tutankhamen, ancient Egyptian ruler, which were addressed to the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Museum, was revealed by police today.

The box was stolen yesterday from a truck in the East End district. The relics were valued at about $1,750 and were being transferred from a ship from Egypt to a New York-bound boat.

'POLICY GAME' VICTIM FOUND DEAD ON RIVER

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(UP)—The East river yielded up the battered body of Michael Mazzardi today a few hours after his slayers had "liquidated" him in the $100,000,000 numbers racket.

Mazzardi was believed to have been a victim of rival factions in the lucrative "policy game." His head was caved in and his body hacked, probably with a hatchet. In his pockets were found a set of number slips and envelopes and three five-dollar checks made out to cash.

KILLERS ON TRAIL, EX-RED AIDE SAYS

Former Charge D'Affaires Asks Aid in Paris.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—(UP)—Alexandre Barmine, former Russian charge d'affairs in Athens who fled to France and then resigned his post in defiance of orders to return to Moscow, asserted tonight that "paid killers" of the Soviet are following him around Paris.

Barmine, a Russian diplomat since the days of the revolution, sent an imploring letter to the League for the Rights of Man, appealing for the protection of colleagues who, like himself, have disapproved of Dictator Stalin's purge.

"I realize the dangers to which I have exposed myself in acting this way," Barmine said. "I have signed my own death warrant and exposed myself to the blows of paid killers."

MEMORIAL TO ELKS TO BE HELD TODAY

20 Members of Atlanta Lodge Have Died During Past Year.

Atlanta lodge of Elks will hold its annual memorial service at 8 o'clock tonight at the Peachtree Chapel, 860 Peachtree street, corner Seventh.

Twenty members of the lodge have died during the past year. They are:

T. S. Chancellor, J. A. Felton, J. W. Lyerly, Paul E. Rapier, M. B. Torbett, James A. Marks, M. P. Word, Collins Bird, Ben F. May, James F. Race, Charles F. Huber, the Rev. W. W. Memminger, Bruce N. Hansberber, W. B. Griffin, the Rev. Russell K. Smith, Andrew B. Madison, Charles McCann, Levi A. Massell, Charles E. Shore Jr. and Edwin F. Johnson.

The memorial oration will be delivered by Dr. Robert S. Barrett, of Alexandria, Va., high Elk official, president of the National Florence Crittendon Mission, and a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of England.

A special musical program has been arranged, the choir of the Covenant Presbyterian church, with Mrs. W. A. DeLamor as organist and director, will give "The Beautiful City." Solos also will be sung by Mrs. Rose Barone, "Oh, Saviour Hear Me," and by Ed Armstrong, "There Is No Death."

The officers of the lodge, headed by Dr. I. H. Etheridge, exalted ruler, will have charge of the ritual.

Committee in charge of arrangements is J. Charles Gavan, chairman; John S. McClelland, J. O. Perry Jr., I. S. Moss and John Peel.

CUT IN RED TAPE IS URGED TO FHA

Shorter Time in Processing Mortgage Projects Is Suggested.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Tentative proposals for rental housing projects have been made to the Georgia insuring office of the Federal Housing Administration by Atlanta and Savannah interests.

Sponsors of the proposals were not disclosed by the agency.

It announced, however, modification of regulations to expedite the processing of applications involving insurance of mortgages on rental housing projects.

W. A. Sirmon, Georgia director of the FHA, said his office would be able to make preliminary decisions as to acceptability of rental housing projects, cutting down the processing time considerably.

Local offices will be able, also, to obtain at first hand, certain information which formerly was obtainable only after inspection tours by members of the Washington headquarters staff.

Other modifications in rules provide for a new type of mortgage which allows, in the case of projects involving construction of single family units, for the release of that part of the mortgage involving structures which are sold.

Another new provision allows for additional dividends, not in excess of 2 per cent per annum over and above the 6 per cent permitted now under certain conditions.

M'CREA APPOINTED HUPP DISTRIBUTOR IN ATLANTA AREA

Two New Models Introduced in Program for More Room and Luxury.

As the 1938 Hupmobile went on display in Atlanta showrooms yesterday, appointment of John E. McCrea, of 555 West Whitehall street, S. W., as Hupmobile distributor in Atlanta was announced by W. A. MacDonald, vice president and director of sales of Hupp Motor Car Corporation.

Under agreement with the factory, McCrea has been given exclusive distribution for 21 counties in central and southern Georgia. He has been in the automobile business for more than 14 years.

Two completely new cars, a "six" and an "eight," are being introduced to the riding public of America this year by the Hupp corporation. Larger and roomier than previous Hupps, the new cars offer modern streamlining and luxurious interiors.

Now on display in Atlanta showrooms, the new Hupps are offered with a choice of three body styles in both chassis—a six-passenger sedan, a trunk model sedan, and a three-passenger coupe.

Mounted on a 122-inch wheelbase and powered by a 101-horsepower engine, the "six" is available in standard, regular, and custom models. The "eight," provided in regular and custom models, is mounted on a 125-inch wheelbase and powered by an "eight-in-line" 120-horsepower engine.

Both the "six" and the "eight" are priced in what automobile dealers term the "middle brackets."

Emphasis is placed on comfort and extremes of style are avoided in the new Hupp, in conformity with the Detroit factory's 30-year tradition. The "six" is billed by the Hupp corporation as the largest six-cylinder automobile offered on the 1938 market, measuring 203 3-4 inches in over-all length. A complete stock of Hupmobile parts, accessories and new factory equipment for servicing all Hupmobile owners in the Georgia territory is being installed in Atlanta offices.

With emphasis placed on comfort and modern streamlines, the new 1938 Hupmobile went on display yesterday in Atlanta showrooms. Extremes of style are avoided in the new Hupp cars. Two new cars—a "six" and an "eight" are offered for approval of the American riding public. The "six" gets its power from a 101-horsepower engine and has an overall length of 203 inches. The "eight" is powered by an "eight-in-line" 120-horsepower engine and is mounted on a 125-inch wheelbase.

Daughter of City's First Baby Lives Here

Mrs. Atticus B. Sanders recalls many events of early Atlanta by a number of valuable photographs and by stories told her by her mother, the late Mrs. Walter Withers, who was known as Atlanta's first baby. She was Julia Carlisle and was born in Marietta in 1842.

Atlanta's First Baby Not Born Here! Daughter Reveals Mother's Story

Terminus Didn't Have Medical Facilities for Birth, So Event Took Place in Marietta—Covered Wagon Days Recalled.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

"Atlanta's first baby" was not born in Atlanta.

She was born in Marietta August 17, 1842, but three weeks later, safely stored in a covered wagon, she jounced back to her real home at Terminus, Atlanta's name then, and introduced to the little town the novelty of a baby's cries and a baby's laughter. She lived there 77 years. Her name was Julia Carlisle.

Her daughter, Mrs. Atticus B. Sanders, who resides in Atlanta, recalls some of the interesting experiences her mother recounted before her death in 1919.

Built at Terminus.

"My mother was the daughter of Sara White and Willis Carlisle and they married in Marietta and came here when the city was a mere trading post and was known as Terminus. There were many problems to be met by newcomers and not only was it necessary to clean the shanty where they lived to make it fit for habitation, but the real "home" had to be made.

"They had to cast about for stock to open a store and things were not as easy as many think. When my mother was born, the nearest physician lived in Decatur and there were no families near to render aid at a time like that. My mother's mother realized this, so she went with her mother, Mrs. James White, to the old family home in Marietta for the event. That is why Atlanta's first baby was really born in Marietta."

The young baby grew up and married W. S. Withers in 1862. He was in charge of a foundry which at the time was turning out great quantities of war supplies for the Confederate army. When General Sherman marched through Georgia in 1864 he put an end to such aid and the Withers family moved to Tennessee.

Saga of Return.

"I have often heard my mother tell of this trip back to Atlanta," continued Mrs. Sanders. "She said the journey required five days, partly in a box car. She said the engineer, realizing the hardships of the women with their families, would stop the train along the route in order that the women could do their washing. They would stop the train near a stream and after all the washing was done, the clothing was hung on trees to dry. They transferred from the box car to a covered wagon for the latter part of the trip."

Mrs. Sanders' father established the Withers Foundry Company, which is one of the oldest in the city. It arose with Atlanta from the ashes.

Her mother, she recalled yesterday, was a very progressive person, but she nevertheless disliked to see the march of progres here cause the destruction of the old landmarks.

Kept Up With Wars.

"Mother never lost her interest in present-day affairs. I remember that when Atlanta's big fire occurred in 191" she said that it brought back memories of Sherman and his march. She was always interested in war news and during the Spanish-American and the World War she kept an active check-up on the position of the troops and the outcome of every battle. And speaking of the war, I remember how mother was disgusted at the girls during the "flapper age" which was in its ascendancy at that time. She wore her old-fashioned dresses and her little bonnets to the last days of her life. She loved to ride on street cars and often spoke of the days of the horse-drawn cars. I myself have a thrill over the new electric cars. Mother and I rode on the first electric car which ran out Edgewood."

Mrs. Sanders, who was Julia Willis Withers, is the widow of Atticus B. Sanders, a Methodist minister who died last year. At her home on Winter avenue she has an interesting collection of relics which belonged to her mother, including a black taffeta dress and black lace shawl.

Her father was one of the first five commissioners of Atlanta and went with the others to Milledgeville to obtain the charter for the city.

MAN SHOT IN HOLDUP OF FINANCE COMPANY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 4. (AP)—Police said a man who told them he was Roy C. Layton, 33, of Cleveland, Ohio, was wounded today in the holdup of a finance company on the fifth floor of a bank building here. Layton was shot when J. D. Tittle, owner of the firm, opened fire on him and a companion. Both men fled down the five flights of stairs.

The other robber escaped with a sum estimated at $300 to $400.

EUROPEAN SQUADRON GETS NEW COMMANDER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Henry E. Lackey relieved Rear Admiral Arthur P. Fairfield at Ville Franche, France, today as commander of the European squadron, the Navy Department announced.

The squadron, composed of the cruiser Raleigh and the destroyers Claxton and Manley, was sent to Europe last year to assist evacuation of refugees from Spain.

The smallest known bird that cannot fly is the Atlantisia, a little bird of the rail family, living only in one South Pacific island.

HOOVER TAX QUERY IS HELD ROUTINE

Morgenthau Invites Former President To Complain If Unfairly Treated.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—(UP) Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr., tonight invited former President Herbert Hoover or any other taxpayer who feels he has been persecuted or unfairly treated by revenue agents to report the facts to him. He promised an immediate investigation.

Morgenthau issued a formal statement criticizing "persons of a suspicious turn of mind" who conclude that persecution is involved in the investigation of the income tax returns of political opponents of the Roosevelt administration.

He referred specifically to statements attributed to Professor William Starr Myers, of Princeton University, that the tax returns of former President Hoover were under investigation.

Morgenthau was informed that Myers had denied the statements attributed to him and that Laurence Richey, secretary to Mr. Hoover, had said that the former President had not been "annoyed by any tax investigation."

Morgenthau replied that he was issuing his statement primarily to counteract the effects of the remarks originally credited to Professor Myers.

Morgenthau said he did not know whether Mr. Hoover's returns had been scrutinized by revenue agents, but, he added, it would be a "surprising omission" if they had not been. He said that all returns disclosing net income of more than $25,000 are regularly examined and verified.

Out-of-Town Belle Is Feted Debutante Here

Pictured above is a charming likeness of Miss Wileyna Upshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman L. Upshaw, of Eufaula, Ala., an attractive out-of-town belle who is a member of Atlanta's 1937-38 Debutante Club. Miss Upshaw is spending the winter with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Eubank, who were hosts last month at the Piedmont Driving Club at a brilliant supper-dance, at which their niece made her formal bow to society. The occasion assembled a large number of prominent Atlantans and out-of-town guests. Miss Upshaw is a representative of distinguished southern families and during her debut season in Atlanta she has been the inspiration for innumerable social gayeties and an attractive figure attending the affairs at the clubs given for the debutante coterie. The sketch of Miss Upshaw was drawn by Grace Scarboro from a photograph by Bascom Biggers.

Federation Cookbook Sale Realizes Fund for Endowment

In planning the cookbook being distributed by Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, the editor, offered the clubs the privilege of using it to make additional contributions to the Ella F. White Endowment Fund. It is thought that in this way, clubs desiring to do so can secure the 75 cents per capita contribution for new members received since first achieving the honor roll. Payments to the endowment fund were made on the basis of present membership as shown in the 1936-37 yearbook and on past contributions as shown in the last report of the chairman, Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick.

Many clubs took advantage of the offer and the following contributions are credited to Millen, $25; Moultrie, $25; Pelham, $11.50; Columbus, $79.75; Fort Valley, $15.00; Bowdon, $11.25; Hogansville, $25; LaGrange, $22.50; Manchester, $5; Hapeville, $25; Macon, $17.25; Dallas, $23.75; Valdosta, $25; Buford, $21.25; Canton, $24.25; Jefferson, $6.75; Toccoa, $50; Athens, $55.50; Elberton Woman's Club, $25. These amounts total $483.75, which has been paid to Ella F. White fund. Athens Woman's Club and Wynnton Club, of Columbus, used the book to reach a coveted position on the Founders' roll. Albany, Thomasville, Atlanta, Decatur, Augusta and Elberton Sorosis participated in the book and are on the honor roll of Ella F. White.

It will be of interest to know that the cookbook is having gratifying sales and receiving extravagant praise. The second edition is being published and will be ready for the holiday sales. The price is $1 with an addition 10 cents for postage. Books may be ordered from Mrs. Ritchie or from state headquarers at Henry Grady hotel, Atlanta.

Junior Division of LaGrange Club Entertains Members, State Officers

Junior division of LaGrange Woman's Club was hosts on the club day for the November meeting and it was outstanding in interest, intertainment and attendance. The program arranged by the section chairman, Mrs. Tom Hutchinson featured addresses by state officers in Georgia clubdom.

Mrs. Wilber Freeman, president, presided and following the reading of the collect by Mrs. D. E. Morgan, presented Mrs. Tom Hutchinson, junior division chairman, who directed the program. She introduced the three speakers, Mrs. A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge, state president of Georgia Federation of Woman's Clubs; Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, director of the federation, and Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, resident trustee of Tallulah Falls school.

Mrs. Conger's message to the clubwomen brought a challenge to service. Opening her talk with a thrilling tribute to the pioneer clubwoman, Mrs. Conger urged clubwomen to take a stand in the nation-wide program for the education of the youth, who today are the nation's chief asset, tomorrow the nation's chief hope. She emphasized the importance of character building through education and home influence, urging the necessity of guarding our natural heritage, citizenship.

Mrs. Ritchie paid tribute to Ann Hutchinson and the organization of clubs under her direction. Pointing to the three main objectives of clubwomen: Development of social contacts, study for self-improvement and welfare work, she emphasized the influence of the home, its influence being wide, high and never ending, and a direct challenge to women as the builders of the nation.

Naming student aid, Tallulah Falls school and Ella F. White Foundation as the three principal state club projects, Mrs. Fitzpatrick spoke of the work done and sponsored by these projects. The Tallulah Falls school was represented in her talk and she told of the influence of the school on the lives of boys and girls throughout the state who have attended the school.

Mrs. Harry Spikes, secretary of LaGrange Club, submitted for approval for membership the names of Mesdames L. D. Nash, J. C. Amos, Austin Cook, E. V. Hillyer, LaFayette Mobley, John Guinn Young, John Stewart, Harvey Hallman, Alton Daniel, C. M. Turner, Seaborn Evans, Preston Dunson, F. M. Chalker, Phillip Smith, Hal Brady Jr., John Ferguson, Alice A. Williams, Misses Kate Wisdom, Rachel O'Neal.

Tea was served with Mrs. Lawrence Hillhouse and Mrs. Eugene Crayton presiding at the attractively appointed tea table, which was overlaid with a lace cloth and centered with a silver urn filled with yellow and white chrysanthemums, flanked with yellow tapers in silver holders. Mesdames Charles Geer, Joe Edmondson Jr., John Wilcox, Charles Nichols, B. W. Whorton and Miss Natalyn Pike assisted in serving.

Central figures at a luncheon given by junior division of the LaGrange Woman's Club to visiting clubwomen were Mrs. A. B. Conger, of Bainbridge; Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, and Mrs. Z. I. Patrick, of Tallulah Falls.

The luncheon at the Colonial hotel was laid on a U-shaped table featuring a low mound of white and yellow chrysanthemums as a centerpiece with low bowls of white and yellow dahlias at intervals along the table.

Mrs. Wilber Freeman, president of the local club, introduced the honor guests, who made appropriate responses. Mrs. Tom Hutchinson, chairman of hosts, gave a toast to the honorees. Miss Elizabeth Gilbert, of LaGrange College, sang solos, with Mrs. Arthur Thompson accompanying.

Others attending were Mesdames John Seay, H. R. Slack, Eugene Crayton, W. C. Cureton, T. G. Polhill, Seth Newsom, Phillip Smith, John Guinn Young, J. L. Wright, Leon Meadors, Neil Glass, William Knapp, W. P. Dunson, Hal Brady Jr., Charles Nichols, Ethel Dallis Hill, LaFayette Mobley, John Stewart, C. M. Turner, Lutjer Wyatt, George Cobb Jr., Earle Johnson, Jarrell Dunson, B. W. Whorton, T. N. Kinney, D. E. Morgan, Misses Margaret Edmundson, Bessie Walker Calloway, Kathleen Pope, Natalyn Pike and Mary Grimes.

Tallulah Falls School Christmas Dates.

Personal gifts committee of the Young Matrons' Circle of Tallulah Falls school will wrap and label Tallulah gifts at a spend-the-day party at the residence of Mrs. William D. Owens, 1610 Ponce de Leon, on December 10. Mrs. William Warren and Mrs. Owens are co-chairmen of this gift committee which works in close harmony with the commercial gifts committee which provides all sorts of good things to go up in the same truck; chairmen are Mrs. Harris Robinson, Mrs. Robert Toules.

Gifts for the school will go up on December 17, in Mr. Beaudry's truck. There will be dinner and gifts distributed to the faculty and to the dormitory pupils on December 22. At 9 o'clock on the morning of December 23 there will be a Christmas pageant and the school will close for the holidays around 11 o'clock. School reopens on Monday, January 3, 1938.

Faculty and Students Enjoy Festive Event

Thanksgiving dinner at Tallulah Falls school was also the birthday celebration for the Novemberborn among faculty and students. Tables seating 150 were decorated with pumpkins and fruit sent in a truck by the Athens Tallulah Circle. With only yellow candles for lighting, the dining room presented an attractive spectacle. Added to the pumpkin and fruit decorations at the birthday table at which 20 were seated, was a small wagon (cut by one of the boys) filled with apples and drawn by eight harnessed turkeys.

By the wagon walked sturdy Pilgrim fathers with clothes-pin foundations and correct costumes. A tiny Pilgrim father and mother in black coat, white collars, and hats, shovel and coifs, stood at the plate of each guest. A Thanksgiving program closed the evening, the last feature being the reading, to piano obligato, of Lucy Larcom's beautiful Thanksgiving poem, "I Thank Thee, Oh, God."

Thirty of the faculty and students remained at the school through the holiday season, a joyous one, shared by young and old. Appropriate exercises for the whole school closed the school on Wednesday, and preparation for observing of the season was begun with a special student prayer service on Sunday evening preceding Thanksgiving. Tallulah is one of the few remaining places far enough removed from the bustle and confusion of life today to be able to enjoy the significance of the changing seasons.

New Members Join Club at Macon

Mrs. Leonard Booth, president of Macon Woman's Club, presided at the recent meeting when Mesdames L. C. Sheehan, D. D. Kinnett, Walter Bell, Eugene Boswell, W. H. Bagwell, H. H. Dent and B. E. Swallum were welcomed as new members.

Macon clubwomen gave a Georgia products luncheon recently at the Baconsfield clubhouse, at which Stanley Elkan spoke on the "Citizens' Fact-Finding Movement." The centerpiece on the speakers' table was a "coach and four," represented by a pumpkin filled with fruit and drawn by four miniature turkeys. At intervals were mounds of apples, oranges, grapes and bananas outlined with bright leaves. The fruit and nuts were sent to the children at the Open Air school.

Mrs. Dice Anderson, the program chairman, introduced Mr. Elkan, who is district governor of the Lions Club of Georgia and Macon chairman of the fact finders' co-ordinating committee. He stated that the purpose of this movement is to present information about Georgia, believing that if enough people begin thinking in terms of possibilities some one may have a bright idea and really do something to better conditions in the state.

"The only hope for improvement in the field of politics is in the hands of women," Mr. Elkan said. He urged clubwomen to expand their efforts in that direction, to study all controversial questions and to vote always for the candidate who would do the most for Georgia.

Miss Lucille Nelson, head of the voice department of Wesleyan Conservatory, was introduced by Mrs. Stanley Elkan, chairman of music, and sang, accompanied by Mrs. Albert Jelks.

Royston Clubwomen Hold Meeting.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. S. D. Brown, Mrs. Branson James presided at the recent meeting of the Royston Woman's Club. A new member, Mrs. W. B. Higginbotham, was enrolled and visitors welcomed were Mesdames Lamar Rucker, E. D. Pusey, of Athens; A. B. Loden, C. D. Hart, of Colbert, and L. E. Bannister, of Canon. Mrs. D. T. Barnes, in charge of the program, presented Mrs. Rucker, who talked on "Georgia, Past and Present, As a Woman Sees It." Mrs. Lady Veal and members of her committee read poems by Georgia writers and recommended the new book, "No Ten Commandments," written by Edwin Marshall, of Augusta.

Mrs. H. L. McCarty reported $26.63 realized from a benefit, the amount to be used in improving the clubhouse grounds. The club went on record as approving the indorsement of the candidacy of Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, for the office of recording secretary in the general federation. Mrs. James asked that for the Christmas decorations only living shrubs be used in order to conserve evergreens. Members will keep open house on Christmas and there will be an award for the best indoor decoration and the most attractive outdoor arrangement. A saxophone solo was played by L. H. Persells, with Miss Nelle Scoggins at the piano.

Mrs. Killette Speaks To Warm Springs Club.

The Warm Springs Woman's Club met Thursday at the attractive home of Mrs. S. P. Killian, with Mrs. O. H. Alexander as co-hostess. The president, Mrs. W. G. Harry, presided.

Mrs. R. A. Sloan gave a talk on "Armistice Day." Two minutes of silent prayer was observed, after which Mrs. W. H. Huntington closed with a prayer for peace. Mrs. H. E. Poor presented the poppies for sale.

A number of visitors were welcomed, and one new member, Mrs. Warner Hill, of Greenville, was added to the roll. The treasurer gave her report. $10.00 was voted for the "Foundation Endowment Fund." Announcement was made of check for $25.00 from Henry Pope, of Chicago. Mrs. R. A. Sloan was appointed chairman of Red Cross roll. Mrs. O. H. Alexander appointed chairman of cooking school to be held soon. Mrs. S. P. Killian, Mrs. Bevel and Mrs. W. H. Huntington were appointed to serve on the nominating committee.

Mrs. C. J. Kellette, district president, gave an interesting talk. Mrs. W. H. Huntington, delegate to district meeting held at Manchester, gave an instructing report on the work being done by the clubs of this district. Money was raised for the White endowment fund. Mrs. Albert Hill gave a talk on the national resources of Georgia, after which she presented the cook book gotten out by the Georgia clubs. During the social hour the hostesses served tea.

Sylvester Women Vote To Purchase Books.

Sylvester Woman's Club held two autumn meetings, with the president, Mrs. C. H. Strangeward, presiding. At the October meeting new members welcomed were Mrs. S. S. Jenkins, Misses Cowart and Fletcher, Mrs. A. K. Booth and Miss C. A. Anderson. In outlining the yearly program Mrs. J. S. O'Sheal, the chairman, made a talk. Director of the program for the afternoon, Mrs. W. L. H. Alford, reviewed two books, and Mrs. Warren and Mrs. White rendered vocal music. Mrs. R. A. Holmes was greeted as a former member.

At the November meeting members were urged to pay dues and send a list to receive the membership cards from state headquarters. Additional members enrolled are Mrs. P. M. Lancaster and Mrs. W. J. Crowe. It was voted to contribute $10 a month to buy books for the library which is open every day. Mrs. J. H. Tipton gave the book review and Mrs. I. H. Mann sang. Mrs. F. M. Butler entertained with a reading and a quartet was sung by Mrs. Warren. Mrs. A. H. Overton and her committee were hosts during the social hour.

Miss Moore's betrothal to Sidney Jackson Barron, of Valdosta, formerly of Atlanta, is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Walter Moore, of Bolton, the marriage to be solemnized December 28. Miss Grove's engagement is announced by her mother, Mrs. Rivers D. Grove, to Malcolm Connor Tarver Jr., of Dalton, Ga., and Washington, D. C., the marriage to be an event of January. Miss Jones is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lindley Jones, of Canton, who make announcement today of her betrothal to Robert Wyclif Cheatham, of Griffin, the wedding to be solemnized on January 20.

Miss Morton is listed as one of the most popular belles in Columbus, and her marriage to Joseph Hill Bowers will be an important event of December 29, taking place at the First Presbyterian church in Columbus. Miss Hansard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert White Hansard, announce her engagement to Henry Linton Johnson, of this city, formerly of West Point, Ga., the marriage being scheduled for December 27. Miss Mitchener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McClelland Mitchener, of Sumner, Miss., will wed Eugene Otis Skinner, of Atlanta, formerly of New Orleans, in January.

Miss Sarah Jones, of Canton, Ga., To Wed Mr. Cheatham Jan. 20

CANTON, Ga., Dec. 4.—Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lindley Jones, of Canton, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sarah Baldwin Jones, to Robert Wyclif Cheatham, of Griffin, Ga. The marriage will be solemnized on January 20.

Miss Jones' mother was Miss Pearl Turner, of Dawson, Ga., daughter of the late John William Turner and Sarah Baldwin Turner. Her paternal grandparents are the late Robert Tyre Jones and Susie Walker Jones, of Canton.

Miss Jones spent her freshman year at Randolph Macon College, Lynchburg, Va., where she was a member of the Alpha Omicorn Pi social sorority. She compleed her education at Agnes Scott College, from which she was graduated in June, 1936. During her senior year she was business manager of the Silhouette, the college annual.

Mr. Cheatham is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cheatham, of Griffin, Ga. His mother was Miss Janye Jackson, daughter of the late Wycliff Chesterfield Jackson and Victoria McGee Jackson, of Amelia, Va. His paternal grandparents are Mrs. Sara Spikes Cheatham, of Greenwood, S. C., and the late Robert Guthrie Cheatham.

Mr. Cheatham is a graduate of Darlington school and was associated with the State Bank at Griffin for a year after graduation. Since that time he has been connected with the Rushton Cotton Mills at Griffin and at present he is a director and assistant treasurer of that concern.

Under the Cherokee Rose

By Rose Marie

On exhibit this week during the regional conference of WPA directors in Atlanta, was an interesting display from the libraries having WPA co-operation. From Athens, was an attractive miniature "Story-Land Theater," unique in structure and in originality of ideas. It had been a part of the Book Week celebration at the Clarke County library. Athens library is one and one-half years old and was started by Athen's Woman's Club. Georgia Library Association has a contest each year among the small libraries in the state, and the prize a free trip to the state meeting. This year the subject was on "Publicity," and the Athens librarian, Mrs. Hamilton McWhorter, received for the library the award by submitting the best scrapbook on publiicty. Other fine scrapbooks on display and sponsored by clubs, were from Valdosta, Tifton, Ashburn, Camilla and Pelham. Tifton Club Community library, under the WPA program, is open to the public, but continues to be housed in the clubhouse, and sponsored by the education committee of the Twentieth Century Library Club.

Clubwomen throughout Georgia are deeply grieved to learn of the passing of Henry M. Bird, of Bowdon, husband, of Mrs. Bird, who is a valuable member of the official family of Georgia federation, and a loyal worker. Heartfelt sympathy is extended our bereaved friend in her sorrow.

Mrs. A. B. Conger, state president, and Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, director, spent two days at headquarters in Atlanta this week. Mrs. Ritchie's friends are happy to know that she has recovered from a recent illness.

Mrs. J. E. Mercer, prominent Vidalia clubwoman, gave a Bible program at the November meeting of Lyons Woman's Club. Mrs. Mercer is a gifted reader and recognized Bible scholar, and she read from the Book of Ruth. Mrs. R. E. Ledford, president of first district of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, accompanied Mrs. Mercer to Lyons and they will present programs in December in Midville and in Vidalia. The Book of Esther will be presented by Mrs. Mercer to the Midville club, and a Bible pageant has been arranged for the Vidalia clubwomen and their friends.

"The America I Want" was the the subject for an essay contest sponsored by Manchester Woman's Club among the high school students. Miss Helen Haynes won first place, with Misses Mary Dowling and Julia Frances Harry tying for second. Ninety-six entered the contest and were directed by Miss Vesta Hammett, member of the faculty. The winning essays were read at the November meeting of the Manchester Woman's Club, which was largely attended. Twenty-five dollars was sent to Ella F. White endowment for jubilee year. New members enrolled were: Mesdames Roy Foster, R. L. Thompson and R. S. Harris, making 11 new members since September.

With the first vice president, Mrs. J. A. McDowell, presiding, Talbotton Woman's Club featured a program on International Relations, directed by Mrs. Carter Matthews. Numbers included a song of peace, sung by a group of boys and girls; a paper by Mrs. R. H. McRae; reading, by Mrs. F. R. Spivey, and verses by Mrs. H. P. Hewett. A pleasant feature was the "white elephant" sale, staged by the committee on finance, Mrs. J. P. Shumate, chairman. Mrs. Feller Spivey was auctioneer. Mrs. W. L. Perryman introduced as visitors Mrs. H. W. Joiner, wife of the recently appointed pastor of the Methodist church, and her daughter, Mrs. Alford, of Sylvester.

Mrs. Helen W. Coxon, for three consecutive terms representative of Long county in the state legislature, will speak at the "co-operation dinner" to be given December 13 by the Georgia Association of Women Lawyers in Atlanta. Her subject is "Woman's Work in a Law-Making Body." The invitation is decorated with a rising sun as a background, emblematic of the light shining on Georgia, represented by a woman's figure with a banner in one hand bearing the motto, "Wisdom, Justice, Moderation," and in the other hand, scales in which men and women are balanced.

Suggestions for Press Chairmen Are Issued by General Chairman

The department of press and publicity in the General Federation of Women's Club, through the chairman, Mrs. J. Henry Highsmith, of Raleigh, N. C., issues an appeal entitled "Write It to Be Read," which should be studied by every press chairman and writer of club news. "Every person writing club publicity a trained person," is not only the objective of Mrs. Highsmith's department, but the theme song of her efforts. Training in journalism through a regular college course, a summer course, a recognized correspondence court, or through the study of text books is advocated for every inexperienced press chairman. Writing for the press is not a mere pick-up job which just anyone can do. Even for the person with a gift for writing, it requires a knowledge of certain principles of journalism and some training in the technique of writing for the press.

"The Federation of Women's Clubs looks forward to the time when every press chairman will have at least elementary training in the art of newspaper writing and will be familiar with the methods of gathering and handling news. This accomplishment may be too much to hope for in one administration, or perhaps in several, but there is encouragement in the fact that clubwomen are becoming aware of the ineffectiveness of poor publicity and are willing to do something about it. They have been asked to appoint only persons with training or experience to the job of writing club news, and where there are no trained persons available, to help provide training for those who are willing and interested in doing the work.

"What is more heartening, press chairmen are beginning to realize that training is essential to honest effort, and they are showing a willingness to seek preparation for their jobs. In response to their calls for help, the department of press and publicity has prepared these suggestions in the hope that they will serve as stepping stones toward the goal of a "trained personnel writing news of the federation."

"Publicity is an effort to influence public opinion in behalf of a person, cause, or organization by presenting from time to time information that is current, truthful and interesting. It should be written so as to create for the cause a feeling of respect, dignity and importance. Club publicity depends on whether the members are actually doing something or not. If they are, the press always co-operates. We cannot depend upon what has been done in the past to get good publicity for the present.

"And the announcement of plans about what is to be done in the future never makes as good news story as an announcement of what has been already done. If some piece of work has been finished, announce it then, put it in the papers, and there will be an immediate reader response. People will say, "That club has done something," not "is going to do something."

"If the publicity article is to command good space in the newspapers, besides having news value it must be written in accordance with the established rules of journalish. Slovenly prepared work of the amateur is likely to find its way to the waste basket. News is written in the third person. In the first paragraph are told the most important facts, with lesser facts treated according to their interest in the remainder of the story. Far too many reporters write their stories just as club secretary writes her minutes. Routine procedure, things that have happened time and time again, has no news value.

"Only the highlights of a meeting are wanted and that in the order of their importance. Clearness and brevity are two elements of style demanded by publicity writers. Adjectives should be used with discretion, also all superlative statements. The importance of accuracy cannot be too indelibly stamped on the writer's consciousness. She should make sure of every statement, every name, initial, place and date. Names used for the first time should have the correct initials, and the proper prefix, Mrs. or Miss. Punctuation marks which do not contribute to the clarity of the meaning are omitted. A study of newspaper style will help clear up this question.

"A club reporter should have at her finger's tip all the useful information about her organization, as she cannot write enthusiastically about that with whom she is not familiar. In addition to having a "nose for news," a flair for writing," tact, initiative and training in technique, other qualifications suggested are:

1. Sufficient knowledge of and belief in a cause to be willing to give plenty of time to the work. 2. Sufficient judgment to be able to correlate the subject in hand with the temper of the day's news. 3. Sufficient good common sense to distinguish between essentials and non-essentials. 4. Sufficient command of the English language to steer clear of the trite and the commonplace. 5. Sufficient knowlof human nature to be able to whet curiosity and to establish sustained interest. 6. Sufficient grasp of human affairs to sense the opportune moment to seek a hearing. 7. Sufficient courage to meet endless rebuffs and learn by them."

New Members Welcomed by Clayton

Clayton Woman's Club met recently at the community house with Mesdames R. C. Nicholson, L. F. Reeves and V. A. Green as hostesses. The president, Mrs. C. R. Hendrix, welcomed as new members Mesdames J. H. Jollay and C. M. Dickerson, and as visitors, Mesdames R. R. Mize, Mrs. M. C. Berrong, A. B. McConnel, A. J. Ritchie and Dr. T. H. McHatton.

Mrs. J. C. Dover, chairman of year book committee, reported the club year books ready for distribution. Reports of Mrs. C. W. Holden, chairman of Tallulah Falls committee, was gratifying. A check for one dollar per capita will be mailed to the trustees of the school in a few days. Members voted to send a contribution to the student aid foundation.

Miss Mary Teasley was asked by the president to have charge of the program on "Character Education." Rev. F. Q. Echols presented the plans of a community "White Christmas," which was adopted. A committee of three, Mrs. J. A. Green, Mrs. G. L. Tomlin and Mrs. T. J. Hamby, were appointed, by the president to work with committees from other organizations.

Mrs. Taylor asked members to co-operate with the finance committee by using and helping to sell steel wool. The president called attention to members that the club sponsors the Rabun County Library and that another drive is on for books. Mrs. J .B. Parker has been added to the membership committee.

Program on "American Homes," presented by Mrs. W. L. Ryals, featured Dr. T. H. McHatton, University of Georgia horticulturist, gave an instructive talk on "Gardens," dealing with the time and way to move and plant native shrubbery. Dr. McHatton appealed to the club to use native shrubbery. Mesdames J. A. Green, F. Q. Echols, J. W. Cooper and Miss Mae McDowell will be December hostesses.

How to Make Better Cough Remedy Than You Can Buy

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!

Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It is far better than anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is positively the most effective, quick-acting cough remedy that money could buy. Instantly, you feel it penetrating the air passages. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen its equal for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

HOKE SMITH BOYS PRINT OWN PAPER

Six Issues of School Paper Have Been Prepared by Printing Classes.

The boys' printing classes, under the supervision of H. H. Heiden, have printed and distributed six editions of the Hoke Smith school paper, The Vanguard, to the student body this semester. The editorial staff of the Vanguard, under the leadership of Mrs. Ben F. Meyer, is striving to make it bigger and more interesting to the students.

The work of the home economics class for boys, organized the first of this semester, compares very favorably with that of the girls' classes of the same subject, according to Mrs. Leon E. Brawner, the teacher of the class. The boys have named it the Social Training class. It was started because it was thought that some of the boys would be interested in joining such a class.

Hoke Smith is planning a large Christmas program, which will be presented shortly before the Christmas holidays. The Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs, under the supervision of Miss Ruby Lankford, and the Hoke Smith orchestra, directed by N. R. Beacham, will take part on the program.

LIBERTY-GUINN SCHOOL.

The November edition of the Liberty-Guinn Herald has been published and contains news of all the grades that is interesting to the patrons of the school as well as to the pupils.

The third graders have made booklets about corn and they have studied different kinds of soil.

As a part of their study of North America, the fourth graders are making maps showing the first discoveries and settlements.

The fifth grade is making a social science scrapbook. The pupils are divided into five groups, and each group is gathering material on a different subject.

In their study of the ancient world, the sixth grade pupils have been especially interested in a comparison of the religions of the Greeks and the Hebrews.

A class meeting is held in the seventh grade room for 15 minutes every Tuesday morning with J. W. Childers, president, in charge. They surprised their teacher, Miss Burnett, with a fruit shower last week.

MT. VERNON SCHOOL.

Lucille Smith and Fred Brewer are the representatives from Mt. Vernon school to the Junior Red Cross council meetings and Miss Effie Davis is faculty sponsor. The school has a 100 per cent membership.

Mrs. Creel's fourth and fifth grades presented a Thanksgiving program and the school filled 10 baskets for the needy.

CASCADE SCHOOL.

Pupils at the Cascade school are especially interested in a course in Red Cross first aid taught by Mrs. O. M. Mitchell, principal and seventh grade teacher. Mrs. Mitchell took the course given by Dr. L. M. Thompson, from the National Red Cross headquarters, Washington, D. C., and holds a class at the school every Wednesday morning.

All the children are looking forward to the time when Mrs. Frank Wells will come to the school to tell them the story of "The Other Wise Man."

LENA H. COX SCHOOL.

An Arbor Day program was presented by Mrs. Marcus' fourth grade at the assembly on Friday. A musical program was given by the boys' chorus for daddies' night and the girls' chorus will sing Christmas carols on the Christmas program. Mrs. Dodd has charge of both choruses.

Miss Baird, assisted by all the teachers will present a program, "A Voyage Through Bookland," next week. On Wednesday, December 8, there will be a matinee for the children, and on Friday a performance at 7:30 p. m. The players will be dressed as characters of books and will step from the pages of a large book on the stage.

CHATTAHOOCHEE SCHOOL.

The fifth grade is delighted to have Annie Louise Payne, of Marietta, as a classmate.

The following children from Miss Barfield's grade had perfect spelling records for the first quarter: Leila Hales, Mayes Walranch, Freddie Lawson and Boyd Williams.

Children in Miss Alexander's room making 100 per cent in spelling for first quarter are Kathryn Smith, Rowena Cooper, Frances Russell, Hoyt Reece, Louise McMichen, Virginia Thomas, Helen Roberson, Lamar Barton and Joe Harris. Perfect attendance records were made by Inez Brannon, Rowena Cooper, Paul Haney, Robert Cain, Henry Pritchett, Sybil Conn, Kathleen Martin, Helen Roberson, Walter Hughes, Frances Russell, Julius Cowart, Clyde Hay, Joe Harris, Lamar Barton, Edward Morris and Paul Wilson. Harry Haney is a new pupil in the fourth grade.

The following children received certificates for summer reading: Virginia Conn, Lena Ruth Thomas, Lillian Chafin, Inez Williamson, Ruth Dodgen, Artie Conn, Ruth Pritchett, Ralph Harmon, Roy Hartsfield, Dorothy Honea, Edwin Thomas, Willis Surles, Harold Harmon, Joseph Surles, Hiram Folds and Jack Loyd.

PEEPLES CLASSES USE LEISURE TIME

Second Graders Choose Special Study Interests.

High and Low 2 of Peeples Street school have chosen for their unit of work "Living and Growing Happily in Our Leisure Time." Books, pets, flowers and Indians were selected as their various interests.

The class attended a show given in our school auditorium by an Indian Princess, White Fawn. Several of the children entered their pets in the Pet Show sponsored by the fourth grade. For the flower group we have a window box in which each child grows and cares for his favorite flowers. On our reading table are attractive books and magazines.

We have invited our sponsor, Mrs. R. G. McAliley, to tell us of her leisure time as a child. Mrs. McAliley is a daughter of Captain Evan P. Howell, who once lived across the street from Peeples Street school. The grounds of this home have been developed into Howell park, and is used as a playground for the children of West End and Peeples Street school.

We have asked our mothers to plan their leisure time so that they can visit with us when Mrs. McAliley comes.

BETTY DAILEY,

PUPILS IN LEE CLASS MAKE GLASS WINDOWS

Low 2 are very sorry to have Mrs. Leitch, their teacher, absent this week.

High 3 have been working earnestly on a project which has not yet been completed. They hope to have it finished next week. The children brought boxes and made a store.

Low 4 are very sympathetic with Ruth Whitlock as she is having her tonsils removed.

High 4 enjoyed their Thanksgiving dinner very much.

A group of boys from Low 5 found a stranger walking in the lower hall, a man without a country. His heavy overcoat led the boys to believe that winter was coming. Several distress warnings have been sent out but Mr. Turtle has never found his former home, so the boys agreed to let him visit their homes a week at a time.

High 5 have been making maple leaves and apple turkeys. They have also planted bulbs and cared for some plants.

High 6 have made a study of bulbs and are very happy to see their first bloom today.

Low 6 are working to make some original stained glass windows. Some attractive designs have been cut.

SPONSOR SENDS GLOBE TO WILLIAMS' LIBRARY

High and Low 6 have finished their castle and tournament scenes. They are preparing a Christmas play connected with the King Arthur stories.

Low 5 are enjoying their health race. We are anxious to see which side will have more points at the end of four weeks for having kept their health rules.

High 3 and High 4 are making toy wagons for Christmas gifts.

Low 3 had 24 perfect spelling papers last week. Mr. Rauschinberg sent us a nice globe for our library.

High 2 are very happy that they were the first to have 100 per cent in teeth.

Low 2 have a harvest scene on their sand table.

High and Low 1 painted a wall border of animals.

Low 1 are busy making white Christmas trees for each table.

JEAN HALLOWAY.

CALHOUN CHILDREN ENJOY SHOP WORK

Sight-Saving Classes Make Christmas Presents.

Third grades have been making health rules to keep them from getting colds and the flu.

Fourth grades enjoyed a week of appreciation of trees and gave a special play for Arbor Day.

Fifth grades have published their first newspaper. It is called the "Weekly News." The wiggle tails they had in their room have changed into mosquitoes.

The Sight Saving classes visited the waterworks. They saw many interesting things. They are getting up a Christmas play called "The Shepherd's Vision."

The sixth grades gave a play called "Mrs. November's Dinner Party," for the P.-T. A. which was "Daddies' Night."

The children in the Sight Saving classes and in the sixth grade are having a grand time working in their shop room. They are making some nice presents for their mothers.

The officers of the school council are: Marian DeLoach, president; Charmaine Smith, vice president, and Brice Purvis, secretary.

SIXTH GRADE AT ADAIR STUDIES WATERFALLS

Low 5-1 are very busy bringing in areoplanes which they have made. Their border tells the history of transportation.

High 6 are enjoying their study of the great waterfalls of the world. They have collected pictures of them.

The front board of High 5 shows a sketch of Adair school featuring the dates 1912-1937. This piece of work was done by Clifford Dumas.

Low 5-2 have made a very interesting sand table about explorations in America.

High 3 made a visit to the Georgia Baptist Orphans' Home. They stopped by the airport on the way back. They enjoyed their trip very much.

Low 1 are very sorry to lose Betty Jo Argo who will move to Savannah.

Low and High 2 went to visit the airport last Tuesday. Their sponsor, T. M. Kiser, carried some of the children in his car. Mrs. Kiser had big sticks of candy to give the children.

In preparation for open house Tuesday night, Low 6 enjoyed making and lettering a portfolio for their written work.

DOROTHY BRINSFIELD,
NAN DRIGGERS.

PUPILS AT HOME PARK DONATE FOOD BASKETS

Our Thanksgiving offering this year consisted of 20 baskets filled with canned goods, groceries and fruits. These were distributed to some of the less fortunate families in our neighborhood, and were greatly appreciated.

Jacqueline Reed led the honor roll in High 5 for the first quarter. Thomas Patillo came second.

Low 4 and High 4 enjoyed a Thanksgiving party together.

High 3 has been "Living and Growing Happily With Our World Neighbors."

Low 3 welcomes Robert Echols from Lakewood Heights.

Low 2 are enjoying making a museum.

High 1 have a library in their room, and have enjoyed reading the books which they get at Carnegie Library.

Low 1 are glad to welcome two children who have been ill, Mary Grace Hendrix and Hazel Fortner. The class received a note of thanks for the fruit basket sent to Joseph Brown, a little boy who would have been a member of the class except for an accident last year.

DORIS PAYNE.

GRANT PARK GIVES MARIONETTE PLAY

Girls Make All Dolls and Scenery for Ten Plays Given at School.

Grant Park school celebrated Arbor Day by having each class plant a tree on the school grounds.

A play on Joel Chandler Harris "Uncle Remus" stories was recently given by the students at the assembly of all of the classes.

The lower grades recently elected their class presidents. Each of the presidents was given his arm band by Miss Allie Mann, the principal, at chapel.

High 6-1 are learning how to set a table correctly.

Low 6 are very proud of several of the girls in their room. Renva Smith and Janette Coalson made marionettes for the Uncle Remus play. These girls, with the help of Harriett Farris, Florence McElreath and Nina Hearn, have given about 10 marionette plays, making all the dolls and scenery.

Low 5 are studying weather. They are keeping a daily weather chart.

Several pupils in Miss Walker's class made interesting trips during the Thanksgiving holidays. These included Laurence Arnold and Dorothy Sloan.

JUANITA MARTIN.

CONNALLY PUPILS FIX CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

The kindergarten children made some apple-sauce for the Thanksgiving party they gave for their mothers.

First grade are working very hard making Christmas presents for their mothers.

Second grade enjoyed learning to read the Thanksgiving booklets they made. High 2 gave a play at the Thanksgiving assembly.

Third grade pupils enjoyed getting ready for Thanksgiving. They made some lovely posters showing what we have to be thankful for.

Fourth grade are glad to be back after a very enjoyable Thanksgiving. They are enjoying their new books from the Carnegie Library.

Sixth grade are glad that Tom Boswell has a chance to go to the art school.

HAZEL IVEY,
JACQUELINE SWATTS.

CAPITOL VIEW OBTAINS NEW BULLETIN BOARD

High 6 and High 5 have a new bulletin board and are they proud of it! What a treat they have had this week in having Miss Tuck read "Honk the Moose" to them.

Low 5 gave Lynn Mote a card shower. He is a patient in the Scottish Rite hospital.

Low and High 3 are getting their house ready for Christmas. Their narcissus bulbs will soon be in bloom.

Low 2 are painting their furniture in their library.

Low 1 have made a fireplace for Christmas, and are decorating their room.

High 1 and High 2 are making a border across the blackboard. Dorothy Stone, Betty Sue Astin and Jack Perry are drawing it.

Urban League.

By JESSE O. THOMAS.

The purpose of the Bulletin is to chronicle the worthwhile things done for, by, and with the negro as a basis of increasing interracial goodwill and understanding.

While the facilities for housing negro tubercular patients both at Alto and Battle Hill are inadequate, much can be done toward the reduction of mortality for this disease and prevention of this scourge through the process of education.

In the midst of these limitations, the Atlanta Tuberculosis Association has done a remarkable job in the past two decades through a constant educational campaign and with the co-operation of many of the physicians of both races in awakening laymen.

Each year during the Thanksgiving season an annual campaign is launched for the purpose of raising a budget to continue and increase the equipment of this organization to the end that a larger number of people might benefit through its educational campaign, nurse service and medical care.

The 1937 drive is now in progress. It is the hope of those engaged in the campaign that the result shall exceed all previous drives. Letters are being sent to individuals and approaches are being made to organizations in an attempt to enlist the sympathetic and intelligent support of every individual and organized group.

The mortality rate of tuberculosis for colored people is abnormally high. An appeal for funds for the purpose of reducing these abnormalities should receive a cordial and generous response.

Recital Tomorrow.

Tomorrow night the wife of Frederick D. Patterson, president of Tuskegee Institute and daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Moton, who is an accomplished harpist and pianist, will appear in recital at the First Congregational church under the auspices of the Wheatley branch of the Young Women's Christian Association.

The association is in need of a building designed to provide the type of activities a modern Y. W. C. A. program demands. During all the years it has existed here it has been handicapped because of the buildings which the organization has occupied have not been adapted to a full Y. W. C. A. program.

In bringing this artist to Atlanta, the association is making a gesture toward increasing intelligence concerning the association's needs as well as its program toward meeting those needs. Those who subscribe toward this effort will receive double indemnity. They will hear a well-balanced, masterfully executed and artistically interpreted musical program. They will also make a small contribution toward enlarging the Y. W. C. A. program of the city.

Guild Players.

The Guild Players, of Atlanta, will present "Brother Job" in Sale Hall at Morehouse College at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. This stirring drama of five scenes was written by Professor A. P. Turner, formerly instructor in dramatics at Florida State College, Tallahassee. It promises to be executed in rapidly moving scenes which will keep its audience on its toes from beginning to end.

Award for Archer.

The "27 Club" which includes in its membership some of the leading physicians, insurance executives, educators and social workers, holds its meetings on the 27th day of the month beginning at 8:27 o'clock. In the early part of the year it included among its activities the giving of an award to some negro citizen of Atlanta for meritorious service. The first recipient of this award, according to the unanimous decision of the club at its recent meeting, will be President S. H. Archer, of Morehouse College.

It will be recalled that the club presented a bronze plaque to the late David T. Howard, some years ago, in recognition of his continuing in business for half a century.

President Archer was born in Petersburg, Va. After receiving his preliminary education in the public school system of Petersburg, he entered Waylan Seminary, in Washington, D. C., which later became Virginia Union and is now located in Richmond, Va.

Following his graduation from this institution he attended and graduated from Colgate University and did three summers of graduate work at Columbia University, New York city.

In 1902, he began his professional career as teacher at Roger Williams University, Nashville, Tenn.

Here 32 Years.

After teaching there three years he came in 1905 to Morehouse College, where he has remained for the past 32 years. He has served as football coach, as teacher, as dean, as acting president and as president. In 1932, he was recipient of the doctor of divinity degree conferred by Colgate University and received the degree of master of arts from Morehouse College in 1923.

No person has had more to do with the development of Morehouse College in the past quarter of a century than is true of President Archer. No member of the faculty, during that period, has been more universally loved by the student body than he. His life and that of the late Dr. Hope were complimentary of each other. There were certain things that needed to be done in the development of Morehouse College that President Hope could do and President Archer could not do. Likewise, there were many necessary things to be done that President Hope could not do which President Archer could not do, qualified to do. In this complimentary manner, these two men labored together in building up one of the most effective training centers for men in the nation.

The "27 Club" award will be presented to President Archer on January 1 in connection with the emancipation exercises at Big Bethel church, under the auspices of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The December issue of Opportunity magazine carries an article on the Mountain View Dairy, owned and operated by Dr. N. B. Nathan. Because of Dr. Nathan's connection with the Atlanta University for a number of years, this article will probably be widely read in eductional and professional circles in Atlanta.

Coincidentally, this issue of the magazine is the valedictory effort of the retiring editor, Elmer Anderson Carter. Beginning January 1, Editor Carter will be employed by the state of New York as a member of the Board of Appeals of the Unemployment Insurance.

A few weeks ago, Dr. Eugene Kinckle Jones, executive secretary of the National Urban League, was appointed a member of the board of examiners by the Civil Service Commission of the state of New York.

The Urban League movement is recognized as a training center by public officials, municipal, state aad federal executives. Perhaps no single organization in America has been responsible for as many negroes occupying welfare positions as the Urban League movement.

When an employe of the League Movement performs his duties in accordance with the standards set by the organization, he is sought after by institutions, organizations and departments of government in need of scientifically trained personnel.

The departure of Editor Carter will afford an opportunity for some other nationally-known person to push his way up the ladder to national and international recognition.

20 KILLED IN CRASH.

BARCELONA, Spain, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Twenty persons were killed and several injured when an electric train and a passenger train collided today near the Aragon railway station in Valencia.

Superintendent's Message.

December 5, 1937.

My Dear Boys and Girls:

One of the great objectives of the Atlanta schools during the year 1937-38 is to secure for all of our people mental and physical health. The Atlanta Tuberculosis Association has rendered great service to the children of Atlanta in preventing sickness and death through tuberculosis. Of course, the children of Atlanta wish to have a part in this work.

The Tuberculosis Association is partly supported by the sale of the Christmas seal. This year, it is a little seal that has on it the "Jolly Bellringer." You know bells have always been the symbols of news. This is a very lovely seal, showing the "Jolly Bellringer." What you and I wish to do is to help in the sale of these Christmas seals; to talk about them in our homes and to tell the story of the Christmas seal.

A great many good things have come to us from the little country of Denmark, and we should be deeply appreciative for the grand service which this little country has rendered. A good many years ago a man in Denmark, with a peculiar name called Ieiner Holboll, was a postmaster in that little country and in mailing the Christmas packages, he said: "If everybody would put just a Christmas seal on their Christmas packages and pay for it he could help fight the great disease of tuberculosis in Denmark." Ask your teacher to tell you about how the Christmas seal was brought to America and help us announce the good news of the conquering of tuberculosis and help us to sell the Christmas seals in order that the fight for good health may go on. Remember we are carrying out one of our fundamental principles—physical and mental health—when we are helping ring the bells in the fight against tuberculosis.

Always your friend,
WILLIS A. SUTTON,
Superintendent of Schools.

Miss Darden, of Hogansville, Weds Dr. E. T. Arnold Jr. at Early Date

HOGANSVILLE, Ga., Dec. 4.—Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Darden of the engagement of their daughter, Harriet Jean, to Dr. Edwin Turner Arnold Jr., of Philomath, Ga., and Chicago, Ill.

The bride-elct, who is the only daughter of her parents, was graduated from LaGrange College in 1936, and at present is a member of the faculty of the Hogansville schools.

Dr. Arnold is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Arnold Sr., of Philomath. He was graduated from the University of Georgia and is now at the Medical School of the University of Chicago. He has also received training at Billings hospital in Chicago.

The couple will be married at an early date at the home of the bride-elect's parents and will make their home in Hogansville.

Cocktails Is Subject Of Meeting Held At Columbus Club

Cocktails was the subject for the meeting, of Columbus Student's' Club held recently with Mrs. James Gilbert as hostess. Mrs. George Burrus, the president, was in the chair, and the subject related to "The Romance of a Dinner," which is being featured by club members. To the question "Why is a woman like a cocktail?" came the following clever answers:

She is an appetizer—and gives real zest to the party.

She establishes atmosphere and sharpens anticipation.

She's a preface to everything good and comes first on every "menu."

She is composed of many various flavors—sometimes tart and nippy—sometimes piquant and chilled—sometimes elusive—sometimes distinctive — oftentimes sweet.

Among these flavors suggestive of—tabasco or fresh fruits as the cherry, peach, lemon cantaloupe, and all the berries.

All American type is best.

Mrs. Jack Passailaigue read an interesting paper for her mother, Mrs. Reynolds Flournoy, on the growth and uses of "Fruits From Sunny Climes." As Mrs. Flournoy and her daughter have traveled extensively in countries which produce tropical and semi-tropical fruits, the paper had a personal touch.

Mrs. George Burrus' talk was on "Fruits from Northern Climes." She discussed the familiar fruits raised in the temperate zones from the orchardist, the dietary, the financial, the esthetic points of view and ended her discussion by wishing members "health, wealth and happiness." She presented huge red apples which she ordered from the state of Washington, to club members as reminders of the interesting meeting.

Jefferson Club Hears Program.

Hosts to the members of Jefferson Woman's Club for the November meeting were Mesdames J. N. Holder, T. T. Benton, H. J. W. Kizer, H. D. Dadisman and W. D. Holliday, at the home of Mrs. Holder. Guest speaker was Mrs. H. P. DeLaPerriere, of Hoschton, who used for her topic "A Clubwoman's Philosophy Toward Literature." She stated that if one had the right attitude toward reading she will have the right attitude toward life, because reading makes one think. We read first for information; second for recreation; third for inspiration. Mrs. De La-Perriere spoke interestingly on a number of authors and their works and gave extracts from the best loved poems. She stated that the Bible and Shakespeare's works should be in every library however small. She stressed the importance of good reading, stating that just as good food is needed for the body, so good reading is necessary to the mind.

Other enjoyable features of the program were a piano solo by Miss Merle Kiningham; a reading by Mrs. L. J. Lyle. An interesting business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. M. M. Bryan, the reports showing that each department was functioning well. Mrs. H. E. Aderhold, public welfare chairman, stated that she had $75 worth of Christmas seals to be sold, and she would be assisted by teachers of Martin Institute. Mrs. T. T. Benton, chairman of legislation, read a list of measures passed by the last legislature and those to be introduced. Miss Eugenia Boone gave a brief talk on agricultural conditions in Jackson county, and Mrs. C. H. Legg gave the highlights from the ninth district meeting in Commerce. Mrs. Bryan named Mrs. H. T. Mobley sponsor of the junior club, and Mrs. Hubert Martin, chairman of Ella F. White endowment fund. The club librarian, Mrs. J. D. Escoe, gave a review of some of the new books and stated that 11 had been added to the shelves since last month. She announced that a tea would be given at the library during the first week in December.

New Club at Trion Elects Officers

Thirty Trion ladies met on September 23 to organize a Woman's Club, the chief objective being the cultural and civic development of Trion and its citizens. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Carleen S. Bell; first vice president, Mrs. G. L. McCartha; second vice president, Mrs. A. E. Lohr; recording secretary, Mrs. J. L. Henderson; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Tom Lawson.

Mrs. Lawson gave the history of the Ella F. White endowment fund and told the jubilee celebration in 1938 when clubs are expected to make a substantial gift to the fund. Delegates to the seventh district meeting in Marietta gave the highlights of the program, including Tallulah Falls school and Student Aid Foundation. Miss Ethel Simmons and Mrs. Willis Dunn gave a history of the federation, and Mrs. J. L. Bennett gave a resume of the talk made by the state president.

Mrs. A. B. Conger and Mrs. C. M. Rogers talked about the federation cookbook, and Mrs. N. A. Funderburk reported the work being done for cancer education. Musical numbers were rendered by Miss Doris Staley. November meeting was in charge of Mrs. N. B. Murphy, chairman of the social service committee. She reported splendid co-operation by children in giving their discarded toys to be renovated and distributed for Christmas. Mrs. Inman Smith gave a sketch of the American composer, McDowell, and played his compositions. Mrs. S. L. Hunter, of Summerville, gave an enlightening talk on welfare work done in Chattooga county.

Foundations Featured At Barnesville Club

December meeting of Barnesville Woman's Club was featured by a program on "Foundations of the Georgia Federation," prepared by Mrs. J. A. Corry, and presented, in Mrs. Corry's absence, by Mrs. J. E. Bush. A talk by Mrs. J. W. Reeves on the life of Frances Ligget Wey, originator of the Student Aid Foundation, gave insight into the character and personality of Mrs. Wey, and praised her splendid accomplishments.

Mrs. Bush explained the Student Aid Fund, and displayed two silver trophies won for the Fourth District Federation by Mrs. Corry, Student Aid Fund chairman, for excellence in enrolling names on number of club programs and chairmen on Student Aid in the district. The club voted to place the name of its president, Mrs. J. M. Anderson on the founders' roll.

Ella F. White Endowment was explained, and tag-day sale was mentioned as a possible method of procuring funds for this purpose. Mrs. M. A. Bush talked about Tallulah Falls school, the "Heart-Throb" of the Georgia Federation. Mrs. J. C. Collier gave an interesting account of a visit to the school, and Mrs. J. M. Anderson spoke on the subject. Mrs. J. A. Corry sent gifts of $1 to each of the foundations.

Russell Willis played a piano solo and J. M. Anderson, the president, conducted a business session, and thanked members for aiding at the recent Gordon home-coming celebration. Mrs. Anderson announced that $15 was cleared on the Lamar Civic League supper. The new Lamar county market was discussed and Mrs. Anderson expressed appreciation to women for their patronage. Mrs. Wellmaker spoke of the advantages of the market, and Mrs. L. C. Tyus gave a report from the Club House Commission, stating that part of the stolen silver has been replaced.

Jack Adair, of the Adair Realty & Loan Company, announced the sale. His company will manage the apartments in the future, which are now fully occupied.

PLAN TO EXPEDITE HOUSING PROJECTS

Borrowers for Rental Building Can Get Quicker Action.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—To expedite the processing of applications involving the insurance of mortgages on rental housing projects, the Federal Housing Administration has modified its regulations to allow sponsors of such projects to submit preliminary plans and specifications directly to the nearest state or district insuring office.

According to Miles L. Colean, deputy administrator in charge of rental housing operations, local insuring offices will be able to make a preliminary decision as to the acceptability of such projects, thus cutting down the processing time considerably. Local offices will be able, also, to obtain at first hand certain information which formerly was obtainable only after inspection tours by members of the Washington headquarters staff.

Must Submit Exhibits.

Mr. Colean pointed out that sponsors of projects should submit to the local insuring office three copies of form 2013, duly completed and executed. In addition, sponsors must submit such exhibits as a city map showing the relation of the site to the community, the location of schools, churches, shopping district, and business and industrial centers.

A diagram of the plot showing proposed streets, sidewalks, contour lines, and the location of the various proposed buildings must also be submitted. This can be in a rather rough form, he indicated. Photographs of the site are desirable.

While detailed plans and specifications need not be submitted, preliminary architectural drawings and an outline of the proposed specifications must accompany the preliminary application. The various types of layouts to be used . . . and the number of each type to be built . . . must be shown in the preliminary sketches. Cross sections of various buildings are necessary in order to determine the cubage of buildings.

State Director Ready to Act.

Mr. Colean also called attention to other modifications in rules and regulations, namely the new type of mortgage which allows, in the case of projects involving the construction of single family units, for the release of that part of the mortgage involving structures which are sold.

Another new provision allows for additional dividends, not in excess of 2 per cent per annum (over and above the 6 per cent maximum) which are permitted, now, under certain conditions, he said.

Acting in conjunction with the above policy, W. A. Sirmon, state director, Federal Housing Administration for Georgia, stated that the Georgia insuring office of the Federal Housing Administration is prepared to accept preliminary plans and specifications for rental housing projects as outlined in detail by Mr. Colean. Applications should be addressed or submitted to the Federal Housing Administration, 510 Ten Forsyth Street building, Atlanta, Ga. Prompt service will be given in all cases, Mr. Sirmon says.

COMMISSION MEETS IN SAVANNAH NEXT

The Georgia Real Estate Commission, composed of Josiah Flournoy, chairman; Jesse Draper and William C. Gilbert Jr., will hold its regular monthly meeting in Savannah during the state real estate convention there. The meeting will be held on December 10.

At the recent national association convention, held in Pittsburgh, special praise was extended the Georgia commission for its good work in harmonizing and bringing about better conditions for both real estate operators and the public. It was openly declared that its work was the best of any commission in the whole country.

A new kind of paint is said to stand temperatures as high as 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Handsome home owned and occupied for three years by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Meredith, at 3198 Habersham road, sold during the week to Mrs. Sarah McRae, to be occupied in the future by her daughter and son, Robert Candler. 8,800 FAMILIES BORROW $27,830,500

B. & L. Associations Loan Over Billion in 10 Months.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The building of new houses caused some 8,800 families to borrow $27,830,500 from savings, building and loan associations in October, in spite of the slump in construction activity generally, the United States Building and Loan League estimates. Loans made for this purpose were lowest in volume since February. The decrease from October, 1936, was 20 per cent, in line with the 18 per cent decrease in value of all contracts awarded for residential building when the two months were compared.

Total loans made by the associations for all purposes in October were $97,858,500, according to the league's findings, bringing the disbursement for the first 10 months up over the billion dollar mark, which is $64,532,200 more than for the first 10 months of 1936.

SAVANNAH MEETING TO DRAW REALTORS

Atlanta To Be Well Represented at Georgia Real Estate Convention.

Realtors from all over the state of Georgia will assemble Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, December 8, 9, 10, in Savannah, Ga., for the 17th annual convention of the Georgia Real Estate Association.

A number of the local realtors will leave either Wednesday morning, going by cars, or Wednesday night by train. The Atlanta delegation will be headed by National Vice President Frank Owens, and Paul C. Maddox, president of the Atlanta board, both of whom will speak on the program. Another Atlanta realtor on the program is W. J. Hogan Jr.

In addition to the above members, the following have also indicated their intention of attending: H. C. Baldwin, D. W. Watson, Sharpe D. Wall, J. A. Montgomery, Henry Robinson, Harry Paschal Sr. and William J. Davis Sr. A number of others are expected to make plans the first of the week to join the above members.

Atlanta Well Represented.

Atlanta will be well represented in the various state contests. In the Alvin B. Cates trophy contest, an award which will be made for the first time this year for the outstanding real estate transaction of the state for 1937, the winner of the Atlanta entries was the office of Forrest and Frank Adair, and their paper will represent Atlanta in this contest. Each of the five boards of the state may submit one paper for this contest.

The "Home-Town-Speech" contest cup will be awarded for the final time to the winner of the contest this year. Only those who have previously won this cup are eligible this year, and Atlanta will be represented by Jack Montgomery and Paul Maddox.

The R. R. Otis trophy which is awarded annually to the real estate board of the state accomplishing the most for the benefit of its city, county and state, has been won for the past three years by the Atlanta board. The board secretary has again entered a paper from the Atlanta board in competition for this trophy.

SAVANNAH PREPARED FOR GEORGIA REALTORS

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 4.—(AP) The Georgia Real Estate Association delegates to the seventeenth annual convention, starting here Wednesday night, will discuss their business problems at the three-day sessions and hear several speakers prominent in real estate affairs.

On the program are such problems as rentals, property management, land developments, home builders, sales promotion, long-term leases and related matters.

In addition to early responses indicating a large attendance from all parts of the state, invitations were extended to the Jacksonville, Fla., real estate board and the Charleston, S. C., real estate board. Both groups are expected to send delegations.

Speakers include Vincent P. Bradley, of Trenton, N. J., sales consultant of the National Association of Real Estate Boards; Frank C. Owens, Atlanta, regional vice president of the national organization; J. H. Allen, Savannah, vice president of the Union Bag & Paper Corporation; I. Beverly Nalle, realtor of Jacksonville, Fla.; Robert Strickland, Atlanta, president of the Trust Company of Georgia; T. Mayhew Cunningham, Savannah, president of the Chatham Savings & Loan Company, and W. J. Hogan Jr., Atlanta realtor.

Mayor Hitch To Welcome.

The Savannah Real Estate Board will be host. Mayor Robert M. Hitch is scheduled to welcome the realtors.

A dinner and business session of officers is planned Wednesday night and William C. Gilbert Jr., president of the Georgia Real Estate Association, will call the convention to order Thursday morning.

A number of entries have been received in the "home town speech contest" to be held Thursday night. Among the entrants are H. L. Rohde, of the Chatham Savings & Loan Company; Jack A. Montgomery, head of the property management division of the Draper-Owens Company, Atlanta realtors, and Paul Maddox, president of the Atlanta board.

Committees at Work.

The entertainment committee, headed by Louis Greeno, has arranged for visits to the experimental plant of the pulp and paper laboratory of Dr. Charles H. Herty, Savannah scientist; the plant of the Savannah Sugar Refining Corporation, Savannah Beach, Tybee Island and other points. The visitors also are invited to play golf at the Savannah Golf Club and the municipal courses.

Assisting Chairman Greeno on the entertainment committee are W. H. Whitehead, R. P. Constantine, R. J. Dotson, Sam Hornstein, Leo F. Griffin, J. H. Calais and W. Furman King.

The committee arranging the program is headed by Herbert F. Gibbons, chairman. Other members are Harry F. Boyce, John O. Chiles, A. B. Sherman and William G. Hardeman.

Continuous corn growing, without rotation of crops, will wash away topsoil, endangering the prosperity of a region.

To Speak at Savannah

ROBERT STRICKLAND, Atlanta banker, who will address real estate men at Savannah convention.

W. J. HOGAN JR., Atlanta realtor on the program as speaker at the convention.

O'KEEFE STUDENTS WELCOME ALUMNI

Former Students, Teachers Are Invited to School on Monday Night.

O'Keefe Junior High school will have its annual Alumni Night Monday, December 6, at 8 p. m., at the school. This annual "homecoming" event is expected to attract a host of graduates as well as many of the former teachers.

Pat Roberts, president of the Student Body, will officially welcome the old "grads" on behalf of the students and Mrs. Louise C. Stakely, assistant principal, will represent the faculty in extending a welcome to their former students. The response will be given by one of O'Keefe's former student government presidents, Pollard Turman, now a local attorney.

"The Story of the Former Teachers" will be the subject of W. T. Dent, head of the English department. Principal Stanley M. Hastings will talk on "O'Keefe, Today and Tomorrow."

Music for the affair will be furnished by the school glee club, under the direction of J. D. Shackelford and the orchestra, directed by William P. Layton.

After the program the alumni will enjoy an informal get-together.

FRIENDS COMPLIMENT PAPER AT FORMWALT

Formwalt children appreciated the letters which "The Dial" editorial staff has received from some friends about the school paper. They were happy that Mr. Kendall Weisiger had detached the cover and had hung it by his desk. "The Dial" editorial staff and the entire student body at Formwalt appreciate the help and inspiration given by the faculty advisors in connection with the Thanksgiving issue of their school paper. These advisors are Miss Nelle Jones, Miss Blossom Tucker, Mrs. Frances Seaborn and Mrs. Anna Geffen.

Mrs. Ward and the children in Low 6-2 were made very happy because of a visit from their sponsor, Paul L. Dorn, their mascot, Paul L. Dorn Jr. and Mrs. Dorn.

High 5 enjoyed making "apple turkeys" for the Junior Red Cross.

Low 5-1 had the attendance banner for three weeks.

Low 5-2 presented an original Thanksgiving play last Wednesday. The class is proud of Margaret Fuller who has a perfect record in spelling since the first of the year.

High 4 were proud of the third issue of their newspaper. The name of the paper is "The Community News."

Low 4-2 are greatly indebted to their sponsor, George Alexander, for such a delightful trip via the Santa Fe railroad through colored stereopticon slides, from Chicago to California.

PUPILS AT MILTON STUDY CHRISTMAS

Sixth Grade Learns Source of American Customs Related to Seasons.

High 1 are working hard on toys and clay pots for thier gift shop.

This week Cecil Baker brought an old hornet's nest to the third grade. They are going to put it in their seed store to add to their nature collection. There were some dead hornets in the cells inside the nest. They looked at them through their magnifying glass. The outside of the nest looks like rough paper. Hornets were among the first paper makers.

High 4 and 5 are ready to begin work on their Christmas gifts for their mothers this week.

Low 5 are very proud of their new curtains and they certainly feel indebted to their mothers, Mesdames R. A. Hays, E. A. Johnston, S. J. Maier, F. L. Smith, and Mrs. F. M. Brown, for having made them for us.

The sixth grade is enjoying the story of how Christmas is celebrated in other lands. They are learning that most of our lovely customs came from Europe. The Christmas tree from Germany; Santa Claus from Holland; hanging up stockings from Belgium and France; the greeting "Merry Christmas," from England, from which we also got the custom of carol singing and the use of holly and mistletoe.

SYLVAN HILLS PUPILS GIVE TEACHER FRUITS

Mrs. Maxwell's High 4 and Low 5 grades gave their teacher a fruit shower and she enjoyed it very much. During Thanksgiving they studied about the Pilgrims and they made a very attractive bulletin about the Pilgrims.

Mrs. Tinsley's Low 4 had the most parents at the daddies' meeting of the P.-T. A., so they have the Sylvan Hills banner to keep in their room for a month.

Miss Cole's Low and High 2 set a table with holiday fruits. Three guests were invited for lunch.

Mrs. Hall is teaching the Low and High Sixth Grades how to make leather coin purses, bill folds and keytainers. The coin purses have been finished. The group is called the Handicraft Class.

Mrs. Luntz's High and Low 3 have a daily newspaper about their room. They write paragraphs every day on it.

The Brownie Pack of Sylvan Hills gave their leader, Mrs. Collier, a fruit shower on Thanksgiving. It was lovely.

ELIZABETH FRETWELL.

SLATON SCHOOL CLASS COOKS AVIATION LUNCH

Low 6, Mrs. Cates' class, are making posters of nature, stars, birds and airplanes.

Miss Golcuke's class gave an "aviation luncheon" last week. The children cooked it themselves.

Happy home life is being studied in Mrs. Smith's High 6.

High 5, Mrs. Kilgore's class, have organized a Humane Club. The following officers were elected: Edna Earl Gilley, president; George Baldesare, vice president; Mary Jean Hill, secretary.

The sponsor of Mrs. Ada Jones' Low 4, Mr. T. S. Respess, gave them a party Wednesday.

Miss Stallings' High 3 are still working on their bakery. The girls are making bakery coats and caps.

Low 5 are making things for Arbor Day.

Pioneer home life is being studied in Miss Johnson's High 4.

JOYCE HESTER,
MARGENE HESTER.

CREW SEES PICTURES ABOUT SOUTH AMERICA

High 6 are enjoying some new pictures from the Carnegie Library on South America. The pictures show scenes of Chile, Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador. We are glad to welcome Edward Woody back to the class. He has been out with a sprained ankle.

High 5 welcomed two new members Monday morning, Howard Mosley and Harry Patterson from Miami. They are sorry to lose Katie Hemby, who moved to Key district.

Low 5 had a Thanksgiving play, and invited Low 3, High 3, and High 4 to see it.

High 4 are working on a health project. All are trying to be healthy by right living.

High 3 made some health books which they are checking every day. The bulbs in the indoor garden are already up. The class hopes they bloom by Christmas.

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 5, 1937.

THE SOUTH AGAIN THE VICTIM OF SECTIONAL GREED, JEALOUSY

More than 70 years ago the south, after four years of heroic struggle, suffered defeat on the field of battle. Chiefly because the north wished to abolish slavery, although the slaves in the south had for the most part come through the hands of northern traders who made vast profits on their commerce in human flesh, the south was forced to her knees.

For half a century afterwards the story of the south was the story of a region struggling out of the damning aftermaths of war.

Chattel slavery of the negro was abolished. But in its place was substituted an economic slavery that, in its blighting effect, is worse. In the new slavery, there is no limitation by race. Whites and negroes alike are its victims.

High tariff policies, year by year, bled the southern cotton producer, and the southern consumer, for the benefits of the industrialized regions of the north and east.

Differentials in freight costs have imposed an unfair financial handicap on every southern industry which sought to send its product to market in competition with the products of other regions.

By scores of methods, the south has been held in economic inferiority to the rest of the nation.

Now there is evident a very definite program which, unless it is promptly halted, can result only in still further impoverishment of this section.

Under the terms of the proposed farm bill which is to be submitted to the senate, the southern cotton producer would be forbidden to raise more than 10,000,000 bales of cotton a year. This is barely enough to meet the requirements of the domestic market and ignores, entirely, the scant remnants that remain of the export cotton market this country once enjoyed.

Worse, is the provision that the southern farmer, forbidden to raise cotton on many of his acres, is to be forbidden to use those acres for raising cattle, hogs or for growing corn.

Still another affront, tentatively approved by the national house of representatives, is the proposal to withhold federal benefit payments from southern farmers who turn to dairying to replace their cotton.

Thus the southern farmer would be legally estopped from all the cash crops open to him on a diversified farming system. Cattle, hogs, corn, dairy herds and all the feeds that can be grown for them, would not be lawful products for the southerner to raise in place of the cotton he is forbidden to grow.

A measure known as the anti-lynching bill is being forced through congress. The name of the bill is a misnomer. It is actually not so much an effort to halt the crime of lynching, but an effort to take from the states one of their most vital rights, their police power.

Every decent man or woman in the south would gladly welcome anything which would stamp out lynch law. The steady improvement in the lynch record of the south is irrefutable proof of this. According to the Negro Year Book, published at Tuskegee Institute, the average annual total of lynchings had shrunk to 13.6 for the decade ending with 1936, from 103.5 for the decade ending in 1896. This is a greater improvement than that for lynching of white men in the west and other parts of the country.

But this misnamed "anti-lynching" bill does not seek, along intelligent, co-operative lines, to help the south stamp out this most horrible crime. It seeks, rather, to invoke the federal powers to punish local enforcement officers and the entire population, innocent and guilty alike, where a lynching occurs. It even makes it financially alluring for the family survivors of the victim for the lynching to occur.

The Black-Connery wages and hour bill has been forced out of the house committee and to the floor for action by a petition signed by 218 members, including a number of southerners. While this measure, as now amended, is not as obnoxious as in its original form, it still constitutes a serious threat to industry, especially to industry in the south.

It was conceived with the chief purpose of hobbling southern industry. It would place industry at the mercy of a federal bureaucracy and would give a group of government appointees in Washington the power of life or death over every private manufacturing enterprise in the nation.

With these new specific attacks on the south, there remains still, as the dominating motive of the economic picture, the dark shadow of high tariff, which forces the southern farmer to buy all his supplies in a high, tariff-protected market, while his products, chiefly his cotton, must be sold in open, free trade world markets, in competition with products produced in foreign lands by cheap, coolie labor. Further, the high tariff acts as an effective bar to foreign purchases of American cotton by keeping the goods other nations would sell to this country, away from our ports. It thus holds a protective umbrella over the rapidly increasing foreign production of cotton.

Thus, once again, the south is caught in a vise between the selfish interests of the industrialized east and the jealousies of the agricultural midwest.

Although the south is the first sufferer, the evil effects from these policies cannot fail to bring distress to the entire nation.

By thus shackling the south, on the farm and in the factory, economically, politically and socially, unemployment will be increased and the average per capita income in this section will be further reduced. Taking acres out of production means taking work away from thousands of agriculturalists. Enactment of the wages and hours bill, virtually a tariff wall between states, means imperiling the jobs of thousands of industrial employes.

The greatest danger to the south lies in its own indifference to the situation. The south holds its own salvation in its hands. It can overcome these handicaps and lift the economic shackles if it will stand united for its own interests and its own rights.

A united south can, in time, teach the whole nation that the problems of this section are peculiar to itself and that the economic measuring rods of other portions of the country cannot, in justice, be applied here.

There must be, however, a united front, not only among the people, but by their representatives in the national congress. The delegations from the different southern states must stand as a unit, forming a bloc determined to defeat policies inimitable to the welfare of this section.

The new shackles for the south are being forged by a political coalition which bears the name of a party to which, for nearly three-quarters of a century, the south has been unswervingly loyal.

The answer is that the party which now holds the greatest majority in congress of all time, is not the Democratic party whose principles have received the unfaltering support of the south. It is a coalition of political hybrids, masquerading under the name of Democrat, and experimenting with strange theories of government that spawn in mentalities totally foreign to southern comprehension.

From the industrial east and from the socialistic west have come the practitioners of strange theories to take the ancient party of the south and distort it to their own weird concept.

From time immemorial, the basic political beliefs of the south have been white supremacy, state's rights and low tariffs. Now the south sees, in shocked surprise, the anti-lynching bill forced upon it, to the utter disregard of rudimentary states rights. It sees the wages and hours bill nearing enactment, with its threat of regimented rule for labor and bureaucratic doom for private industry. It sees its farmers facing immolation, as sacrifices to the agricultural interests of other sections and to the greed of industrialists, and it sees, after years of so-called Democratic government, the strangling high tariffs of the Smoot-Hawley bill still in force.

Worst of all, it sees some of its own duly elected representatives, southern members of congress, not only affiliating with its enemies, but aiding, abetting and joining in the enactment of laws which rivet tighter the gyves of economic slavery upon it.

The time has come for the south to realize fully the economic and political strangulation with which it is threatened.

Most important of all, our representatives in congress must awaken to the fact that, under the guise of high-sounding theories, policies are being advanced which, unless blocked, will again make the south the victim of sectional greed and jealousy.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

If you believe in private enterprise, free economy and peace, you will welcome the prospect of a reciprocal trade treaty between the British commonwealth and the United States as the biggest news in many weeks and the most hopeful sign for world recovery in years.

It is also the first big victory for Secretary Hull, who, in our own cabinet, has fought a fairly lonely fight against regimentation and economic nationalism, and fought it with a constructive counter-weapon.

For regimentation is a result, rather than a cause. It has come about all over the world, with the contraction of world markets, and the inability of nations to find outlets for their goods, or to exchange their agricultural products or manufactured goods for essential raw materials.

There is not a chance in the world of this regimentation halting, of our moving away from one form or another of planned economy, with all the political connotations of that word, except in a freer world.

This treaty, which the State Department is fully empowered to make, will not be concluded without many howls of protest from special interests. Tariff lobbyists have not been notable for their capacity to think as national economists, but invariably are zealous in defense of their own personal ends.

The issue will also be beclouded by those who read into it a grandiose political scheme to unite the British commonwealth and the United States in a "democratic front" against Fascist nations. On this ground it will be hailed by those who want such a front, and denounced by those who fear our being embroiled in entangling alliances.

That the trade agreement, if it becomes effective, will enormously aid the cause of democratic government in the world, this column sincerely believes. That it is directed against any one, or presupposes a democratic "bloc" is nonsense.

It is, of course, the most important possible trade treaty that Mr. Hull could negotiate, because the amount of potential trade involved is so large. The United States, and the United Kingdom are the world's leaders in trade. Between them they buy 28 per cent of the world's imports, and sell 24 per cent of all exports.* Our exports to the United Kingdom in 1936 were equal to our combined sales to nine other European countries—France, Italy, Germany, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Finland and Czechoslovakia. Forty-seven million Britishers bought more American goods than the billion inhabitants of Asia. And Anglo-American trade has survived even under the most serious discouragements. Our tariff policy has dealt harshly with English goods. We buy a great many products via England, such as tin, furs, tea, rubber, etc., but the bulk of goods actually produced in England pay rates of from 30 to 45 per cent. And some of them, which compete with no important American industries whatsoever, such as cotton lace, pay 90 per cent.

Our own protectionism, expressed in the tariffs of 1922 and 1930, awakened the response of British protectionism. Even after the war, when protectionism was rampant all over the world, and became one of the parents of depression and economic regimentation, the traditional British prejudice in favor of free trade fought for a time, stubbornly. But in 1931, when the British abandoned the gold standard and reduced the value of the pound, it began a protectionist policy, first as an emergency. But, as we ourselves learn, emergency measures tend to entrench themselves. The British protectionist policy was given permanence in the Ottawa agreements, concluded in August, 1932, which gave preference in England to Empire products and vice versa. At the Ottawa conference two opinions contended, one that the barriers to trade should be lowered between Britain and her dominions, and the other that tariff barriers should be erected around the Empire against all outsiders. Mr. Stanley Baldwin supported the former policy, but was defeated.

The effect of the Ottawa agreements on our trade was serious. It is true that we still maintained about the same percentage in the British market, but certain things suffered disastrously. For example, Great Britain had purchased 20 million dollars' worth of American flour and wheat in 1931. She purchased only a little over a million dollars' worth in 1935. The purchase of hams was cut almost in half, and that of condensed milk was almost obliterated. Rice, other cereals, canned fish and fruit also suffered.

Tariff policies were not alone to blame. The drouth played a role, and so did the crop restriction policies of the AAA—which, incidentally the new farm bill wishes to revive, just as we are about to make the biggest move to increase American farm exports of the whole administration! But the British policy of empire preference certainly hit the American wheat farmer. Canadian wheat went into Britain free; American had to pay a 6-cent tariff.

The British, I understand, are willing to go much farther in making concessions now than were dreamed of several years ago. They will set aside a large part of the imperial preferences. Particularly, will they give equal chances to American wheat in their market. Agricultural America will profit greatly by the proposed treaty.

Elsewhere, the problem will be to make possible substantial increases in sales of English goods in our markets, and, at the same time, to avoid injury to well conducted American industries. This is not nearly so difficult as it seems at first sight. We now levy high duties on many goods that are not manufactured in America at all, or, if manufactured, are of a completely different quality, or are produced in small quantities, involving no considerable investment of capital or employment of labo

The application of the reciprocal principle to the United States and the British commonwealth means its triumph over a very large part of the world, for it will affect countries outside the Empire, but closely associated with it in trade matters, such as Argentina.

But the American reciprocity system is open to everybody, and if it demonstrates its effectiveness in the very large area where it now has a chance of being applied, it may eventually have an attractive power even to its present opponents.

In any case, it is refreshing to see liberal democracy start to put a few of its avowed principles into operation.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

The man who behaves
For hope of reward
Is really not good at all;
Virtue is never
Virtue, when fear
Only prevents the fall.

Evil Things
Never Immortal.

For many years I have frequently found references, in reading, to a book which I had never seen. The references were of such a nature I had a pretty good idea of the subject matter, but failure to come across the volume had steadily increased curiosity.

The writer of the book was that man of evil memory, the Marquis de Sade. The man, you know, whose abnormal individuality gave the language the noun "sadism," meaning the act of deriving pleasure by the infliction of suffering on others.

The book is his most famous work, "Justine."

Well, I found a copy last week, borrowed it, read it and returned it to its owner. And the result was even more disappointing than I had reason to expect.

Of course, the edition I read was an English translation of the original French, and it is possible some of the value of the work had been lost in translation. But I got the story and the general idea, anyway.

It Is a Book
Like a Corpse.

Reading that book is like looking upon a disfigured corpse. It was intended, of course, to be a saga of raw cruelty and sheer horror. But it has been known for so many years that I expected, at least, to find a living horror. I didn't. I found a dead, lifeless, putrescent corpse of a book.

The chapters were merely the account of a fantastically impossible life, told in routine, mechanical words. There wasn't a single impression of an actual living character all the way through. They were just maccabre puppets, worked by all too visible strings.

It is horrible, yet not horrible, if you know what I mean. For it overdoes its theme so much it becomes absurd.

Napoleon
Didn't Like It.

It is said that Napoleon Bonaparte thought the effect of the book would be so undesirable that he ordered every copy that could be found burned by the public executioner. The copies still existing spring from the few which, inevitably, escaped that doom.

For me, it would have been no loss if there had been no survivors.

Worthy Books
Have Real Life.

The point I am striving to reach, is that worthy writings are things eternally alive. When you read them, even though the style of writing be outworn and may seem stilted to your modern mind, nevertheless the characters and the thoughts they draw are living people and living ideals. So real, for instance, did Shakespeare make his characters seem that to all of us they are as real today, or more so, than the most authentic characters of history.

So of Dumas, of Dickens, of Aesop. We love them because we feel we know the imagined creatures of whom they wrote. D'Artagnan, David Copperfield are close friends, even though they were born and died at the tip of a pen.

Books that are worthy of survival will always have that quality of eternal aliveness, even to the end.

The books that are evil, like de Sade's "Justine," are as dead as the men who wrote them. They can never become a living part of any future generations of readers. They will be, if they continue to be printed, or kept, but curiosities upon a few library shelves.

He Couldn't Escape.

A certain man in Atlanta developed an alarming phobia about automobiles. He was always dreaming, or imagining, he was in an automobile accident. He finally reached the stage where he would not, under any circumstances, enter an auto. If he couldn't travel by train or afoot he just wouldn't go.

He was, likewise, extremely careful when crossing the streets and carried his precautions to almost absurd degree.

Then, a few days ago, he was going his quiet way along the street when a careening car ran up onto the sidewalk, knocked him down and smashed his arm. Luckily, he was not more seriously injured.

The question is, did his mental attitude so deflect the course of fate that it really caused that accident?

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Thursday, December 5, 1912:

"James G. Woodward and the entire white primary ticket was elected by an overwhelming majority in yesterday's city election. The regular ticket received 2,716 against only 43 for the Socialists."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Monday, December 5, 1887:

"Colonel J. T. Glenn refuses to enter the race for alderman. He declares that the card announcing him was inserted without his authority; that he in no manner authorized it, and that he will not run under any circumstances."

Text and Pretext

By M. ASHBY JONES.

A Study of Discipleship.

The simplest definition of "Christian" would be, one who follows Jesus. But that calls for a definition of "follow." We have had so many cheap and artificial imitations of Jesus. Those who would mimic His attitudes. Of course such imitations are caricatures. We must remember that it is the inward impulse, the hidden motive, and the intangible spirit, of the man, which gives significance and value to words and deeds. Of course, Jesus adapted his dress, manner and speech to the manners and customs of His day. And we may be certain that one who follows Him today, will do likewise. He will be no freak. He will learn to lead the life of Jesus in terms of his own generation.

A Way of Life.

Is not that where we should place the emphasis—the life of Jesus? Because to truly follow Jesus means to live a certain kind of life. It is not the signing of a creed, or following a religious routine or ritual. It is a way of thinking, feeling and wanting, out of which will come words and acts. Thought, sentiment, and aspiration will ever seek expression. So this Jesus-kind of thought, feeling and aspiration, will worship and play, fight and endure, weep and laugh, work and rest, in the life-forms of its own day, but will transfuse these forms with the light and love of the Christ.

When we come to ask what is the essential principle of the life of Christ, we find it expressed in the figure of the cross. I say "figure," because the cross was only the outward sign of a tremendous inward experience. He chose the panorama of the journey up Golgotha beneath the weight of a cross, as the revelation of His life's principle. Thus He carried on His own heart the weight of the welfare of others. But we must never forget that He did this always, and not merely as He walked the via dolorosa. He ever walked with the consciousness of this weight upon His soul. This and this alone makes a Christ life.

The Way of the Cross.

And He is saying to His disciples of all ages, "you too must take up your cross," if you would follow Him. Not His cross but yours, for there are those whose welfare is dependent upon you. Before we jump to conclusion, as did Peter, that this is a rather terrible and gloomy view of life, let us stop and translate it into terms of our life. Cross-bearing means motherhood, brotherhood, friendship and citizenship. These are relationships, which when fulfilled, make life rich and strong and beautiful. When they are broadened and illumined by the spirit of Christ, they assume a divine significance.

Motherhood may hover over the children of the race, with an infinite tenderness and anxiety. Brotherhood may circle the nations with its thoughtful plans and purposes for the welfare of all mankind. Friendship may know no limits of race, caste or class. The loyalty of citizenship may be consecrated to the fulfillment of His prayer: "Thy kingdom come, and thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

Yes. This Christ life is a life for others, but at the same time it is a life in others. Of course, it has its sorrows. There will be Gethsemenae experiences, when beneath the shadow of the sin of men one will feel all the horror of degenerated and dehumanized mankind. But this life has its breadth of keen and vital interests, which makes one's soul cosmopolitan in the sweep of its interests and sympathies. And it has its sunrise ecstacies, when like the Master: "He shall see of the travail of His soul, and shall be satisfied."

The Resurrection.

Cross-bearing does mean self-denial. "If any man would follow me, let him take up his cross, and deny himself." Yes. It means the subordination of self interest for the welfare of another. But let us emphasize, for the welfare of others. Jesus died for others. He would not have done it for a spectacular exhibition of unselfishness. There is no merit in sacrifice for the sake of sacrifice. Self-denial for its own sake is abnormal and revolting. In its last analysis it is an ingrowing egotism. Indeed, one's self should be nourished, developed, and prepared, that it may be the very best self possible, to do effective service for others.

We have been talking about the way of the cross, which led up the hill of Golgotha. But we love to remind ourselves that it did not end there. That way led on to the tomb of Joseph of Arimathaea, from which He rose triumphant. He had said that "Except a grain of wheat die, it will abide by itself alone. But if it die, it will bring forth abundant fruit." Yes. Out of the death of self, there bursts into triumphant life, a larger and better self, multiplied in the lives of others.

UNVARNISHED DIPLOMAC

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY.

When I first met Yosuke Matsuoka, in the days before the great earthquake in Japan, he was politically on his uppers. He had been in the diplomatic service and had talked too freely. So they let him go.

The Japanese said that he talked too much, but it was not the quantity as much as the forcefulness of his conversation that annoyed the trained and staid diplomats. Matsuoka had come to the United States as a boy, worked his way at all sorts of jobs on the coast, went to high school in the state of Oregon or Washington, I have forgotten which, went to an American university and returned to Japan to be a diplomat.

UNFITTED BY U. S. TRAINING

For such an exalted office his American training had altogether unfitted him. He quarreled and swore and called a spade a spade, until his colleagues wondered whether he was really a Jaapnese or some kind of Yankee Doodle. All the little niceties of Japanese manners, the bowing and scraping and inhaling—these Matsuoka did very badly. But he could pound a table and call his chief an old fogy and march about in his shirt sleeves.

When Japan, in 1931-'32, was doing very badly at the League of Nations, because the Japanese had taken Manchuria and the League was annoyed, they restored Matsuoka to his diplomatic rank and he went to Geneva and filled the ears of the world's diplomats with strong but truthful language. He never suggested that Japan would get out of Manchuria—and he was quite correct.

Japan's diplomats were fearfully embarrassed by Matsuoka's forwardness at Geneva, but the military liked it and the masses were enthusiastic and Matsuoka was made president of the South Manchuria railroad.

Manchukuo is governed by three individuals—the head of the Japanese army in Manchuria, the president of the South Manchuria railway and the Emperor Kang Teh, that is, His Majesty Henry Pu-Yi. And the control is in the order noted. When the military chief and the railroad president are through with their jobs there is very little left for the Emperor.

I do not wish to give the impression that Yosuke Matsuoka is a roughneck swashbuckler. Quite the opposite. But he has a way of telling the truth exactly as he sees it and without Oriental obliqueness. If he has anything to say, he says it—and takes the consequences.

MAKES SITUATION PERFECTLY CLEAR

All this is introductory to an article by Matsuoka in "The Herald of Asia," a Japanese magazine published in English by Matosada Zumoto, who owns a beard and is beneath his exterior more like a cultivated Englishman.

In this article Matsuoka makes the present Far Eastern situation perfectly clear: Japan means to lead in Asia at any cost—and even if that means a war with Soviet Russia. Here in a paragraph he puts the whole case:

"One thing is clear even to a donkey running along an Asian highway; a constant and hearty co-operation between the peoples of Japan and of China—that and that alone can work out the destiny of Asia. Nobory knows this better than Japan, and she knows also that the two things poisoning the atmosphere between the two people are the drunken orgy of China's own war lords and politicians and the Red Communism eating into the heart of China from without. Japan is out today to put a potter's field wooden cross over these common enemies of the Chinese people and of the lasting peace of eastern Asia."

NOT READY TO DIE FOR GENEVA-MADE PEACE

Of course, what Matsuoka means by "constant and hearty co-operation" is not what any Chinese would understand by these words. But even to a Chinese it must be clear that Japan is preparing China as an anti-Soviet base and that the next Russo-Japanese war may not occur, because Japan will be too strong with China as a forced ally. Or some may believe that Russia may have to fight Japan to prevent her from consolidating her position in China.

Whichever view a Chinese may take, it is clear that what Matsuoka means is that his country—and, for that matter, his railroad, which is the backbone of the enterprise—are getting ready for bigger and better enemies. And the fighting is to be on China's soil.

And then he hurls a fresh challenge at those who have foregathered at Brussels, although this article was undoubtedly written before President Roosevelt made his "quarantine speech" on the new bridge at Chicago. He says:

"We are free to admit that Japan has been exceedingly annoying to her neighbor, China. Japan is expanding. And what country in its expansion era has ever failed to be trying to its neighbors? Ask the American Indian or the Mexican how excruciatingly trying the young United States used to be once upon a time.

"But Japan's expansion, like that of the United States, is as natural as the growth of a child. Only one thing stops a child from growing—death.

"Geneva has been trying to pass this death sentence on Japan since the Manchurian incident, masking it with tinsel phrases of pious hypocrisy. But Japan does not seem amiable enough to die even for the sweet sake of Geneva-made peace."

AN AMAZING PARAGRAPH

And, finally, Matsuoka caps his statement with this amazing paragraph:

"China and Japan are two brothers who have inherited a great mansion called Eastern Asia. Adversity sent them both down to the depth of poverty. The ne'er-do-well elder brother turned a dope fiend and rogue, but the younger, lean, but rugged and ambitious, ever dreamed of bringing back glories to the old house. He sold newspapers at a street corner and worked hard to support the house. The elder flimflammer the younger out of his meager savings and sold him out to the common enemy. The younger, in towering rage beat up the elder, trying to beat into him some sense of shame and awaken some pride in the noble traditions of the great house. After many scraps the younger finally made up his mind to stage a showdown fight. And that is the fight now raging along the North China and Shanghai fronts."

I quote so extensively from this article for two reasons: First because so much that is sheer whitewash is spoken by Japanese and Chinese apologists. Both rarely get down to bed-rock arguments and their foreign friends repeat their droolings.

The other night I was dining with a very fine man from Warren, Pa., to Jamestown, N. Y., through the mountains on a lovely, frosted road. I supposed he was like whistling in the dark and we talked on all sorts of subjects to keep from noticing how slippery the road was. And among the many things that I listened to was a tale of how every one of us, a while the Japanese people have a strong urge to move northward.

ADVOCATES OF IMPERIALISM

That is one of many historical myths. It is not the urge to move northward that bothers Japan. It is the urge to develop an economy that will make it possible for Japan to be a first-class power. The Japan's army and the South Manchuria railway hope to do by subtle imperialism.

Imperialism is nowadays regarded as immoral by the United States, Great Britain, France, Soviet Russia and a few other countries. But Japan and Italy like it, and they mean to have it. So does Hitler's Germany means to be on it. And that is crearly what Matsuoka's article, published in English in an obscure journal, probably given widespread publicity in Japan, tells the world.

All the walla-walla about overpopulation, suppression of banditry, the killing of Japanese civilians on a bridge is diplomatic tripe. When orientals begin rationalizing about the motives they cause them to take a step, they often go very far afield.

The fact of the matter is, that after Chiang Kai-shek was kidnaped—however that came about—the Chinese Communist army gave up its independence and swore allegience to the government in Nanking. That was followed by reports of a new treaty between Russia and China and the Japanese acted. When a Japanese smells Russia he takes out machine guns out of storage.

SOVIET RUSSIA WILL BE STOPPED

There was a time when Japan was flirting with Russia. In the old czarist days Japan and Soviet Russia signed a number of secret treaties dividing Manchuria and Mongolia between them. Then after the war, Viscount Goto sought an alliance between the two countries and he even thought in terms of a three-cornered alliance—Russia, Japan and China against the western world.

But it all came to nothing because if Japan can organize Manchuria and China into a modern industrial state, raise the standard of living of the people, improve agriculture and forestry and develop a fine system of roads and railroads—Soviet Russia will be stopped at Lake Baikal. The Russians understand that; the Japanese understand that. And poor China pays the bill.

"The younger beat up the elder," Matsuoka says. And the beating was for his own good. Maybe—but who wants the beating?

Editor, Constitution:
In memory of many happy skits, by Frank L. Stanton in your paper years ago when I was in school in Tennessee, I am sending you the following poem:

I should like to ask two questions:
Though I've seen a many flock,
Do the hens keep on a-cluckin' when the fodder's in the shock.
And the frost is on the punkin, and the freezin' nights are here:
Or do they do their cluckin' in the Springtime of the year.
When they've little chicks to hear them and answer to the call
To 'Come on and get it' before the wean them all?
And who would go bareheaded out feed the hungry stock,
When the frost is on the punkin and
the fodder's in the shock?

The's 'somethin' kind o' hearty 'bout the life upon a farm
When the heat o' summer's over and the days are full of charm;
But the' ain't no kind of artist got the colorin' to paint
True beauty in a picture where the natural beauty ain't,
And if I was balder-headed than the average billiard-ball
And hadn't any hairs to keep my ear warm at all,
I should want my top-piece kivered
'till it looked less like a rock
When the frost is on the punkin and
the fodder's in the shock.

Fellows, Here's a Tip! Handy Girls Make Fine Wives

Maybe it was a man's world once, but "the good old days" are fast fading as women invade the fields which once belonged exclusively to men. Above, Misses Alice Oxford and Ethel Cook as they repair fixtures in their practical arts class at O'Keefe Junior High school. Miss Oxford is repairing a broken iron and Miss Cook is replacing the washer on a water faucet.

Learning to be more or less independent, the modern miss will no longer expect "hubby" to do all the dirty work around the house. She will have her share to do and she'll do it well. Here, Misses Lottie Elrod and Carolyn Eplan learn to splice wire. So, when repair work needs to be done, these two ninth-graders will know a thing or two about "how it's to be done."

It Is Topsy Turvy Time For Students

By MAXINE LAND.

What the future male of the species will do is a problem he is going to have to figure out.

But when he comes to making a choice the selection of those free from feminine interference will be few as new fields are invaded by the deadlier of the species—woman.

Not content with forsaking their place in the kitchen, they are now entering everything from politics to the workshop—and here's how.

At O'Keefe Junior High school 20 girls between the ages of 14 and 16 are busily learning the finer points in repairing water faucets, electric fixtures and plumbing, which come under the general heading of Practical Arts.

"We'll not only be able to make our homes more attractive, but we can save some money," some of the girls said yesterday as they went about their work in the shop at the school with enthusiasm.

Boon for Husband.

The husband who used to come home tired from a hard day's work and was met at the door with "Oh, dear, the electric iron is broken. Won't you come fix it?" can come home in the future minus this little worry. "Wifey" will not only have taken care of the repairs but she will have redecorated the breakfast room, mended the furniture, removed the paint from the swing, repainted it and probably had a tap dancing lesson on the side.

Besides electrical work and repairing, the girls are learning the care of electric refrigerators, meter reading and figuring cost of inside and outside lighting, plumbing, wood finishing and art metal work.

Constitution Staff Photos—Wilson.

Miss Carolyn Eplan is taking this business of insuring smoother domestic happiness seriously. In the workshop at the school she is shown soldering two pieces of wire. What she is going to do with the wire may be anything from repairing to interior decorating. Less reluctant about "crashing" the subjects generally reserved for boys, she was one of the first to begin the course in practical arts.

GUILD TO PRODUCE COMEDY TUESDAY

3 Perfomances of 'Bishop Misbehaves' Scheduled.

First Atlanta Theater Guild production of the winter season, "The Bishop Misbehaves," a mystery comedy by Frederick Jackson, will open for three performances at the Atlanta Woman's Club theater on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

"The Bishop Misbehaves," now in rehearsal under Paula Causey, Guild production director, is the first of a series of plays being planned at the Guild workshop. On December 15 and 16, "Three-Corner Moon," by Gertrude Tonkonogy, will be presented, while "The Cricket and the Hearth," adapted from Dickens' story by Gilmore Brown, will be produced on December 21, 22 and 23. Reservations can be made by calling guild offices, Hemlock 9539.

Tuesday's opening will find Richard Joel playing in the title role, with Betty Lou Houck Smith playing opposite him in the feminine lead, heading a large cast of amateurs.

Women to Study Jury Problems In Judge's Class

A jury school for women designed to acquaint them with the laws governing juries and qualifications for service will be conducted by Judge John D. Humphries, senior judge of Fulton superior court, at a meeting Saturday of the Fulton County Democratic Women's Club.

The jury school will be the second held in Georgia. The first was held in Savannah last month at a state convention of the Georgia Affiliated Democratic Women's Clubs. The meeting will be at 1 o'clock at the Henry Grady hotel.

Mrs. R. L. Turman, who for the last two sessions of the legislature has acted as legislative chairman for the state clubs, yesterday expressed confidence that the next regular session of the legislature will pass the bill granting jury service to women. Mrs. Max E. Land, president of the Fulton county club, will preside at the luncheon Saturday.

When white men came to the coast, there were about 200,000 Indians in California; today "more than half the original California groups have not a single living representative," says Edwin F. Walker, of the Southwest Museum.

MARINE IS CONVICTED IN CAPITAL SLAYING

STAFFORD COURTHOUSE, Va., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Walter L. Ross, 17-year-old marine, was convicted of second-degree murder today in the killing of Elmer J. Davidson, Washington attorney, and his punishment fixed at ten years in the state penitentiary.

The Stafford county circuit court jury returned its verdict after deliberating 65 minutes. Ross, charged with murder after Davidson was found shot and stabbed to death on the night of October 3 on a lonely road near here, heard the verdict without change of expression.

Excavating the moat at historic Fort Marion, at St. Augustine, Fla., government archaeologists have found Indian pottery, pipes, bullets, cannon balls, ink wells and other relics discarded and buried since the fort was built in 1672.

MISSIONARY WORK TO BE PORTRAYED

Demonstration Will Be Given by Atlantans in January.

Preparations for a joint missionary demonstration portraying the history of missionary work were under way yesterday as Dr. W. A. Shelton, chairman of the general committee on arrangements and president of the Christian Council of Atlanta, announced the pageant will be held the last week in January.

Churches of every evangelical denomination in Atlanta and neighboring communities will cooperate in the presentation of the program, sponsored by the Christian Council. The program will be under the direction of Mrs. Alva G. Maxwell.

Exhibits illustrating the various types of missionary endeavor abroad and at home will be under supervision of the Rev. William E. Crane, general chairman. Curios, maps, charts, pictures, handicraft—countless features will go into the make-up of posters used in the exhibits.

The Rev. R. Wiley Scott, pastor of the Central Congregational church, heads the committee assembling and arranging the foreign missions exhibit, while Mrs. Joe M. Spinks, of the Capitol View Baptist Woman's Missionary Society, is chairman of the home missions exhibit.

The demonstrations will begin January 25 and will continue through January 28. All exhibits and sessions will be held at the First Baptist church. Arrangements for the meetings are being handled by Dr. Ryland Knight, member of the mission board of the Southern Baptist convention, and pastor of the Second-Ponce de Leon church.

PRESBYTERIANS FIX THREE-DAY SESSION

Editor To Be Chosen for Church Magazine.

Three important meetings at the Henry Grady hotel of committees of the Presbyterian church (United States), are scheduled this week, according to an announcement made yesterday by Dr. B. K. Tenney, secretary of the stewardship and finance committee.

Opening the program at 9:30 o'clock Monday will be a meeting of the newly appointed board of editors when an editor for the Presbyterian Survey, official organ of the general assembly, will be selected and the revision made of editorial plans of the magazine.

The promotion committee, of which Dr. Tenney is chairman, will convene at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning when reports will be heard on plans for literature for the every-member canvass and promotional arrangements for the drive. Reports will also be made on plans for the course, "The Work of the Presbyterian Church, U. S.," to be given at the assembly's training school, Richmond, Va., and approval of plans of the board of editors concerning the future policy of the Presbyterian Survey, and the establishment of a quarterly for devotional use.

Reports of assembly's agencies, including the committees on foreign missions, home missions, Christian education and ministerial relief and religious education and publication, will feature a meeting of the stewardship and finance committee at 9:30 o'clock Wednesday morning.

Committee representatives in attendance will include: Promotion—Dr. Tenney, of Atlanta, chairman; Dr. H. Kerr Taylor, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. Henry H. Sweets, Louisville, Ky.; Dr. E. B. Paisley and Dr. Edward D. Grant, of Richmond, and Miss Janie W. McGaughey and Dr. Claude H. Pritchard, of Atlanta.

Stewardship and Finance—Dr. W. T. Thompson, of Richmond; C. F. Huhlein, Louisville; Rev. D. W. Roberts, Beaumont, Texas; Dr. J. W. Martin and Dr. E. E. Gillespie, Greensboro, N. C.; Dr. Wade H. Boggs, Shreveport, La.; Dr. W. L. Caldwell, Nashville; Dr. John M. Alexander and Dr. W. A. Alexander, Birmingham, Ala.; Mrs. Audrey Morton, Athens, and Dr. S. R. Oglesby and George White, Atlanta.

WOMEN WILL OPEN CLEANUP CAMPAIGN

Sanitary Chief To Address Northside Group Monday.

H. J. Cates, chief of the Atlanta sanitary department, will address a group of presidents, officers and civic leaders of north side organizations at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Atlanta Woman's Club as that body definitely launches its drive to assist in a beautification and clean up of Atlanta.

The Woman's Club committee, headed by Mrs. T. J. Ripley, has enlisted in the campaign and will center its interest mainly in the Tenth street area.

Mrs. Alva G. Maxwell, president, announced the entire membership of the club has exhibited keen interest in the movement and are offering every co-operation to the city sanitary department and the Fulton county public works department.

WHITEFOORD HAS CLUB OF CAMP FIRE GIRLS

One of the most wide-awake organizations at Whitefoord school is the Camp Fire Girls' Club. Our leaders, Mrs. Patrick and Miss Edna Maude Waites, are fine and are always planning interesting things for us to do. A large group took part recently in the beautiful candle lighting service at the Shrine mosque.

We have been busy making baby garments for the Needlework Guild. From there they will be sent to needy children in hospitals in the city. We are learning to keep records in our handmade record books.

The Pulse of the Public

The columns of The Constitution are always open to the expressions of the public, regardless of the opinion expressed. The only limitation on communications are that they shall be signed; be brief—preferably not longer than two or three hundred words—and not libelous. All communications will be subject to editing and none will be returned unless postage is inclosed.

PRAISES BOOK SECTION

Editor Constitution: The special book section of The Constitution Sunday was the best presentation of worth-while books I have seen in a long time. You have rendered another distinctive service to your readers.

(Rev.) L. D. NEWTON, Pastor,
Druid Hills Baptist Church.
Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4, 1937.

SUGGESTS CHANGES FOR CITY'S GOOD

Editor Constitution: May I suggest to you the following changes that might attract more attention to Atlanta:

1. Move the Cyclorama to a downtown building and provide ample parking space near it.
2. Move the state museum from the state capitol building to the second story of the downtown "Cyclorama building."
3. Complete the figure of General Lee on Stone mountain.
4. Convert Cox College at College Park into a finishing school, stressing music and art, and attract students from the north and west who would like to attend such a school in this part of the deep south.

Many people come to and go from Atlanta who never hear of the Cyclorama; others hear of it, but do not go to see it because of its distance from the hotels.

The state museum is one of the largest to be found in any state but few people ever see it.

J. O. MARTIN.
Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4, 1937.

PRAISES POSITION ON TAXES

Editor Constitution: The writer can not suitably express to you her gratitude of your brave, intelligent and persistent fight for the suffering taxpayers of America.

In your editorial of November 28, you state "members of congress had realized the danger of certain bills, but had voted for them because President Roosevelt advocated them." Since when before in American history has it been necessary for representatives of the people to vote against their welfare because one man urged it?

Your editorials for months past constitute a true and valuable history of the perils threatening American life. I urge citizens to preserve these editorials. The time may come when they will be needed. Will you not also point out who it is, in state and national life, who do not wait until opposition has become popular, but whose shot rings out at the first creeping danger and keeps ringing until the fight has become general.

"Let justice be done though the heavens fall."

MRS. J. O'KEEFE NELSON.
Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4, 1937.

UNREGISTERED VOTING IS DANGEROUS

Editor Constitution: I notice another bill introduced in the legislature to abolish poll tax.

I have never heard a complimentary word in favor of abolishing poll tax until it was introduced in the Georgia legislature last year. Those who are too stingy to pay $1 a year, or about 3 1-2 mills a day, to educate his or her child, has no business with children.

We had a taste of unregistered voting once, when there were over 3,200 votes cast, while there were only 1,086 on the county registration list. These spurious voters all signed the registration oath though and voted in the city election. One of the candidates told me they bought these votes like buying ginger cakes, and he spent $425 cash besides other big donations for that purpose.

There was something over $2,200 school funds lost in that election.

At this rate, it is no wonder our public schools are in need of funds to carry on. If one precinct in the state loses $2,200, how much would all combined lose?

That bill to abolish the poll tax ought to die where it is and never be resurrected.

SAM N. THOMPSON.
East Point, Dec. 4, 1937.

COTTON GROWERS APPRECIATE EDITORIALS

Editor Constitution: Your many fine editorials appearing in your great paper of recent dates pertaining to the culture, prices and marketing of the south's most important crop, cotton, are certainly appreciated by the cotton growers, not only in Georgia, but over the entire south.

I say south, for your great newspaper goes into every cotton-growing state. Those fine editorials will no doubt help formulate the policies of the new cotton bill now before congress.

As a farmer myself, and having thousands of dollars invested in cotton lands, which will show me a financial loss this year on low price cotton, doubly appreciate the value of these fine and influential editorials.

M. J. TUTWILER.
Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4, 1937.

EDITORIAL CO-OPERATION HELPED CENSUS

Editor Constitution: The generous co-operation of daily newspapers in the educational campaign covering the unemployment census proved exceedingly helpful to the government, as well as to the many persons throughout the land interested, directly and indirectly, in the success of this undertaking.

The voluntary nature of the census made it essential to obtain a wide dissemination of information. The shortness of time, due to the necessity of getting this work out of the way before the Christmas rush in the Postoffice Department, made an intensive campaign necessary. That the educational campaign was effective is indicated by the fact that telegraphic reports from 14 typical cities show that the unemployment report cards were filled out with such accuracy that only 1 per cent required call backs. To this result daily newspapers made a major contribution.

The editorial co-operation of daily newspapers was likewise an important factor in obtaining public acceptance of the importance to the nation of getting the basic facts of unemployment as a preliminary step in a long range plan of re-employment.

Officially I acknowledge your part in this great public undertaking, and, personally, I thank you.

JOHN D. BIGGERS,
Administrator, Census of Partial Employment, Unemployment and Occupations.
Washington, D. C., Dec. 4, 1937.

FEELS WE FOLLOW BLIND LEADERS

Editor Constitution: Many thanks for that sound editorial, "Lo, the Poor Cotton Farmer." Beyond all doubt the conclusion contains sound reason, "From the cotton farmer alone . . . let him take his chances on a rapidly disappearing foreign market."

Surely wisdom has departed from any set of theorists who would advocate holding cotton down to ten million bales. That is not sufficient for home consumption, but perhaps dear Uncle Sam must do some missionary work by trying to relieve foreign situations by neglecting the home base. Along with this unreasonable restriction no other money crop that competes with other parts of the country is permitted to be grown.

Day before yesterday the writer placed in government storage 922 pounds of cotton for which they gave him $75.01 minus 50 cents for weighing and grading. For some other cotton that did not reach government regulations he was offered 7 cents per pound.

This same farm was operated by the same parties under the Hoover administration and no cotton was sold under 6 cents per pound. But then money was at par (a dollar was worth 100 cents—now it is worth only 59.06 cents). Really for all the boasted abundant life under the New Deal, wherein lies the gain for the cotton farmer? If one's memory is worth anything on points of arithmetic cotton farmers are losing heavily if only they knew it. A little dole has served a good purpose as an opiate, making them think they are getting something for nothing.

Freedom once for virile men was worth fighting and dying for; now it's an act of highest praise to sell it for a doubtful mess of pottage. When farmers voluntarily sign up to acreage control they are surrendering their birthright, as later they may realize.

We are blindly following men that do not see—can not see where they are going, and it's only a question of time until we shall all be scrambling in a sad ditch of utter despair.

THOMAS C. HOLLAND.
Mooresboro, N. C., Dec. 4, 1937.

WE PASS THIS WAY BUT ONCE

Editor Constitution: Is it fair for some families to have two or more salaries coming in every month and for others to have no salary at all? We pass this way but once and can consume just so much of the goods of this world and none of us can live forever. You can't legislate goodness nor force a person to be unselfish but there is an unwritten law of love, mercy, justice, kindness and unselfishness.

It is a sad fact that some women do go uptown to work even if their husbands have a good job and that they go simply to pile up luxuries for themselves and to philander with life.

We are looked up with a credit association to see if we pay our debts. If a census sheet should be made out in Atlanta or Georgia to check up on the over-salaried and the under-salaried it would be just as plausible. There are too many men and women out of jobs and this winter coming on, who could be relieved if some of the fat salaried families would play Christian and divide up.

We have either got to take such a census or else get a more workable religion, because this old and greedy way isn't making life near as happy as it could be.

JANE WILLIAMS.
Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 4, 1937.

ADVOCATES ARMAMENT PROGRAM

Editor Constitution: This is written to commend your editorial "Ominous Whispers."

The only way for this country to help other democracies to aid in world peace is to prepare for war, then there will be no fighting. If China had been ready to fight, Japan would not have crossed to China soil. If England had been ready to meet Italy, there would have been no war in Africa last year.

This nation has in natural resources all kinds of material to build any size or number of battleships, airplanes, submarines and transports. We should build 10 bombing planes to every one built by the combined totalitarian governments; we should build 10 battleships to every one built by our enemies; we should have 10,000,000 boys in training this next year; we should take every man off WPA and PWA, and every other kind of "A" and use them in gathering material to build battleships and cannon. This building program would be a thousand times more economic, than a world war.

We must stand "heart to heart" with our England and France. Our congressmen should begin at once to prepare for war, then we will live in peace; there will be no war, if the nations know we are ready to fight.

A. S. ULM.
Kingston, Ga., Dec. 4, 1937.

FALSE VS. REAL PATRIOTISM

Editor Constitution: The prevailing sentiment of the country is to keep out of any more foreign wars.

Our boys should not be drafted to go there, and put up their lives. That is false patriotism. We did it in the World War and got stuck. Real patriotism consists in the defense of our own borders from invasion.

A. G. STAR.
Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 4, 1937.

PEDIATRIC SOCIETY TO HOLD MEETING

Specialists From Three Large Centers To Talk at Session Here.

Prominent state specialists on diseases of children will gather in Atlanta Thursday for the fifth annual scientific meeting of the Georgia Pediatric Society and to get the views of four nationally known specialists from New York, Chicago and Boston.

Dr. Joseph Brennemann, professor of pediatrics, University of Chicago, and chief of staff at the Childrens' Memorial hospital in Chicago, will be the leading speaker.

Sessions at Biltmore.

The meeting opens with a luncheon at the Biltmore hotel at 12:45 o'clock Thursday afternoon. The evening session will be held at the Academy of Medicine, 38 Prescott street. Dr. Brennemann will lead discussions at conclusion of each session.

Dr. Ralph S. Muckenfuss, director of the New York Department of Health, bureau of laboratories; Dr. Priscilla White, physician at New England Deaconess hospital and instructor in pediatrics, Tufts College Medical school at Boston, and Dr. Paul H. Holinger, attending bronchoscopist of Research and Educational hospital of the University of Illinois at Chicago, will be in Atlanta to address members of the Georgia Pediatric Society.

Speaking on surgery in treatment of bronchitis, Dr. Brennemann will open the session at the Biltmore with "Acute Laryngotrachebronchitis" as his subject.

Address of Welcome.

Dr. H. Cliff Sauls, president of the Fulton County Medical Society, will deliver an address of welcome at the evening session. Other prominent Georgia physicians on the program include Dr. W. A. Mulherin, of Augusta; Dr. M. Hines Roberts, of Atlanta; Dr. Howard J. Morrison, of Savannah, and Dr. T. F. Davenport, of Atlanta.

Officers of the Georgia Pediatric Society are Dr. Roger W. Dickson, president; Dr. C. Hall Farmer, president-elect; Dr. Howard Morrison, vice president, and Dr. Don F. Cathcart, secretary and treasurer.

The scientific committee includes Dr. M. Hines Roberts, Dr. F. Lee Bivings, Dr. W. L. Funkhouser and Dr. T. Bolling Gay. The general arrangements committee, which assisted in preparing the program for the fifth annual meeting, include Dr. Stephen C. Redd, Dr. Cathcart, Dr. T. I. Willingham, Dr. Marshall R. Sims and Dr. James P. Hanner.

45 TO BE TRAINED FOR STATE PATROL

Men Chosen Are of 603 Who Made Application for Highway Jobs.

Forty-five men who made the highest averages of 130 who took mental and physical examinations last week, will begin tomorrow five weeks' instruction in the Georgia state patrol training school.

The men represent those "eliminated" from a total of 603 applications. Following the training school period, the students will take examinations, and those selected will be placed on the patrol for a three-months probationary period.

They may enlist if they qualify during the probationary service for three years.

The training school applicants will receive instruction in a variety of subjects.

Major Walter LeCraw, assistant solicitor general of the Atlanta judicial circuit, will teach elementary criminal law; Attorney General M. J. Yeomans will teach state motor vehicle laws, and Lieutenant Don L. Kooken, supervisor of Indiana state police, will instruct in various police methods.

The men will also study Red Cross first aid and drill and target practice.

BIRD LIFE PAINTING TO BE EXHIBITED

High Museum of Art To Show Collection.

An unusual collection of bird paintings by contemporary American painters and students of bird life will be placed on exhibition at the High Museum of Art, Tuesday. The collection, including among its 60 pieces paintings by the foremost painters of wild life in the country, will be open to the public until December 15.

Among the artists exhibiting are: Roger Tory Peterson, educational director of the National Association of Audobon Societies and a contributor to Bird Lore; Francis L. Jaques, Edward Von Siebold Dingle, and E. M. Sawyer.

The Atlanta Bird Club was responsible in securing the loan of this collection to the High Museum.

R. DUDLEY HAYES WILL LIVE IN TAMPA

R Dudley Hayes, prominent young Atlanta business and civic leader, left yesterday to establish his residence in Tampa, Fla.

A graduate of Georgia Tech and the University System of Georgia Evening school, Hayes had become well known in business, civic and fraternal life here. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hayes, formerly of Camilla, but who now reside at 22 Peachtree place.

Miss Bedenbaugh Weds Mr. Shirah

The marriage of Miss Mae Bedenbaugh and Henry Covin Shirah was solemnized at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the First Methodist church, in East Point. The Rev. Jason Shirah, of Byromville, father of the groom, performed the ceremony.

The church was lovely in its decorations. An improvised altar was formed of palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums, flanked by candelabra holding lighted tapers. Mrs. Eugene Wilkes and Mrs. Shelton Simmons presented a program of music. The ushers were G. F. Bedenbaugh, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and J. W. Shirah, of Alexandria, La.

Mrs. H. O. Connolly, matron of honor and only attendant, was gowned in beige alpaca with blue accessories. Her flowers were a cluster of talisman roses. The bride entered the church with her matron of honor. Mr. Shirah was attended by J. M. Moore, as best man.

The bride, a beautiful brunette, wore Wallis blue cristella velvet made along simple lines with hat of matching shade. Other accessories were black. Her flowers were orchids.

Mr. Shirah and his bride left for a wedding trip to New Orleans and upon their return will reside at 1603 Westwood avenue. Mrs. Shirah traveled in a light grey wool, with coat and hat of black.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Bedenbaugh Mr. Shirah holds a position with the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The out-of-town guests were: Rev. and Mrs. Jason Shirah, Byromville; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shirah, Alexandria, La.; Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Bedenbaugh, Chattanooga, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Bedenbrugh, Hartwell; L. W. P. Bedenbrugh and Mrs. R. H. Sullivan, Senoia; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Shirah, Perry, and J. P. Shirah, Blackshear.

Broughton—Johnson.

T. F. Donahue announces the marriage of his daughter, Beatrice Donahue Broughton, to George Middleton Johnson, of Elberton, the marriage having been solemnized on Saturday, November 27.

Announcement of the marriage was made at a bridal shower given recently at a local tea room by Mesdames James R. Hale, Sidney Grogan, W. C. Johnston and Asa Smedley.

The table was adorned with pink roses, the color scheme being pink and white. The honor guest's place was marked with a corsage of pink roses and valley lilies, and favors at her place were a miniature bride and groom. The favors at the guests' places were gold horse shoes with white lovebirds. The bride received lovely gifts. A messenger brought the telegram announcing the marriage which came as a surprise to the guests.

Guests included Mrs. George M. Johnson, the former Beatrice Donahue Broughton; Mesdames Evelyn Crawford, Myrtle Goodgame, Agnes Vaughan, Martha Briggs, Dorothy Scruggs, Ruth Burch, Misses Dorothy Armstrong, Ruth Bradberry, Jesse Wooddall, Antha Mulkey, Judy Johnson and Mesdames Johnston, Hale, Grogan and Smedley.

Whitehead—Adams.

LEXINGTON, Ga., Dec. 4.—Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Louise Whitehead to Thomas Adams, on Saturday, at the home of the bride's parents, near Lexington. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William M. Coile, Winterville. Mrs. J. N. Adams, Tignall, Ga., rendered the nuptial music.

Mrs. Adams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert C. Whitehead. She was graduated from Washington Seminary and later attended G. S. C. W., and the University of Georgia.

Mr. Adams, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Adams, Tignall, graduated from Tignall High school and attended the University of Georgia.

Upon their return from a wedding trip through Tennessee and the Carolinas they will make their home at Tignall.

Woodward—Reynolds.

WASHINGTON, Ga., Dec. 4.—Miss Margaret Almeria Woodward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cannon Woodward, of Tampa, was married to Charles Irwin Reynolds Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Reynolds Sr., of Washington, at First Baptist church, Tampa, on Friday.

Miss Couch, of Marietta, To Wed Mr. Robinson, of Winder, Dec. 23

MARIETTA, Ga., Dec. 4.—The announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Couch of the engagement of their daughter, Cora Lucille, to John W. Robinson, of Winder, is of cordial social interest throughout Georgia.

The bride-elect is the elder daughter of her parents, her sister being Mrs. Newt Malone Landers, of this city. Miss Couch received her early education in the Canton schools and came to Marietta with her family in 1931. She graduated from Wesleyan College and during her attendance there was active in student activities, being president of the Alumnae Council, director of the Dramatic Club, member of the Debaters' Council, director of the Y. W. C. A. plays and president of the Seventh District Club. Three times she was chosen on the debating team of Wesleyan, as well as being chosen the most popular student.

For the past five years Miss Couch has been head of the English department of the Winder High school.

Mr. Robinson is the son of Mrs. John Robinson, and the late Mr. Robinson. He was educated in the Winder schools and in the business circles of Winder is a prominent figure. He is connected with the Lilly Mills, of Shelbyville, N. C., and after their marriage on December 23, the young couple will reside in Winder.

Miss Little Weds Mr. Boardman At Brilliant Cathedral Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Virginia Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Little, to Fredric James Boardman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Todd Boardman, of Minneapolis, Minn., was solemnized at 8 o'clock last evening at the Cathedral of St. Philip, with Dean Raimundo de Ovies officiating, in the presence of relatives and a small group of friends. Arthur Davis, organist, presented a program of appropriate music.

Palms were banked on each side of the altar, in front of which was a floor seven-branched candelabra holding lighted white tapers. Vases of Easter lilies were placed on the altar.

Ushers were Lee Holley, O. W. Miller, Enis Parker and Howard Fisch. They entered in pairs and were followed by the bridesmaids, who came in singly.

Bridesmaids included Misses Frankie Marbury, Margaret Talmadge, Jeanne Turner and Mrs. Keith Payne. The bride's cousin, Mrs. Richard Newell, of Carrollton, was matron of honor. All were dressed alike in hyacinth blue taffeta, fashioned along empire lines, and carried arm bouquets of deep gold chrysanthemums tied with yellow ribbons.

Little Claire Wynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfrey Wynn, was flower girl. She wore yellow silk marquisette and carried a nosegay of palmer violets and yellow roses.

The bride entered with her father, who gave her in marriage. They were met at the altar by the groom and Joe Fisch, who was his best man.

The beauty of the bride was accentuated by her gown of white satin, which was cut along princess lines. The skirt of the dress widened to form the train and the square neckline was encircled with seed pearls. Soft gathers formed fullness at the top of the sleeves, which were tightly fitted and buttoned to the elbow. Her veil of soft tulle was caught to her hair with a coronet of orange blossoms and sprays of orange blossoms were dotted over the veil. She carried a prayer book showered with orchids and valley lilies.

Mrs. Little, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in bronze lace and her shoulder spray was of talisman roses.

Immediately following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Miller entertained at a reception at their home on Rockmont drive for the bridal party, families and a few intimate friends. Mrs. L. B. McMullan, the bridesmaids and the matron of honor assisted in entertaining.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Boardman left on their wedding trip to Florida resorts, after which they will reside in their new home at 4403 Davidson avenue.

SOCIALITES ENJOY OUTING AT CALLAWAY LODGE AT BLUE SPRING

A favorite rendezvous for prominent young Georgians is the handsome lodge recently erected by Mr. and Mrs. Cason Callaway, of LaGrange, at Blue Springs, Ga. At the center of the page is an attractive view of the lodge which formed the setting last Sunday for an all-day outing with Mr. and Mrs. Callaway as hosts. Some of their guests, shown on the stairway below, included, left to right, Richard W. Courts Jr. and William Huger, of Atlanta; Mrs. R. J. Reynolds, of Sea Island; Mrs. Callaway, Mrs. William Huger, Mrs. Ben Hurt Hardaway, of Columbus, and Mrs. Clark Howell, of Atlanta. At the left is Mr. Callaway viewing the beautiful lake which forms a picturesque background for the rustic lodge.

All photographs on the page were made by The Constitution staff photographer, H. J. Slayton.

Ben Hurt Hardaway, of Columbus, and Mrs. William Huger, of Atlanta, were snapped by the photographer while deeply engrossed in a conversation in the living room of the lodge.

Mr. and Mrs. Callaway posed with a pair of their favorite pets, a Great Dane and a cunning Chihuahua. Mrs. Callaway was before her marriage Miss Virginia Hand, of Pelham, and with Mr. Callaway is a frequent and popular visitor to Atlanta friends and relatives.

Mrs. Thomas Quinney Will Honor Debutante Granddaughter at Party

By Sally Forth.

AN ATTRACTIVE family foursome, all by the name of Alice, will greet the guests when lovely Alice Armstrong makes her bow to society on December 18. The presentation will be made at a luncheon to be given at the Piedmont Driving Club by the debutante's grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Quinney, of Waynesboro, the former Miss Alice Gray, for whom the debutante is named.

Alice Palmer, daughter of the Sam Palmers, of Jacksonville, who attends Gunston Hall school, and Alice Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Reynolds Jr., of Waynesboro, who is enrolled at Hollins College, are the other members of this prominent family bearing the name of their grandmother Quinney who will attend their debutante cousin's party.

They will be accompanied to Atlanta by their mothers, the former Misses Cliff and Tommie Quinney, sisters of the debbie's mother, Mrs. Patsy Quinney Armstrong. May Quinney is the fourth of the quartet of sisters who will attend her niece's debut luncheon, as will Mrs. W. H. Goodrich, of Augusta, the former Mary Dorothy Palmer, another cousin of the debutante.

Alice is listed as one of the season's most popular debutantes, which is no surprise to Sally Forth. For, in addition to her own individual charm, Alice has inherited much of her grandmother's gracious manner, as well as that of her mother, the former Patsy Quinney, who, during her young ladyhood, was considered one of Georgia's reigning belles.

COUNTLESS orchids beautified the silver screen made of silvered ivy and smilax that formed the backdrop to enhance the ethereal loveliness of Katherine Calhoun when she was presented to society at the Driving Club supper-dance last week. Silver was the predominating motif of the gorgeous decorations, and in keeping with the scheme, was the spiderweb basket made of fragile silver wire and filled with pink roses and gladioli, combined with fragrant valley lilies.

The basket was sent to Katherine by Colonel and Mrs. James H. Hammond, of Memphis, Tenn., who made a recent world-wide cruise with Mrs. Andrew Calhoun and her debutante daughter. In the center of the silver handle of the basket was a cluster of exotic orchids that added just the right touch to the artistic tribute.

Silvered ivy leaves provided the setting for the Easter lilies and red roses sent Katherine by her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Ochs Jr., of Chattanooga, and Katherine's admirers literally showered upon her flowers of every description, to add to her pleasure on the evening she made her debut in Atlanta's exclusive social ranks.

Her blonde loveliness was enhanced by her white lace gown threaded in silver, and two white gardenias were fastened gracefully in her golden tresses. A dozen orchids composed the exquisite bouquet Katherine held in her hands, and the honor of sending the bouquet was requested by James and Abner Calhoun, her brothers.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the announcer! He is about six feet tall, a blond, and hails from Marietta. She is a not-very-tall Richmond belle whom he has known for about six or seven weeks, and the likable pair are planning to marry on December 15. As the couple is making no effort to keep their engagement a secret, Sally feels that she may give you a leading clue to the swain's identity—you have heard his voice over radio when you tuned in to hear the broadcast of a football game from the Tech stadium.

ATLANTA'S bachelor ranks will for the next month be minus two of its most popular members, Cliff and Cummings Tritchler, who left for New York on Thursday and sailed Saturday on the Rex for Naples, Italy. They will include Florence and Rome in their itinerary of that country before leaving for Lucerne, Switzerland, where they are planning to enjoy the winter sports.

The brothers will pay a visit to that fascinating spot, Monte Carlo, before going to Paris for Christmas, and winding up their Yuletide celebration by flying to London for New Year's. Cliff will return to America in January, but Cummings will remain abroad for another month and travel to Berlin, Heidelberg and many other interesting cities.

As this is the first European trip for either member of the traveling pair, Sally cannot help envying them the pleasures they have in store. Can you?

Sunday School Class Honors Brides-Elect.

Miss Neal Lasseter and Miss Lenora Parker, bride-elects of December, were honor guests at a dinner party and kitchen shower given by the Pruitt class of the Druid Hills Baptist Sunday school Thursday. A bride's cake formed the central decoration of the table. Games and contests were enjoyed. A special feature of the evening was the solo by Mrs. Luther Elder accompanied by Miss Margaret Morgan.

Present were Misses Lasseter, Parker, Sarah Spratlin, Evelyn Hammett, Audrey Jacoby, Rebekah Jarrell, Mildred Austin, Maxine Cooper, Annette Arnold, Margaret Morgan, Mary Mahaffey, Sue Richardson, Marita Sullivan, Lucy Walters, Louise Shackelford, Doris Dowdy, Jewel Hord, Martha Cleveland, Margaret Hanes, Mesdames George Almond, Luther Elder, C. E. Lawrence and Kathleen Griffin.

Miss Richardson Honors Visitor.

Miss Elizabeth Richardson entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Druid Hills Golf Club in compliment to Mrs. Nolen Richardson, of Newark, N. J., who is visiting relatives in the city.

The beautifully appointed luncheon table held in the center an arrangement of pink roses, pink snapdragons and blue delphinium. The place cards were hand-painted in a floral design of pink rosse in a golden bowl. The place of the honor guest was marked with a shoulder cluster of pink rosebuds and valley lilies.

Covers were placed for Mrs. Richardson, Mesdames Ralph Williams, Dick Di Cristina, Hutchins Hodgson, Franklin Chalmers, Olin Adcock, Earl Mann, Robert Wood, Ben Hines, Stacey Ernest Hill, Robert E. Hodgson, Moore Pearson, M. J. Gillespie, Harry Richardson, Miss Sue Brown Sterne and the hostess.

Two Atlanta Debs Make Bow Tuesday At Supper-Dance

Among important events of the week will be the formal presentation to society of Miss Mary Morris and Miss Kathryn Barnwell, two popular members of the Debutant Club who will make their bow Tuesday evening at a brilliant supper dance at which their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Morris and Mr. and Mrs. William Barnwell entertain at Brookhaven, the Capital City Country Club.

The honor guests and the hosts will form the receiving line in the foyer of the club. Several hundred members of society have been invited for the affair which will herald the series of brilliant parties for the Christmas social season. Misses Morris and Barnwell have been feted at a series of social affairs during their debut year.

Assisting in entertaining will be a group of prominent Atlantans including Dr. and Mrs. Dan Y. Sage, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Paine, Dr. and Mrs. George Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. William Akers, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Thomas, Dr. and Mrs. Calhoun McDougall, Mr. and Mrs. Spottswood Grant, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Mullings Sr., Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Daniel Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Evans Joseph, Mr. and Mrs. George Niles, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Burnett, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Howard See, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Wight, Mr. and Mrs. Bolling Sasnett, and Mrs. Peter Godfrey, of Madison.

Yesterday Miss Morris was the central figure at the beautiful tea given by Mrs. George Fuller at her home on Fairview road, when 200 members of society including members of the Debutante Club attended.

Forming a receiving line with the hostess and honor guest were Mrs. H. L. Morris, mother of the debutante, and Mrs. Jack C. Morris, sister of the honor guest. Miss Betty Davison received the cards at the door.

Pink and white roses and snapdragons were used in effective arrangement as the decorations throughout the living room. Yellow and white chrysanthemums were used in the hall and in the upstairs as the decorations.

In the dining room the table was covered with a venise lace cloth and was centered with a silver bowl filled with yellow roses and bronze snapdragons. On either side were silver candlesticks holding yellow burning tapers. At either end of the table were silver coffee and tea services presided over by Mrs. L. G. Baggett and Mrs. M. C. Pruitt. Assisting the hostess in entertaining were Mesdames T. C. Davison, J. R. Childs, Richard Newberry.

W. G. Neblett Photo.

MRS. RICHARD LITTLEJOHN.

The marriage of Miss Virginia Hollis to Richard Littlejohn was quietly solemnized yesterday at noon at the North Avenue Presbyterian church. Rev. Richard Orme Flinn performed the ceremony in the presence of the immediate families.

The bride was attired in a modish grey wool costume suit trimmed with Persian lamb and worn with blouse of blue and silver metal cloth. Her hat of black felt was trimmed with face veil and she wore black suede accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder cluster of purple orchids.

The bride and groom left after the ceremony for a motor trip after which they will reside in the Lombardy apartments on Fifteenth street.

The bride's mother is the former Miss Mary Veazey, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Veazey, of Greensboro, Ga. Her father is J. T. Hollis, of Rutledge, Ga., and her paternal grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Hollis, of Covington, Ga. J. Thomas Hollis, of Atlanta, is her brother.

Mrs. Littlejohn received her education at the Georgia State College for Women.

Mr. Littlejohn is the son of Mrs. W. D. Wilkinson and the late Dr. Richard N. Littlejohn, of Charlotte, N. C. His mother is the former Miss Leona Edwards, daughter of Mrs. M. J. Edwards and the late Mr. Edwards, also of Charlotte. His paternal grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard N. Littlejohn, of Charlotte.

The groom was graduated from Davidson College where he was a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He is connected with the American Surety Company of New York.

Georgia Legion Auxiliary Makes Plans For Christmas Program Under Mrs. Dixon

By MRS. C. B. McCULLAR, of Milledgeville.

Georgia department of the American Legion Auxiliary is planning an extensive Christmas program under the direction of Mrs. P. I. Dixon, of Thomasville, rehabilitation chairman. Each hospitalized man or woman in Georgia will receive a gift. The Christmas box quota was sent out to the units this week and checks for the boxes should be sent to Mrs. W. M. Gorman, at Cordele, before December 10. Each gift will bear a gift card saying "From Your American Legion Auxiliary."

The Christmas program will include the family contact service which the auxiliary has rendered for many years past in taking thought for the families left back at home by the sick veterans who are in the hospitals of the state. Mrs. Dixon reminds units that there is a time limit on the rehabilitation reports and that they should be sent in to her as soon after Christmas as possible. She calls attention to the hostess calendar which has been mailed to units showing their time to entertain the men in Georgia's two hospitals. Some units make this trip to the hospitals and put on their own parties. If this is not possible, please send your party checks to Mrs. Gorman.

Georgia was stirred last Saturday by the impressive tribute paid Miss Moina Michael for her world-famous poppy idea, when her marble bust was unveiled by Mrs. Horace Holden in the state capitol in the presence of Governor E. D. Rivers, Legion Commander J. P. Kelly, Mrs. Edgar Pullen, auxiliary president, and many Legionnaires. Speeches by the Governor, Sculptor Steffen Thomas and DeLacey Allen and others paid tribute to Miss Michael, who was sick and could not attend. D. Weaver Bridges, of Athens, brought her message of gratitude.

National headquarters requests that all unit workers speaking on child welfare refrain from using the name of the child and refer to this work by case numbers.

Mrs. Edgar Pullen, president, and Mrs. W. M. Gorman, secretary, have returned from Indianapolis, where they attended the presidents' and secretaries' conference. They heard Mrs. Malcolm Douglas, national president; National Commander Daniel J. Doherty and Mrs. A. H. Laws, of Tennessee, southern vice president.

Legion birthday parties will be continued over the nation this year and Georgia units are requested to begin plans for theirs as soon as possible. Mrs. Steve Cocke, of Soperton, is post contact chairman.

Dues for the membership reported at the national roll call must be in at national headquarters by December 13. This is imperative and all Georgia unit treasurers are especially asked to attend to this matter. The membership campaign is still in progress, under the leadesrhip of Mrs. H. E. Sanford Jr., second vice president and membership chairman, and Georgia expects to reach its greatest membership this year.

Cornelia was hostess recently at the ninth district rally, with Mrs. E. R. Harris, of Winder, presiding.

Mrs. R. K. Whiteford, poppy chairman, who headed the drive just completed in Georgia, makes her report on this venture. She says:

"Another poppy sale has just been completed and I know that every member of the American Legion Auxiliary is proud and happy to have shared in the accomplishment of this splendid record our department has made. We made our quota, we did even more, we went over the top with flying colors. Our quota was 104,000 and 115,725 poppies were sold on the streets of the cities and villages of Georgia. This means increased funds with which to carry on the program of rehabilitation and child welfare, to which our organization is primarily dedicated.

"It is through the poppy program, sponsored by the department of Georgia in the United States Veterans' hospitals that we leave in the lives of our disabled comrades a peace of mind and self-respect gained through profitable employment.

"It is also through the united efforts of all, in our poppy sales, that we leave in the minds and hearts of the citizenry of America, the desire and inspiration to live more patriotically.

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank each and every unit and post, each and every member who made it possible for me to carry on this program for the department of Georgia, and especially to the units in the fifth district who gave so much of their time and efforts at Hospital No. 48. The cooperation throughout the entire state was most gratifying and I am very happy to have been able to contribute in a small way to the success of the 1937 poppy campaign."

Miss Crawford Weds A. G. Singleton

Miss Frances Crawford, youngest daughter of Mrs. W. A. Whittle and the late G. C. Crawford, became the bride of A. G. Singleton, youngest son of Mrs. M. T. Singleton and the late M. T. Singleton, of Gadsden, Ala., at a beautiful ceremony solemnized Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, on Westwood avenue, in West End, in the presence of immediate relatives and a few friends.

Dr. M. A. Cooper, pastor of West End Baptist church, performed the ceremony. The vows were spoken before an improvised altar of palms and white and yellow chrysanthemums, flanked by tall cathedral candelabra holding lighted tapers. A program of music was rendered by Miss Susanna Hicks, cousin of the bride.

The lovely young bride entered with her father, W. A. Whittle, who gave her in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his brother, M. T. Singleton, who acted as best man.

The bride presented a charming figure wearing a modish costume suit of green wool, trimmed with brown fox, and a close-fitting brown hat with veil that enhanced her brunette type of beauty. Her flowers were orchids and valley lilies.

The bride and groom left for a wedding trip, after which they will reside at the Hotel Upson, Thomaston.

Honored at Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Lyon were hosts on Thursday at their home on Gordon street for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Agnew whose marriage was a recent event. Mrs. Agnew is the former Miss Olive Fusselle. Mr. and Mrs. Morgan D. Elliott assisted the hosts in entertaining.

State W.C.T.U. Continues Efforts For Enforcement of Prohibition

By M. Frances Meadors Burghard, Macon, State W. C. T. U. Editor.

The Georgia Woman's Christian Temperance Union went on record at its annual convention in Savannah several weeks ago as "rejoicing in the great victory in Georgia on June 8, holding fast to our prohibition dry law, by a much greater majority than in the election two years ago. That we believe this victory to have heartened the temperance forces throughout the state and the nation. That already its beneficent effect is being felt in better enforcement and clean-up campaigns, proving that prohibition can be reasonably enforced when good citizens demand it.

"That we will redouble our efforts for the creation of law observance sentiment, and prohibition enforcement, aiding and encouraging in every possible way enforcement officers, and other officials of the law. That because beverage alcohol in wine, beer and whisky is a habit-forming poison, a foe to safety, character and human progress, we continue to stand uncompromisingly for total abstinence for the individual, and total abolition of the traffic."

The convention also went on record by a unanimous vote "That we heartily commend the new board of education, headed by the Governor, for the constructive effort to aid in temperance education by placing a textbook on alcohol and other narcotics in the high schools of the state.

"That we gladly commend the parent-teacher groups for the stand they are taking, and for the aid they rendered in bringing about this long-desired result.

"That we deeply regret a former legislature saw fit to allocate the beer revenue to free school books, thus tying up a dangerous and degrading drug with the education of the children whom we are trying to protect. We earnestly hope that a legislature in the near future will amend this ill-advised legislation. That if the state must have beer revenue, it should be allocated to the jails, almshouses, asylums for the inebriate and insane—to care for the wreckage caused by the licensing of a dangerous drug in beverages form."

The Macon W. C. T. U. was the first union in this state with a membership of more than 100 members to hold fast before Thanksgiving Day, winning the $10 on its budget offered by the state organization for reaching that goal. This union paid dues for 373 members, as many members as last year.

This does not mean that all members have paid for 1937-38, for the dues of 32 new members, gained during roll call, finished out the needed total. Three other new members have been added since Thanksgiving Day.

The Macon treasurer, Mrs. A. W. Voight, and her assistant treasurers, Mrs. G. W. Smith and Mrs. George E. Clary, are receiving deserved congratulations. They share the credit with a number of voluntary helpers.

The eighth district, south, W. C. T. U., meeting was held in Naylor Thursday, Mrs. Robert Travelute, state recording secretary, guest speaker; Mrs. J. O. Ward, of Blackshear, honorary president of the district, participating, and the president, Mrs. A. E. Martin, Waycross, presiding.

Mrs. A. J. Baldwin, president of the hostess union, led the devotions on peace, closing with the song, "Peace Forever."

Mrs. Martin made an interesting report of the state convention which was held in Savannah, and Mrs. Travelute gave a graphic resume of the world's W. C. T. U. convention she had attended in Washington, D. C. She closed with the theme song, "What the World Needs Is Jesus."

Mrs. J. J. Bennett was elected recording secretary during the business session. Luncheon was served by the hostess union.

Mayor W. B. Hartsfield Expresses Approval of Parent-Teacher Aims

xpressing sympathy with the ement and approval of the nt-Teacher Association and Atlanta public schools, Mayor iam B. Hartsfield, Thursday essed Atlanta P.-T. A. coun- t its meeting. Mrs. J. Elmer er, president of Atlanta coun- presented Mayor Hartsfield. How to Secure Adequate Laws the Care and Protection of Children and Youth," was the ject of the mayor's address. He ted out the many branches of ernment which have to work d in hand if the child and the lt are to be protected. "Fire, fic and health departments tribute to the physical safety our youth, but the moral and itual welfare is dependent upon parents, the home and the ol," Mayor Hartsfield said. he mayor stressed importance having decent citizens go to the s and vote, because the voters tate the policies of public of- als. "If the decent people don't officials what to do, the un- world will," he declared. Mayor Hartsfield gave the ools an important place in lding the morals of a commu- y. He pledged his co-operation d support of the schools.

Dr. J. P. Bowdoin, of the State Health Department, expressed appreciation for what the P.-T. A. has done for the health of the child in Georgia.

Mrs. H. R. Albion announced forums to be held in December at Peeples, Morningside and Clark Howell schools. Speakers are available for parent education and study groups, Mrs. Albion said.

A membership roll call showed that Morningside led the elementary schools, with a membership of 546, Bass, the junior high, with 659, and Spring Street, the preschool, with 25.

Mrs. Jesse Boyd spoke for the home education department. Mrs. Boyd urged that books be given children and that these books be carefully chosen.

Representatives of the Kirkwood school, Mrs. Erwin Price, who, accompanied by Mrs. J. M. Cunningham, rendered a solo, were presented by Mrs. Fred Bridges. Mrs. M. L. Duggan directed the recreational group singing.

The school groups which met preceding the general council meeting were well attended. Dr. J. P. Bowdoin addressed preschool section on "Health;" J. Reid Hunter spoke to junior high on "How to Prepare the Child for Senior High;" Dr. T. Z. Morrison addressed the senior high section on "Religion in the Life of the High School Boy and Girl."

E. T. Stewart spoke to the elementary section on "Juvenile Protection." Mr. Stewart was introduced by Mrs. Sol Epsten.

Mr. Stewart cited three causes for child delinquency. First, lack of respect for authority; second, lack of respect for labor; third, disregard for property rights. "Foculize upon the parent and not the child if you wish to correct the child" Mr. Stewart said.

Adair School's 25th Birthday Is Celebrated at P.-T. A. Meeting

George W. Adair P.-T. A. celebrated the 25th anniversary of the school at a daddies' meeting on Tuesday. Mrs. W. F. Beck, president, presided, and the invocation was given by Douglas McRae, former pupil.

Mrs. Beck welcomed former students of the school and parents of the present students. She stated this meeting was honoring Misses Lucile Nolan, Nellie Camp and Anna Senkbeil, teachers who have faithfully served the school for 25 years.

Mrs. Wootan, program chairman, introduced Owen Heard, a former student who rendered two vocal selections. A chorus of girls, former students of the Adair school, gave two vocal selections, accompanied at the piano by Miss Martha Hinson and Misses Frankie and Bernice Brinsfield with violins.

Mrs. Wootan introduced Miss Lucile Nolan, principal, who gave reminiscences of the opening of the school and invited the audience to open house after the meeting. She introduced four of the members of the first class to graduate from the school, Mrs. Era Farlow Cook, Roger Spurlin, Ernest Brewer and Carl Weinmeister Jr., and thanked Mr. Brewer for his help in securing the additional new rooms which have been so badly needed all these years. After the recognition of former students of the school, the charter members of the P.-T. A. were recognized and of these two were present, Mrs. Norman Harper and Mrs. Fred Lindorme. The room sponsors, past teachers, past presidents of the association and the present teachers were recognized.

Mrs. Carl Weinmeister Jr., presented Miss Camp and Miss Seinkbeil silver vases as a token of appreciation by the association. She presented Miss Nolan, principal, with a vase which was then filled with red rose buds by representatives of the old classes and those of the present time. An informal reception and open house was held.

Richardson P.-T. A.

Miss Virginia McJenkin, librarian for Fulton county schools, spoke at the November meeting. She was introduced by Mrs. Charles Trowbridge, state chairman of library service. The association voted to begin an intensive campaign to raise funds for the school library. L. L. Deck, principal, asked that the following committee be authorized to conduct the "Mile o' Pennies" drive: Mrs. J. D. Conley, library chairman of P.-T. A.; Miss Sara Swanson, library chairman of school; Miss Elizabeth Jones, school librarian; Mrs. Thomas McLaughlin, president of P.-T. A. This committee will work with the grade mothers, and with Mrs. A. H. Cox, chairman of grade mothers. Miss Jones and Miss Swanson will conduct the campaign among the students who have already shown much enthusiasm. Harold Gunn, director of dramatics, announced that a play, "Good Gracious, Grandma," will be presented at an early date in the auditorium. On Friday evening, the P.-T. A. will sponsor the annual stunt night. Mrs. L. H. Warlick presented Eugene Gibson in a group of songs. He was accompanied by his mother, Mrs. E. H. Gibson. Room seven, under the leadership of Miss Edith Hopkins, won the attendance prize.

Central Park P.-T. A.

Professor Knox Walker, Fulton county school supervisor, spoke and Mrs. E. S. Van Huss presented a Spanish festival centering around life in the Latin American countries. This play culminated a study of the history and life of the people in those countries by the pupils of the seventh grades. All the stage furnishings, including small figures representing Columbus, Queen Isabelle and Balboa, and the three famous ships used by Columbus, were made by these pupils. The customs and modes of living in the Latin countries were shown in pottery, musical instruments and foods, likewise prepared by the students, and in costume with song and dance. The P.-T. A. received a check from East Point city council for $25 and voted to send them a note of thanks. Book fees, amounting to $27.25, were appropriated for needy children. Mrs. J. R. Burns, vice president, presided in the absence of Mrs. J. A. Nordan, president, due to the illness of her husband.

Druid Hills P.-T. A.

Mrs. J. J. Flowers gave a resume of an article in a recent issue of the P.-T. A. magazine, "How to Handle Children's Questions." Mrs. J. W. Mozley, principal, announced the Christmas program in charge of Mrs. J. B. McNelley and the teachers, was to be held December 16 at 9 o'clock. Mrs. S. N. Mohr, chairman of programs, introduced Miss Mary Thomason, of the Family Welfare Society, who answered questions submitted by the teachers of the first, second and third grades.

Chamblee P.-T. A.

After a program on "The Toys Children Enjoy," a business session was held.

Whitefoord Preschool.

Mrs. B. F. Crocker led the discussion and music was furnished by Mrs. S. W. Graydon. A contest for parents was arranged by the president, Mrs. R. H. Patrick.

State U. D. C. Officers Express Appreciation in Their Greetings

By MISS MARY LIZZIE WRIGHT, of Elberton,
Editor Georgia Division, U. D. C.

Your first vice president extends greetings to each Georgia Daughter of the Confederacy, individually and as an organization, and expresses appreciation of allowing her the privilege and pleasure of serving two more years in the Georgia division. "May we unite in every effort to uphold the fine standard of our beloved organization," states Mrs. Charles T. Tillman.

"It is a happy privilege for me to greet you as your auditor, and say to you that at all times I shall strive to render my best services to our splendid organization," says Mrs. Mark Smith.

"As your recorder of crosses of military service, I bring you cordial greetings. The cross is bestowed by the United Daughters of the Confederacy as a testimony to the patriotic devotion and loyalty of the lineal descendants of Confederate soldiers and sailors who have given honorable military or naval service to the United States. The bestowal of a cross of military service is a coveted honor, it signifies loyalty to Confederate heritage and testifies to sacrifice on the battlefield. Pledging my best efforts and my willingness to serve, and trusting a hearty co-operation on your part, let us pull together and bestow the largest number of crosses ever," says Mrs. Joseph Vason.

Covington Chapter held its November meeting at the library with Mesdames I. H. Rainwater, J. I. Alford, Luke Robinson, J. L. Skinner, George Ramsay, H. C. Hicks and J. F. Stocks hostesses. Splendid reports were given during the session, presided over by Mrs. I. H. Rainwater. Mrs. Ola Malone stated she secured a picture of the old Pitts house, where Sherman made his headquarters, to send scrapbook chairman. Mrs. A. Belmont Dennis, third vice president Georgia division, reported the general convention, which she attended in Richmond. The speaker was Rev. Claude Haynes, who talked on "Lost Causes Are Never Lost." A poem on Armistice Day, written by Mrs. Penick, was read. Musical selections were given by Misses Marian Sealey, Ann Carlton and Mrs. M. S. Penick.

Habersham Chapter, Clarkesville, met at home of Mrs. S. Y. Stribling, with Mrs. Ben I. Thornton, president, in the chair. A cross of military service was bestowed upon William R. Ramsey, World War Veteran. Rev. C. H. Sewell talked on "The Message of the Unknown Soldier." "The Veteran's Cross of Honor" was the subject of Miss Mary Carruth. "Southerners in the World War" was given by Miss Evelyn Jernigan and a musical number given by Mrs. Loy Fry.

Oglethorpe Chapter met at the home of Mrs. T. C. Powers with Mesdames C. T. Harden and Norman Williams assisting. Roll call was responded to with names of World War veterans of Macon county, followed by ritual in unison. "South Carolina During the Confederacy" was discussed by Mesdames Will Cook, Dan Kleckley and A. H. Perry. Plans were made for a Christmas tree in December for the veterans.

Oconee Chapter, Dublin, met recently in the clubhouse, with Mesdames O. L. Chivers, I. Bashinski, R. L. Tindol, Saxon Wells, E. S. Baldwin and M. W. Jordan hostesses. The president, Mrs. Herchel Whitehurst, presided and welcomed Mrs. D. J. McKaughan as a new member, and Mrs. Laura Walker, of Waycross, as a visitor. Chapter voted to place a subscription to the Southern Magazine in school library. Miss Baum, scrapbook chairman, presented the chapter with a scrapbook and Mrs. Izzie Bashinski gave a cocktail set to be sold, the proceeds used in chapter work. The program featured a paper of interest on the origin of "Battle Hymn of Republic" by Mrs. Saxon Wells, read by Mrs. Harry Taylor and "A Woman Spy" given by Mrs. J. M. Couric. Vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. E. H. Langston.

Sharmon of Upson Chapter, Thomaston, was entertained by Mrs. Elmo Adams, past president. A cross of military service was awarded to Roy H. Pruett. It was a coincidence that this was the birthday of the hostess, and the president, Mrs. Grady Fowler, presented Mrs. Adams a U. D. C. pin to show love and appreciation for loyal service during past two years.

Disciples of Christ To Observe Today As Woman's Day

Woman's Day will be observed today among the Disciples of Christ in America and throughout the land. The observance in each local church is sponsored by the woman's missionary organization and consists of four important steps: The pastor or some other speaker will bring a message at the morning service, emphasizing individual responsibility of every Christian toward the world task; the attendance of every member of all missionary organizations at the morning church service; the taking of an offering for reaching the missionary organization goal; at the evening service a play, "Larry's Gift to India," to be presented.

The planned use of this day is both educational and promotional with a program of information regarding the causes of foreign missions, home missions and Christian education and an offering taken for support of these causes.

Woman's Day, originally conceived as National Christian Woman's Board of Missions Day, was first observed on July 6, 1890. At the 24th annual convention of the C. W. B. M. at Chattanooga, Tenn., in 1898, the Christian Woman's Board of Missions' Day was changed from the first Sunday in July to the first Sunday in December. Following the coming into the United Christian Missionary Society of the C. W. B. M. in 1920, Woman's Day has been continued, sponsored by the womanhood of the churches, carrying as its emphasis the total world-wide missionary program of the church.

Georgia churches participating in this observance are Savannah First, Macon First, Sandersville Christian, Waycross First, Rome Christian, Decatur Christian, Atlanta Peachtree, West End Christian, Fitzgerald Christian, Atlanta First, Dublin Christian; Atlanta Longley Avenue and others.

Passing of Mrs. Waite.

The Atlanta Council of Federated Church Women at a recent meeting passed resolutions upon the untimely passing of Mrs. Arthur H. Waite Jr., the beloved vice president.

Mrs. Waite was a leader who during her few allotted years gave gladly her delightful personality and effective abilities to the cause of her Savior and church. Unselfish, courageous, she pressed forward, stimulating the women of all denominations to realize their unified power to glorify God and His church. Time and energy were sacrificed for the promotion of church, and the Kingdom of God, and her life of dedication to and service for the Savior is a challenge to each of us for a closer walk with God.

As Miss Judith Jacabson, of Savannah, she became the bride of Arthur H. Waite Jr., shortly after her graduation from Brenau. She is survived by her husband, two young sons and mother.

The Atlanta Council, in de ing her passing, paid tribu her beautiful Christian char her loyalty to her church an inspiring leadership.

By GEORGE JEAN NATHAN

WHEN JUSTICE TRIUMPHED

By PETER LEVINS.

Three hundred men in small groups tramped through the soggy bottom lands along Sulphur river in Bowie county, Texas, on the morning of Monday, March 3, 1930. They peered behind every log, some poked long sticks into holes and raked away the decaying leaves, others searched closely along the river banks. Theirs was intensely serious work.

Since the preceding Saturday, they had been searching for some clue that might shed light on the disappearance of Lloyd Elliott, 23-year-old hog rancher, and member of a prominent East Texas family. They had covered miles without success. The hunt seemed futile, but Sheriff Henry Brooks, directing the search from the county seat at Boston, urged them to try again.

Young Elliott, in partnership with Cop Lee, 22, had for four months been engaged in raising hogs on a tract about a quarter of a mile from the river. He had spent the night of Thursday, February 27, with Quincy Telford, another youth. The following morning, Elliott had told Telford that some of his hogs were missing and that he was going to look for them. He had ridden into the woods on his black horse with his dog following. That was the last time anyone could recall having seen the young hog rancher.

His partner, Lee, had seen the horse, without saddle or bridle, grazing in the woods Friday afternoon. He had supposed that Elliott was in the vicinity. When Elliott failed to return to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Elliott, at Hodson, Friday night, his four brothers became alarmed and started a search.

Sheriff Brooks was notified in Texarkana, and he and several deputies aided in the hunt throughout the night. The searching party grew to 300 Saturday as word of young Elliott's disappearance spread over the county.

Sulphur river was near flood stage, and the bottoms were soggy. The searchers speculated on what could have happened to the youth. He might have been thrown from his horse and hurt so seriously that he could not return home, some suggested. Others suspected foul play. There were many moonshiners in the river bottoms, and he might have been mistaken for an officer and killed.

Then, too, he might have discovered some one stealing his hogs and come to disaster. However, there was nothing to support any of these theories.

The swollen river was receding Monday. A small searching party including R. L. Owens and W. J. Tucker, friends of the Elliott family, was trudging back toward the hog ranch, which served as headquarters for the search. It was near noon now, and they had covered this same area earlier in the day.

Suddenly, Owens paused. He had observed two sets of tracks leading down to the river's edge and then back.

"I don't remember seeing those tracks this morning," Owens commented to Tucker.

"Probably made by some of the searchers," Tucker replied, as his eyes followed the footprints to the water.

"Look!" Tucker exclaimed. "What's that sticking up there in the water?" He pointed to something about six feet from the river bank. They dashed to investigate.

They saw a man's foot to which a spur was fastened. Their cries of excitement brought others hurrying to the spot. A man's body was dragged from the river, the head and shoulders having been embedded in the soft mud.

Lloyd Elliott had been found murdered!

Either a rifle or pistol bullet had passed through his body from the back, directly through the heart. Another shot, evidently from a small gauge shotgun, had been fired through the back of his head. There were marks of a rope on his neck.

Sheriff Brooks was notified, and the hunt for the slayer was on.

"Those two sets of tracks were made by the murderers," Sheriff Brooks declared as he viewed the footprints leading to Elliott's body. "They knew the river was falling and so they returned here to see if their victim was still hidden."

The tracks were followed about 200 feet and then lost in the dense underbrush. "Spread out and look for the trail," Sheriff Brooks ordered his large party.

The tracks were picked up again near an old rail fence that had recently been broken. Blood was found on the broken rail. Following the old fence, the searchers found other broken rails and more blood. Evidently the body had been leaned against the rails on the journey to the river.

A glove was found. It matched one on Elliott's left hand. Again the trail was lost. The searchers spread out again and came upon a pile of dead leaves a quarter of a mile from the river. There was a pool of blood underneath.

"This is the scene of the murder," Sheriff Brooks declared as he discovered a .410 gauge shotgun shell among the leaves. Some one picked up a lock of Elliott's hair from among the blood-soaked leaves. Two .38 caliber rifle shells were found beside a nearby tree, where there were footprints of a man. Another tree truck bore marks readily identified as having been made by a spur.

The sheriff hastily reconstructed the murder of Elliott in his mind. A man had hidden behind the tree and shot the youth through the heart with a rifle as he rode through the woods. As Elliott toppled from his horse, his spur had struck the tree. The killer or an accomplice then had stood over the victim, and sent a shotgun charge into his head. The body had been carried to the river and thrown in. And the receding water finally had revealed the victim's body.

There was a house only 200 yards away, and another an additional hundred yards away. The nearer was the home of Dave Goodwin, 42-year-old farmer. Collie Goodwin, his 65-year-old father, lived in the other. "If they were home, then they must have heard the shots," said the sheriff.

The body was taken to Dave Goodwin's home to await transportation. Dave and Collie Goodwin, who had aided diligently in the search, had just returned with another group that had learned the hunt was at an end. Dave's two brothers, George, 24, and Bud, 21, also had helped look for Elliott. Also Buck Sanders, 29, who was living with Collie.

Maybe one of them could provide a clue, Sheriff Brooks thought, as he inquired if they had heard any shooting in the woods.

"There's always some one hunting, and I don't pay any attention to the shooting, there's so much of it," Dave Goodwin declared.

"When did you see Elliott last?" the sheriff queried.

"I didn't know him so well. He came by here last Thursday or Friday looking for some of his hogs, but listen here, you don't think I had anything to do with this, do you?"

Goodwin's sudden alarm aroused the sheriff's suspicions.

"I haven't accused you of anything, Dave, but do you mind if I look around your place?"

"Go right ahead."

Goodwin's attitude quieted the sheriff's first suspicions as he started a casual search of the house. He found nothing of interest until a deputy dragged a suit of blood-stained overalls from a closet.

"That's just hog blood," Goodwin explained. "I butchered a hog last week."

The sheriff asked to see the meat. Goodwin led the officer to his smokehouse to exhibit a freshly butchered hog. Sheriff Brooks observed that the ears were missing and asked why they had been removed. He knew that Elliott's hogs were marked on the ears.

"We don't eat the ears, so I just threw them to the dogs," Goodwin explained calmly. The sheriff's suspicions were thoroughly aroused now, and he ordered a careful search of the place. Within a few minutes a pair of hog ears were found beside a fence.

The markings were readily identified as Elliott's.

"What does this mean, Dave?" another searcher asked as he brought a .38 caliber rifle from Goodwin's house and pointed to a bright notch filed on the barrel.

It was the mark of a man killer, a heritage of the frontier days when men notched their guns to record their victims.

Goodwin paled, but quickly resumed his calm attitude.

"I don't know who put that on there. I loan it to lots of people. Some of them must have put it on there."

The blood-stained overalls, Elliott's butchered hog, and now a notched gun were enough evidence for the sheriff.

"I'm arresting you for the murder of Lloyd Elliott," Sheriff Brooks declared.

A further search revealed a .410 gauge shotgun and several shells identical with the one found where Elliott had been shot.

Goodwin denied any knowledge of the crime, and his relatives likewise were silent. The sheriff ordered the four Goodwins, Dave, Collie, Bud and George, Buck Sanders, Dave's wife, and his sister, Mrs. Jennie Morgan, all to be taken to the county jail at Boston.

District Attorney R. G. Waters and County Attorney L. C. Boswell took charge of the questioning. The attorneys and the sheriff's force worked in two groups, grilling each separately. Each emphatically denied any knowledge of the killing. The questioning continued for eight hours, long past midnight, and not a single incriminating admission was made.

Dave Goodwin denied stealing Elliott's hog, and argued that the animal must have wandered into his group and had been killed by mistake. The investigators were ready to wait until Tuesday and resume their work, and prepared to lock the prisoners in their cells.

"Sheriff, please don't put me in the cell with Dave," young Bud Goodwin asked Sheriff Brooks.

"Why? What are you afraid of?"

"I'm afraid of him, sheriff. I'll tell you the truth. Dave killed that fellow, and he has threatened to kill me if I told it. I don't want to be near him."

Without letting any of the others know that Bud had talked, Brooks took him to District Attorney Waters again. He readily agreed to make a full confession.

"Dave and pa killed one of Elliott's hogs Thursday," he said. "Elliott came by Friday morning looking for some of his hogs. Dave told him he hadn't seen his hogs, and then they came to pa's place.

"We were putting a boat on a wagon to haul it down to the river and Elliott helped us, and did not mention the hogs again. On the way to the river, Dave said he wasn't going to be arrested for stealing a hog and that he had a good mind to kill Elliott. I told him it was all right with me but that I wasn't having anything to do with it.

"Elliott was still at pa's house when we got back from the river. Dave told him he was going hunting and would help him look for the hog. Dave stopped at the house and got his guns, and walked beside Elliott as he rode into the woods.

"In a few minutes I heard two shots, and then Dave came back alone.

"'Well, I killed him and you're going to help me take him down to the river,' Dave said. I told him I didn't want to get mixed up in it. He said, 'I might have to throw you in, too, if you don't come on.' I was afraid of him and went along.

"Dave got a rope and tied one end around Elliott's neck and the other around his feet. We swung him on a long pole and took him to the river. Dave pitched him in."

Bud said Dave had made him go down to the river with him Monday morning to see if the body was still under water. This explained the pair of tracks that led to the discovery of Elliott's submerged body.

Confronted with Bud's confession, his father, Collie, admitted he had helped to kill the hog because the animal had been rooting under his house and disturbing his sick wife. Sanders admitted helping to dress the hog. However, both denied knowing that Dave had killed Elliott and that

The Planets—Your Daily Guide

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON.

DECEMBER 5 — SUNDAY: A happy outlook should color the entire day and evening, and before 5:57 p. m. your meetings and contacts with others can result in profitable encounters. This is a favorable day for attempting the unusual, for seeking favors, for dealings with both sexes, and for fraternal and religious matters. After 5:57 p. m. is the best time for quickness. New ideas or people may play an interesting part in affairs.

DECEMBER 6—MONDAY: The hours previous to 4:05 p. m. are most favorable for completing something that has previously been started. During this week people born around January 15 to 19 may obtain something that brings them financial gains. Before 4:05 p. m. large projects and doing things on a large scale, especially in financial and substantial matters will meet with favorable results. Between 4:05 p. m. and 6:24 p. m. sound ideas, real estate, older people, and the accomplishment of hard tasks will progress successfully. After 6:24 p. m. you may have to make adjustments in your affairs, but this is an auspicious time for beauty, art, dealings with women and sociability.

DECEMBER 7—TUESDAY: Before 8:06 a. m. guard against a desire for "blowing up," and changes. Between 8:06 a. m. and 6:17 p. m., new beginnings are apt to dissolve suddenly, or meet unthought of hindrances. You may be extremely "jittery," and want to make a move at all costs, but calmness is essential in order to do the right thing. After 6:17 p. m. you will progress along all ordinary lines of work.

DECEMBER 8 — WEDNESDAY: The culminating influences for the entire day and evening are favorable, but only slightly so, and only auspicious for unimportant things.

DECEMBER 9 — THURSDAY: Previous to 8:21 a. m., matters that have been hanging fire, older projects, realty transactions, works that deal with conservative and tested ideas will more than likely result favorably for you. Between 8:21 a. m. and 5:53 p. m. a lack of harmony can bring ill feelings in dealings with loved ones, or those from whom you had previously counted upon for aid. Between 5:53 p. m. and 7 p. m. be cautious around liquids, and avoid affairs that are confused.

DECEMBER 10—FRIDAY: The entire day and evening will be more favorable if you will curtail your efforts, and attend only to essentials. People who are in any way your superiors are not likely to be in a mood favorable to you, and you may have a dreamy or confused feeling that can be rudely shattered by cold facts.

DECEMBER 11 — SATURDAY: Previous to 1:05 p. m. only ordinary affairs, small business transactions, or promoting minor deals should be attempted, but at this time ideas connected with land deals that you want to consummate quickly, and matters relative to large organizations, should be approached slowly, if at all. Between 1:05 p. m. and 4:25 p. m. there is apt to be too much temperament around you leading to wounded feelings. This time does not favor liquids, chemicals and people artistically inclined. After 4:25 p. m. is most auspicious for new and inspirational ideas.

LADY DRIVER

A SHORT SHORT STORY
By JACK LAIT

Eight hours after they first met, Terry and Gerry were married.

IT WAS one of those "usual" Hollywood mornings when to be human was to be affable, cheerful and serene. And Terry Thomas was completely human.

He was young, had good health, good looks, a good car and a good "prospect," for Terry was one of Hollywood's six or seven million real estate salesmen. He'd had a nibble, by telephone, and was now en route to meet the interested party at the property—a Spanish bungalow in one of the little canyons in the heights behind Beverly Hills.

As he drove along the inviting ribbon of road, he hummed to himself, for he felt that he would easily cinch the deal because Mrs. Wynant sounded to him, over the telephone, like a real nibble.

He turned off Sunset Boulevard into the narrower road of Nichols Canyon. Suddenly from a shrubbery-hidden corner, swung another car. Terry made a frantic swerve to avoid a collision, but too late. There was a rasping, tearing, splintering sideswipe. Fenders all crumpled and running board mangled.

A lady driver! What else could it be?

She sat right there in her car, glaring at him. She wasn't hurt, obviously, so Terry could speak freely. Indignation and accusation flamed in her eyes—and Terry on his own side of the white line and she red-handedly guilty.

"Listen, lady," he exclaimed. "Just what's the idea of chasing over onto my side of the fence to tear my car to pieces? That's no way to make a turn—"

"I suppose it's my fault—all my fault!"

"It most certainly is, young woman. You're on the wrong side of the road. You skated around that corner like a bat out of—that is, faster than you should have. It certainly isn't my fault, lady."

The lady (and she was a very pretty lady) curled up her lip in scorn:

"Oh, it's never the man's fault. Well, back up, please, so we can see how much damage you've done."

"I've done? Lady, lady, you're too much for me. You'll have to back up a bit too. Easy now. Whoa! That's it."

They both stepped into the road and surveyed their cars. The damage was slight—a couple of rumpled fenders, some paint scraped off, but little harm of a serious nature.

"Insured?" Terry asked.

"Nope."

"Well, I am, and among other things, I'm covered for damage to other people's property, too, so now I'm sure it was my fault. May I have your name and address for the report to the insurance company?"

The young lady withdrew her driver's license from her purse.

"You know, mister, you're very nice about it," she declared as she handed her license to Terry. He glanced at it and then at the girl.

"Wynant?" he inquired. "Gerry Wynant. Odd. I was just on my way to meet a lady named Wynant—and I'd better be hustling on my way or I'll be late for a rather important business matter."

The girl smiled:

"By any chance could you be Mr. Terry Thomas?"

"Why, yes. That's me. How did you—"

"Mother told me," the girl laughed. "I came out to look at the place you told her about, to save her the trip. I don't care for it."

"You don't? Just what seems to be wrong with it?"

"Well, it didn't have a tennis court and the bathroom was wrong and the garage wasn't right," the girl summarized. But Terry was not the kind of a salesman who gives up so easily. In a moment he had his little black book out and was chasing down through his listings, rattling off the places that might be more suitable to Miss Wynant's taste and needs.

Ten minutes later Gerry was seated beside him in his own car, and he was pointing out to her the beauties of the Jefferson property, and she liked it.

An hour later the papers had been signed and Terry and Gerry faced each other across a table at the Vendome, and the "Mr. Thomas" and "Miss Wynant" gave way to the more informal "Terry" and "Gerry".

"Who would ever have thought that we'd wind up like this?" Terry laughed.

"Certainly not I," said Gerry. "But you must admit that we got together at first sight—even before first sight."

"Why, do you realize it, honey (it was honey already), we had our first lover's quarrel before we even knew each other's name? Romantic?"

"There was no love in my quarreling. Only when you turned out to be such an angel, Terry. Really, darling, you should have bopped me one."

"I might have if you had been somebody else. But, darling, when I got a look at you—why, you were so gorgeous, sitting there, bawling me out. The only thing that really worried me was that you might drive off and I'd never see you again."

Later that afternoon Mr. Terry Thomas asked Miss Gerry Wynant if she would like to change her name to Mrs. Terry Thomas. Miss Wynant would.

There was much rushing around, notifying a very surprised Mrs. Wynant that she had acquired not only a new home, but a new son-in-law as well.

Eight hours after they first met, Terry and Gerry stood before a Mexican judge in Tia Juana, and were made man and wife. They had to duck over to Mexico for the ceremony because, according to California law, three days must elapse between issuance of the license and the ceremony.

The ceremony over, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Thomas were rolling along the wide concrete highway which runs along the Mexican coast to Ensenada, where they would spend their honeymoon.

Gerry snuggled up against Terry's shoulder as the miles unwound themselves. She stretched up a little and kissed Terry behind his ear:

"Gee, honey. Suppose we hadn't met. Wouldn't that have been terrible?"

"Don't even think such things, darling," replied Terry.

"But just imagine, darling. If you had turned one second sooner—if you had swung your car just one foot further to the right—we probably never would have met. Wouldn't that have been awful?"

"Would have been ghastly, lover."

Gerry snuggled closer to her man.

"Angel," she murmured, "I sure am glad that you ran into me."

Highlites of Broadway — By JACK LAIT

IN THE days of vaudeville, many terms entered the language of the profession. Some were ungrammatical, but all that survived were punchy.

The trip between one theatre or "stand" and the next was a "jump"; the curved front of the stage was an "apron"; the well-dressed "stooge" for the comedian, acting as a foil, was the "straight"; a guffaw was a "belly laugh"; an applause success was a "riot"; acrobats, tumblers, contortionists, etc., were "dumb acts"; a dramatic playlet was a "sketch"; a lone entertainer was a "single"; an act with a chorus and scenery was a "flash"; anything handled in an act was a "prop"; a performer not in costume was dressed "neat"; putting on Negro makeup was "blacking up"; tentatively engaged but not yet contracted, was "penciled in"; working time not signed for was "open"; and open time not "filled" was "laying off".

"Laying off" has figured as a major factor in the high tragedies of Broadway and the actors' world.

Now, in Hollywood, there is a new and even more poignant bit of show-business lingo—"standing by".

"Standing by" differs greatly from "laying off".

Those who "stand by" out there are stars and headliners of the past who have not been absorbed into the needs and tastes of Hollywood.

They are men and women whose names blazed in myriad mazdas, who drew dressing-room A, who frequently were "booked solid". But they not only have grown older since vaudeville's bright era, but most of them were outstanding in the two-a-day because their talents, personalities or characteristics were intensively specialized, even unique.

Some of them are not even capable of playing run-of-the-mill "bits". But far more refuse to accept such assignments because they would be "lowering their standards".

"Lowering standards" is an old one. It seems that an actor who once got $1,000 for a week's work will starve for a year rather than take a part at $900.

These are the ones who say they are "standing by"—that is, they are waiting to be rediscovered and signed at figures at least equal to those they have once set as their "standards".

Many cases are pitiful.

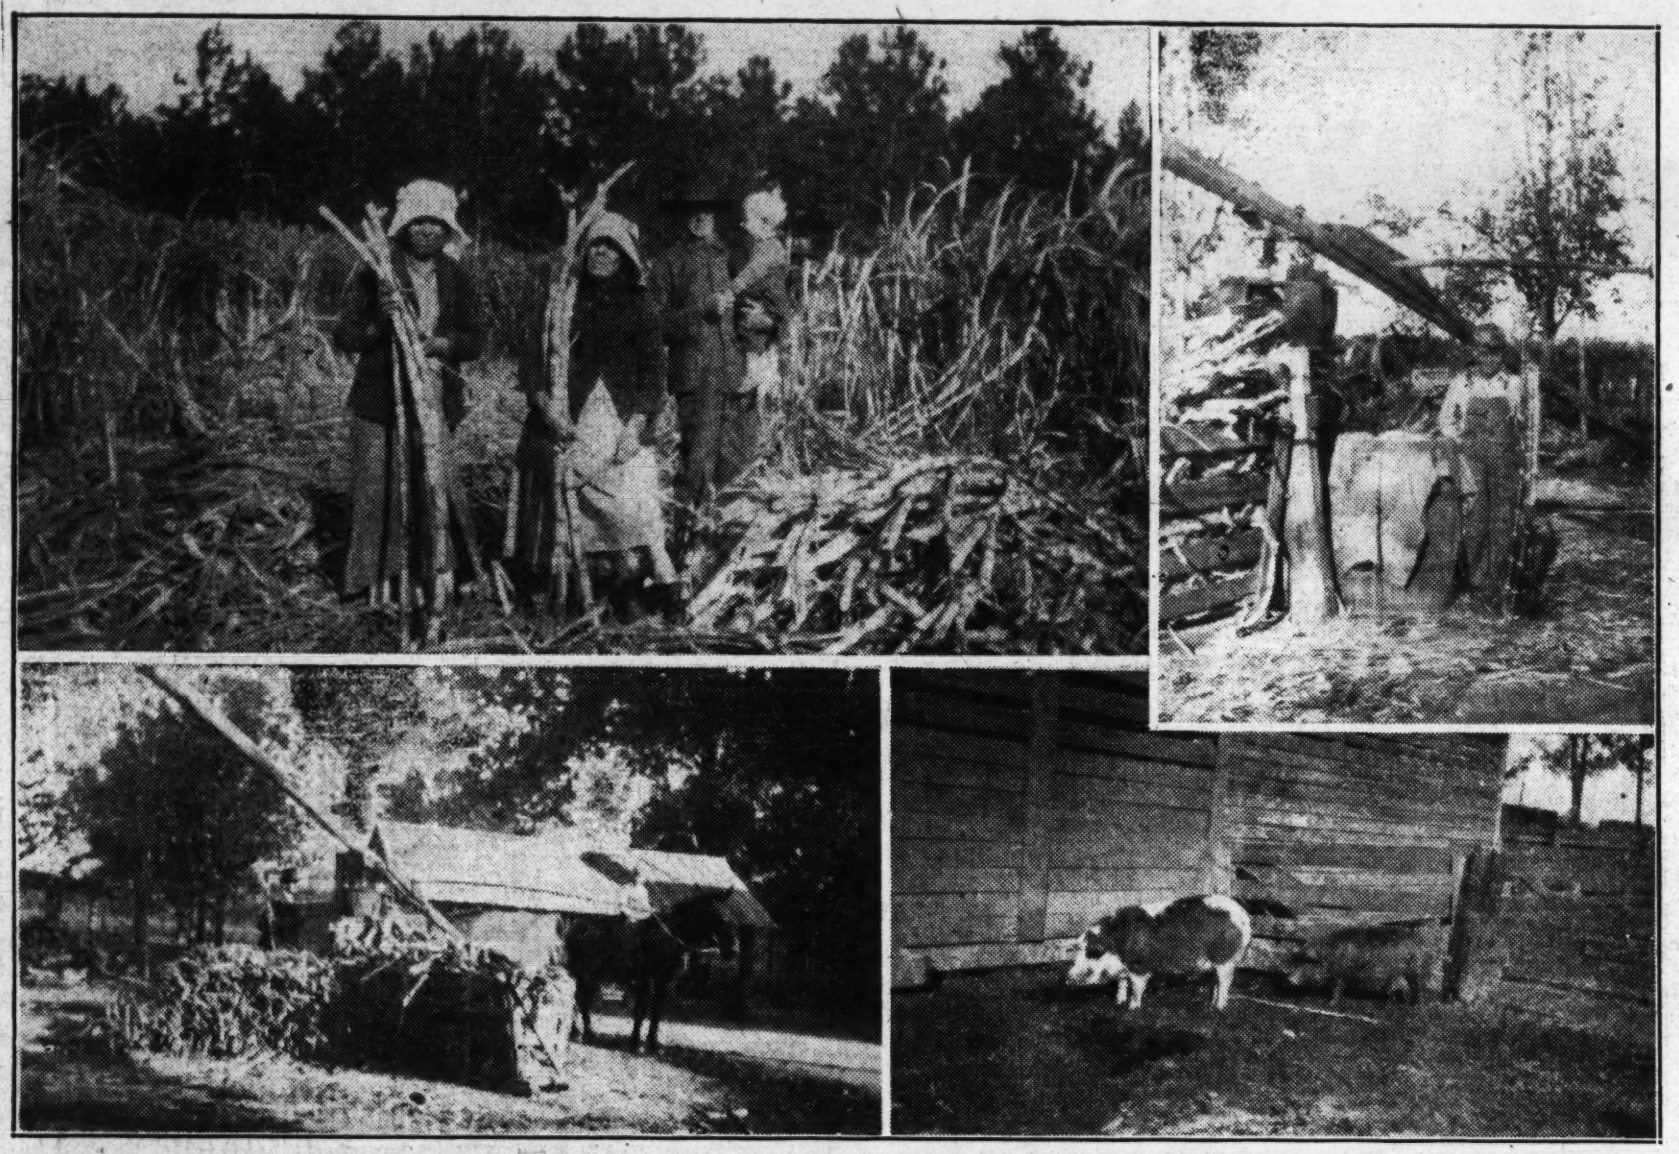

Here is a comedienne who had world-wide recognition because of child impersonations. She is fat and chesty, her arches are flat. But she used to get $1,750 a week. And she will not take less, though she will never again get a tenth of it.

There are dozens of them out there. How they live is a long story. Some have children, or relatives, or they chisel from their friends—that is not "lowering their standards".

Some take one-day jobs in the "quickies", and, by pro-rating what they got per day in the old days, maintain their "standards".

But most of them are just "standing by"—and will "stand by" as long as they can still stand.

It's Cane-Grinding Time in Georgia

After the cane has grown into a field of beautiful green foliage, it is stripped of all its blades, cut down and sent to the cane mill. Strippers are seen at the top left. A lazy-looking mule walks round and round, lower left, as a helper sticks the stalks of cane between the large rollers of the mill, and juice pours out a cold grey stream on the opposite side, into a large barrel, upper right. Farmers take great pride in their hogs, and it is their joy to have a large number fattened and ready to kill as soon as a cold enough day arrives.

By MRS. A. W. STARLING.

It's cane-grinding, sugar-boiling and hog-killing time in south Georgia.

With the first tang of real autumn weather in the air comes one of the busiest and most picturesque seasons in the life of the Georgia farmer. Riding through the country in late evenings, the evidence of such labor may be seen. Beautiful fires outside farm houses with busy hands going to and fro late into the night, finishing up the day's labor.

Long before the time for the actual grinding of cane there is much work to be done. Last fall the choice stalks of cane were selected and bedded for seed for this year's crop. When I say bedded, I mean the stalks were placed on the ground and covered with earth and left until this spring, then removed, cut into joints, or "jints," as commonly called by farm people, and planted in rows. Presently another crop is on the way and in November of each year the harvesting season begins.

The three most popular types of cane are the green, red and kiana, with some few planting sorghum. The green is softest and is therefore most popular for chewing purposes. The red makes the better and prettier grade of syrup, and the kiana probably the most abundant turnout, although it is not as sweet as the two other varieties of red and green. Sorghum will produce syrup, but its commercial value is below the average.

After the cane has grown into a field of beautiful green foliage, it is stripped of all its blades, cut down and h auled to the cane mill, before the juice is pressed from the stalks.

At the mill there is a lazy-looking mule walking round and round as one of the helpers sticks the stalks of cane between the large rollers of the mill. In the last few years some of the larger growers have installed power driven mills, but with these improved methods half the glamor of the event is gone.

On the other side of the mill opposite the feeder, the juice pours out in a cold, grey stream into a large barrel. Never does cane juice taste so good as when caught directly from the mill in an old-fashioned gourd dipper. Ice cold and sweet, it is nector for the gods.

Although a few people prefer chewing their juice out of the cane, I can't help but appreciate having mine chewed out for me and ready to just "drink down."

The very "sweetest" job the farmer has during the year is sugar-making. The juice is poured from the large barrels into what is called the boiler, and then we have "sugar-biling." Around this boiler is a most interesting place. Warm from the heat of the big fire with the sweet scent of cane juice, syrup in the process of making. The children cluster around, and in one corner a mother may be seen preparing a plate of warm syrup for her youngest to "sop" with an oversized biscuit.

The older children secure long peelings from the cane and busy themselves scraping around the edges of the boiler for the candy that is formed there. Those children who have wandered away from the fire are tumbling on large piles of sticky cane "pummings," which is the product left from the cane after the juice has been extracted. At bedtime, these tired, sticky offsprings present a bathing problem for the still more tired mothers.

As the juice boils there forms on top a foamy, dark residue called "skimmings." This is all carefully taken off and placed in another large barrel. This has no material value and is sometimes fed to the hogs. I am told, though, that some people do value it because it forms a product that has a tendency to make ones head go "round and round."

The expert syrup-maker knows just exactly when the syrup is ready to be "dipped up," that is, when the liquid flakes off the long-handled dipper used continuously for stirring during the cooking process. It is then poured into a large container, usually a trough cut from the trunk of a cypress tree, and allowed to cool before it is poured into bottles and cans ready to be used all the next year on hot buttered biscuits, hot cake or waffles.

This product of sugar cane has proven to be a very profitable enterprise, furnishing extra cash for farmers during off-seasons. From 200 to 400 gallons are produced from one acre, depending on the fineness of the crop. Most farmers plant from one-half to two acres and there is always a good market for it. The present price ranges from 25 cents to 30 cents a gallon. It is also a product that the town merchants are willing for the farmer to use as barter, shipping and trucking it to other sections and states.

Before and after cane-grinding time there is hog killing to be done, depending on the weather. Cold weather is necessary. In this, as well as most any other job on the farm, neighbors join in wholeheartedly. Their pay for their labor consists of good will and a share of fresh meat, pig-ears, spareribs, hog jowls, etc. The favorite dishes of the negro helpers are chitterlings and hog-jowls.

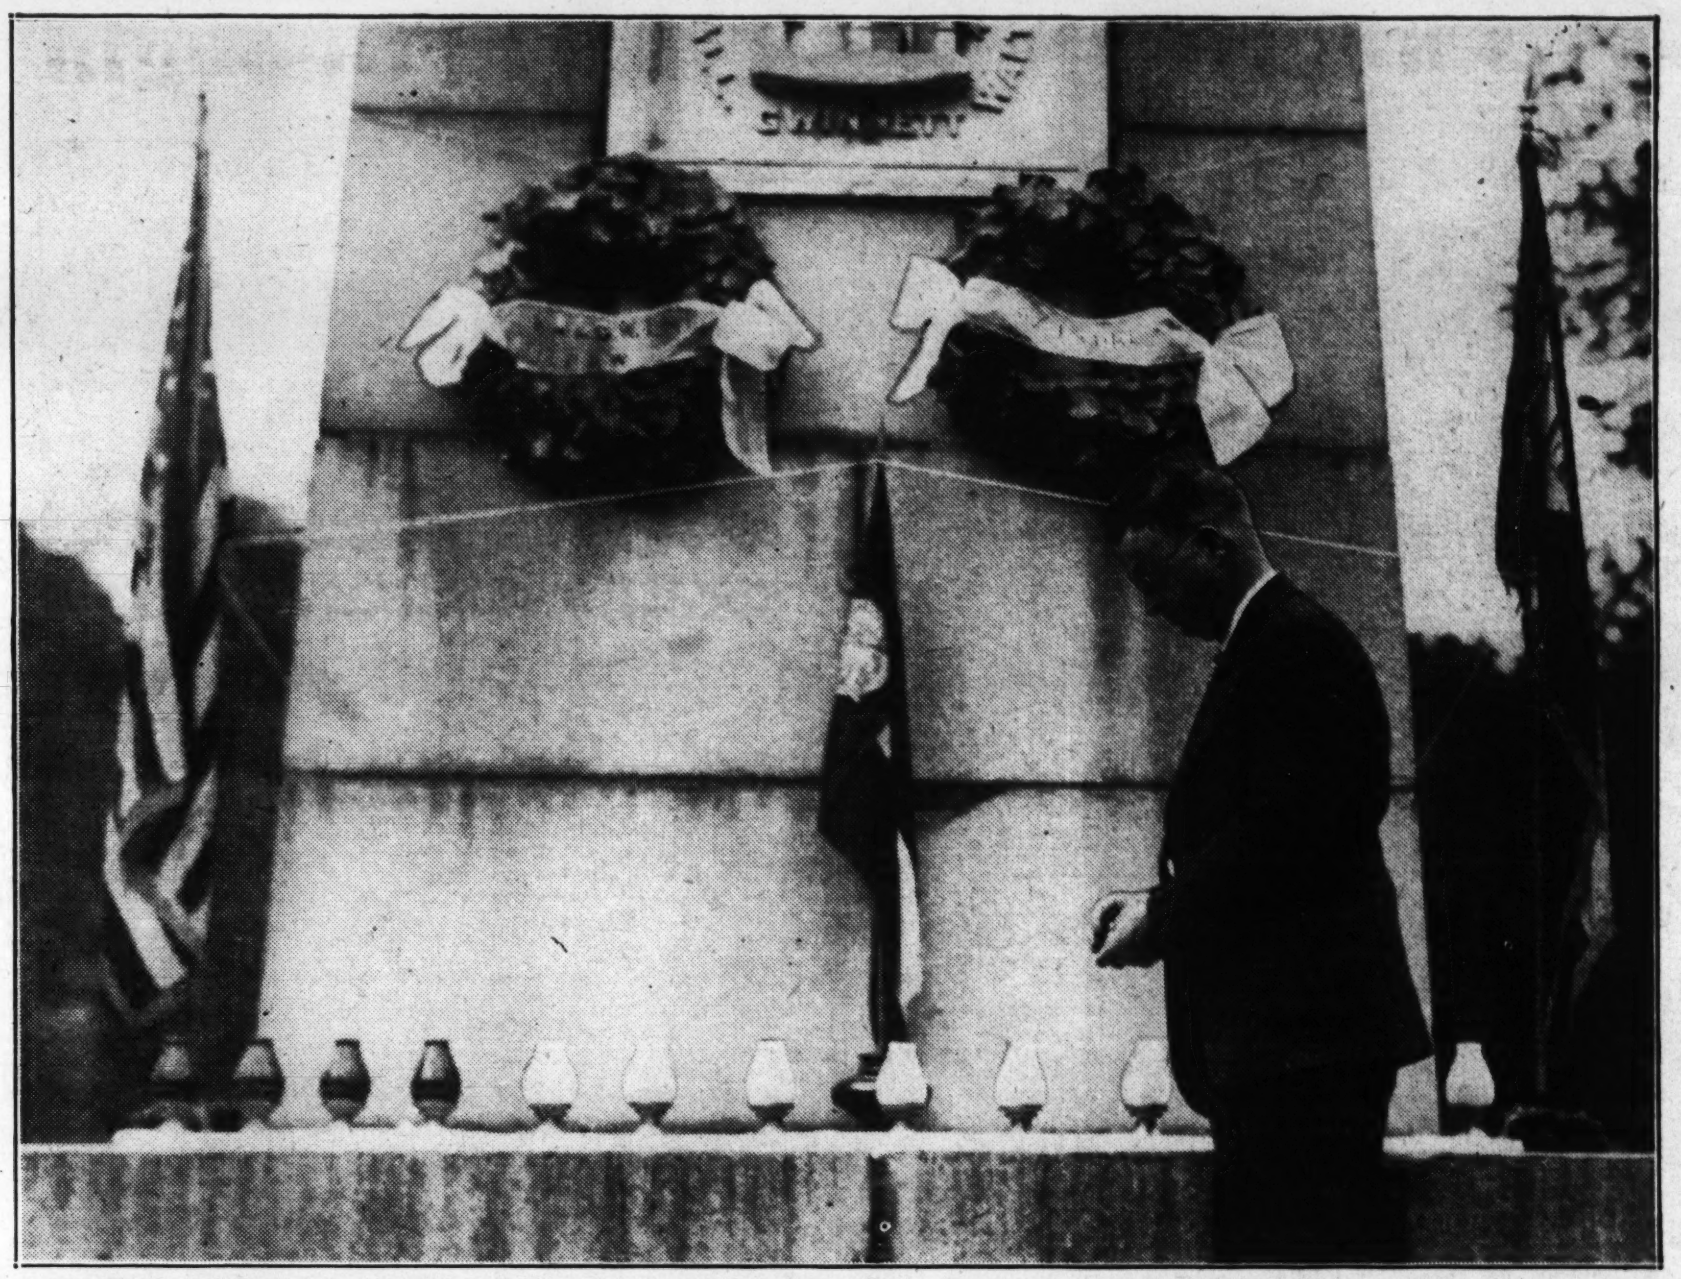

Farmers take great pride in their nogs and it is their joy to have a large number fattened and ready to kill as soon as a day cold enough arrives. The crop is extremely profitable, many hogs netting farmers from $20 to $25 per animal. This is another fine source of income during off-seasons.

At some farm houses as many as 15 to 20 hogs are killed and cleaned at one time. It is a goodly sight to see them hung in a row with prospects for a lot of fine pork and a comfortable profit for the farmer.

After the hogs have been cut up, and hams, shoulders and sides packed away in salt to be cured, a visit to the big farmhouse kitchen reveals interesting sights. It is there the women are doing their share. The meat has been brought in to be separated into sausage meat, or fatty meat for lard. This all has to be cut into small pieces. When the sausage meat is cut it is ground, seasoned and stuffed into delicious long sausages ready to be hung in the smokehouse, usually a small out-house where the meat supply is kept.

After the lard meat is cut up it is placed in large black pots in the yard over a fire and cooked until all the grease and lard is out. Another wonderful by-product is "cracklings." Who could ever forget even one taste of hot crackling bread and delicious Georgia cane syrup?

A lucky party is that one which while hunting south Georgia quail accidently, or on purpose, runs into a farmhouse where there is a sugar-boiling, or a hog-killing. These "good ole" south Georgia farmers are as hospitable a people as you will meet anywhere. They enjoy company and take delight in setting a table with plenty of fresh pork, liver hash, etc. And a guest doesn't mind either if those dishes are repeated day after day. And if upon entering his car to return home he finds there several choice stalks of cane, a new bottle of syrup and some fresh pork, his heart, as well as his body, feels warmed from "sugar-biling" and "hog-killin'" fires.

Augusta--Former State Capital--City of Constitution's Ratification

By WILLIAM W. BREWTON,
State Director, United States Constitution Sesquicentennial.

Historic Augusta—where Georgia ratified the constitution of the United States on January 2, 1788—will be the scene of the state's celebration of the sesquicentennial of that event on January 2, 1938.

The latter date marks 150 years since the gathering of the memorable convention in Augusta which drew up, adopted and transmitted to the congress of the United States under the Confederation, sitting in New York, those articles of ratification under which Georgia acceded to the new Union under the constitution which supplanted the Confederation on March 4, 1789.

Pageantry, and such pomp as befits so solemn an occasion, has been planned by the State Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission and by the Sesquicentennial committee of the city of Augusta. It is expected that the ratification scene, itself, will be re-enacted, by persons in old colonial garb, representing the 26 men who comprised the state convention that cast a unanimous vote for adoption. This vote was significant. While strife prevailed in New York, Virginia, Massachusetts and other states, due to the great difficulty attending the effort to get those states to ratify, Georgia boldly struck for union without a dissenting voice so far as historians have been able to find.

Georgia was the fourth state to ratify the constitution; and was one of the three states that are said to have ratified unanimously, the other two being Delaware and New Jersey. Here is how the states ranked in date of ratification of the great instrument of government which was promulgated September 17, 1787, and also the votes in each:

Delaware, December 7, 1787—yeas 30.

Pennsylvania, December 12, 1787—yeas 46, nays 23.

New Jersey, December 18, 1787—years 38.

Georgia, January 2, 1788—yeas 26.

Connecticut, January 9, 1788—years 128, nays 40.

Massachusetts, February 6, 1788—yeas 187, nays 168.

Maryland, April 28, 1788—yeas 63, nays 11.

South Carolina, May 23, 1788—yeas 149, nays 73.

New Hampshire, June 21, 1788—yeas 57, nays 47.

Virginia, June 26, 1788—yeas 89, nays 79.

New York, July 26, 1788—yeas 30, nays 27.

North Carolina, November 21, 1789—yeas 194, nays 77.

Rhode Island, May 29, 1790—yeas 34, nays 32.

Augusta had been the state capital for 10 years when the convention met there. It had been occupied and evacuated by the British during the Revolution, and in fact became the capital because of the necessity for the patriot, or rebel, goverment to remove from Savannah in 1778, although a rebel government did not actually begin operation in Augusta until the next year. Augusta was the storm center of patriot activity throughout the Revolution. The state assembly had been compelled to leave the town by British occupation in 1780, which forms one of the most romantic episodes in the state's history. The assembly repaired in 1780 to Heard's fort, in Wilkes county, actually deliberated there, and thus caused a wilderness withone house to become the actual seat of state government. Upon removal of the British in 1781, however, the government of the state was re-establishe in Augusta, where it remained until Louisville became the capital in 1796.

At the time of ratification a number of old colonial parishes had already been converted into 10 counties, this having been effected to a considerable extent by the state's first constitution in 1777. These counties, and the men who went from them to the Augusta convention and signed Georgia's articles of ratification of the constitution of the United States in 1788, may be read below. The articles of ratification were in these words:

"STATE OF GEORGIA

"In Convention, Wednesday, January 2, 1788.

"TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME, GREETING.

"Whereas the form of a constitution for the government of the United States of America was, on the 17th day of September, 1787, agreed upon and reported to congress by the deputies of the said United States convened in Philadelphia, which said constitution is written in the words following, to-wit: [Text of the constitution];

"And, whereas the United States in congress assembled did, on the 28th day of September, 1787, resolve unanimously 'That the said report, with the resolutions and letter accompanying the same, be transmitted to the sevaral legislatures, in order to be submitted to a convention of delegates chosen in each state by the people thereof, in conformity to the resolves of the convention made and provided in that case';

"And, whereas the legislature of the state of Georgia did, on the 26th day of October, 1787, in pursuance of the above-recited resolution of congress, resolve That a convention be elected on the day of the next general election, and in the same manner that representatives are elected; and that the said convention consist of not more than three members from each county; and that the said convention should meet at Augusta, on the fourth Tuesday in December then next, and, as soon thereafter as convenient, proceed to consider the said report and resolutions, and to adopt or reject any part or the whole thereof;

"Now know we, that we, the delegates of the people of the state of Georgia, in convention met, pursuant to the resolutions of the legislature aforesaid, having taken into our serious consideration the said constitution, have assented to, ratified, and adopted, and by these presents do, in virtue of the powers and authority to us given by the people of the said state for that purpose, for and in behalf of ourselves and our constituents, fully and entirely assent to, ratify, and adopt, the said constitution:

"Done in convention, at Augusta, in the said state, on the second day of January, in the year of our Lord 1788, and of the independence of the

No Laughing Matter

—IN WHICH A WREATH IS LAID ON THE TOMB OF THE JOKES OF YESTERDAY, FROM FANCY VESTS TO THE KICK-IN-THE-PANTS OF FOND MEMORY

DURING the last year I have read no less than half a dozen articles arguing that the public can always be made to laugh by the same old devices that caused its grandfathers to laugh. In other words, that people through the generations respond, without change, to all the time-honored stuff and that the professional comedian of today can still earn a pretty penny by capitalizing it.

While it is true that there are some things that make present-day audiences laugh just as they made audiences laugh forty or fifty years ago, it strikes me that there are many more of the old sure-fire laugh tricks that no longer contrive to work. I make the statement after a close observation of countless theatre, movie and other audiences, and if the writers of the aforesaid contrary articles do not believe it I suggest that they conduct a similar personal tour of investigation and inquiry.

The stuttering comedian who was once sure of hearty laughter today puts an audience to sleep. So does the funny-man who trips over imaginary objects. Humorous mention of the name of this or that suburban town no longer evokes even a faint smile, and the comedian who would dare try to get a laugh with a reference to Oshkosh, Kalamazoo or Walla Walla would be chased right out into the alley. The same with any clown who commented on the sleepiness of Philadelphia, that grand old standby of twenty years ago, or the primness of Boston, or the smell of the Gowanus Canal.

While a kick in the pants still may not have lost all its pristine humorous force, the mispronunciation of proper names has lost almost all of its. So has the business of getting a hand stuck in a decanter. And so has the loud nose-blow. Up to about ten years ago a comique could be pretty certain of a laugh if he suddenly wriggled his right knee, felt it with an air of deeply concerned alarm, and thereafter walked as if one of his legs were shorter than the other.

The sudden disclosure of an absurdly-colored vest, once a comedian's gold-mine, nowadays makes even the ushers indignant. The hair on a wig pulled upright by a concealed string and indicating fright or horror has long since gone to the ashcan, as has the comedian's business of pouring out a drink for someone who has fainted and then drinking it himself. And any zany who in this day and age hoped to make an audience laugh by employing that big favorite of another generation—the bend-over accompanied by the noise from a member of the orchestra suggesting a ripping of pants—would be doomed to sore disappointment.

Marie Tempest, forneful eyeful of another day.

"Once good for a howl; today good for a rotten tomato."

While on the subject of pants, the writers of the articles noted should know that the floppy, baggy pants of yesterday's comic catalogue no longer get a comedian anywhere. Nor do the pants with a target sewed onto the seat. Nor do the pants that are constantly falling down. They have all been consigned to limbo by the laugh-seekers of today.

The comedian who stroked his fur coat and mewed, to the great delight of his customers, is as dead as a door-nail. And in the same grave with him is his jocund colleague who leaned against a tree painted on the scenery and slid down upon his tail, who picked the cherries off a woman's hat and ate them, who negotiated an elaborate preparation for a stupendous sneeze and then emitted a diminutive sniffle, who upon being bumped into by a woman who exclaimed, "Mon Doo! Quelque chose est ici!" exclaimed in turn, "Ah, a native of Passaic", and who mistook the top hat reposing on the piano for a cuspidor.

The consanguinity of Bermuda and the onion, the squirting proclivities of the grape-fruit, the holes in Swiss cheese, the soup-swabbing propensity of whiskers, the imprint of a kiss on a dollar bill about to be loaned to someone, and that once biggest of guffaw bonanzas, the dill pickle, are no longer risked even by Amateur Night saltimbancos. And they had better not be, if murder is to be forestalled. The old business of leaning against the side of the proscenium and pretending to go to sleep, which used to be good for a howl, today is good for a rotten tomato, as is the business of turning the water pitcher upside down on the head, getting a piece of ice down the back, and indulging in extravagant contortions to dislodge it. Times change.

And how they change! Think of laughing today, as you once laughed till your buttons burst, over the hobo comedian who fastidiously dusted off his tattered coat and carefully creased his ragged trousers with saliva-moistened thumb and forefinger. Or over the buffoon who periodically pulled his elastic bow tie from his collar, had his attention momentarily distracted, let go the tie and got it plumb in the nose. Or over the comicker who came on wearing a voluminous fur coat that, when he turned around, disclosed a "Welcome" sign on its back.

If a scaramouch were today to venture the query, "What are Yonkers?", there would be a riot. Yet it doesn't seem so very long ago that we remember audiences roaring at it. Not only a riot but doubtless something worse would follow the same fellow's remarks on a noodle factory. And if a present-day audience were to be offered as a medium of humor that favorite of times as recent as the Coolidge era, the small derby hat with the elastic in it that caused it to bounce off the comedian's head every time he tried to put it on, it would demand its money back.

The chair that collapsed when the comedian sat on it and the rapidly revolving piano stool that projected him upon the floor are with us no more, for the very good reason that they had to be laid among the mothballs along with the mother-in-law joke and the telephone mouthpiece that squirted either water or flour into the funnyman's face. Not even the burlesque theatres before their recent closing ventured any longer to tempt fate with the bouquet which, when someone stooped to pick it up, was snapped out of his reach with a rubber cord. The wheeze that reposed in a bosom full of medals accompanied by a facetious description of how they came to be awarded, which sent audiences into gales of laughter a couple of decades ago, is completely dead so far as any humorous reaction goes. And so, too, is the small red or green balloon that sprouted from the comedian's pate when someone hit it and the old ubiquitous intimate conversation with the orchestra leader that terminated when the latter stood up and smashed a fiddle over the same pate.

The interruptive noises made by the trap-drummer during a comedian's speech are still occasionally in evidence, but every sign points to the fact that their comic day is pretty nearly done. Who has seen for at least a dozen years the team of sidewalk comedians who, following each remark, slapped each other in the face with folded newspapers? They used to be wows; vaudeville thrived on them; yet the change in humor taste has driven them into the discard. And driven along with them are the comedians who once earned a handsome income by throwing a small object into the wings, whereupon an assistant humorist stationed there produced a racket with the crash-box that sounded as if a whole city had been hit by an earthquake, not to mention the comedians who waxed equally opulent crooking their elbows, working their fists rapidly back and forth, suddenly letting go their holds on their fists and receiving them full in the beezer.

Is it still insisted that we continue to laugh at exactly the same things that made other generations laugh? If it is, just you see how loudly the insisters can be made to laugh at those two standbys of twenty or thirty years ago, the comedian's celluloid nose with the red light concealed in it or his diamond stud with the dazzling electric bulb concealed, in turn, in it!

By JOHN STANLEY

Today, instead of playing 'cowboys and Indians' the kids play 'G-men and Public Enemy No. 1.' The game itself is in keeping with the times but its principle is the same as the older one. It is symbolic of the struggle between right and wrong.

"What the pessimists do not realize is that it does not matter what game a child plays. What matters is his mental attitude toward it. If a boy is happy in his home life; if he feels secure and is healthy, the guns, the crime games and like toys will have no more ill effect on him than a good rousing game of football or basketball. In the exuberance of happy childhood one game is like another to him, merely a means to fun.

"On the other hand," Dr. Bamford points out, "if the child is the product of an unhappy home; if his parents are constantly quarrelling, such games may prove an invaluable asset in stabilizing his emotions. For in such a child there is bound to be an inner resentment—a resentment which he subconsciously rids himself of in his 'attack' upon the 'Public Enemy' in the G-man game, for instance."

Discussing the war toys and games of military strategy which, manufacturers say, comprise only about one per cent of this year's output, Dr. Bamford says:

"Here again it is the background of the child and not the game itself that is important to consider. If the child is brought up in an environment where he does not constantly hear derogatory remarks about any one nation or race; if there is no intolerance in his home, the war games will make no difference. On the other hand, if he is the child of parents who are always expressing hatred for one race or another he will unconsciously adopt the same attitude—and in this way take on an added importance."

There are many who agree with Dr. Bamford's view that toys are beneficial. Waddel P. Andrus, of Rochester, N. Y., "the-man-who-would-be-Santa Claus," was one of these. After Mr. Andrus' death, a few months ago, it was found that a codicil to his will, scratched on a fragment of yellow paper, bequeathed a $200,000 trust to buy toys and clothing for crippled children and newsboys. If the codicil withstands legal challenges, it will bring a cheery Yuletide to countless "forgotten" kiddies.

The toys which the Dionne quintuplets will find under their colorful Christmas tree run the gamut from modern mechanical playthings to the old standbys. On a recent trip to New York, Papa Oliva Dionne made arrangements with Santa for them.

"It would be easy to pick out five presents alike, but I want each one to be surprised with something different," says the daddy of the world's most famous little girls.

Judging from the toys which will bring gasps of admiration to millions of tots on Christmas morning, it is evident that the boys and girls of 1937 are a pretty precocious lot. For they include, in addition to the war and G-man games, miniature versions of all adult occupations—skyline building, radio construction outfits, problems in engineering and electro-chemistry as well as toys featuring up-to-the-minute technique in transportation, architecture, housekeeping, scientific baby care, art and handcrafts.

Ruddy-cheeked old Santa is, for instance, especially proud of an electric train that boasts smooth running at 100 miles an hour and whistles with uncanny authenticity. And if he should come late this year it's because he's stopped along the way to play with another of his pet creations—an electric airplane that stunts, spins, dives by remote control.

Little Miss 1937 will go into ecstasies over the new drinking doll that can consume the contents of her bottle while lying down. The same "baby" can lie down with her eyes open or sleep sitting up. She's almost human. And the new Shirley Temple doll has a complete wardrobe.

The dial telephone is featured in an intriguing television model. It's done with mirrors—honestly! And there's a gun that's harmless—both in the physical and psychological sense—for it only shoots pictures on the wall.

The new sleds boast airplane struts and tear-drop decks. And the juvenile wheel toys are just about the last word—with streamlines, pneumatic tires, chromium trimmings, trailers, push-button horns and electric headlights.

Then if you happen to be just a bit bewildered and frightened at the imposing array of scientific toys, the polariscopes and micro-projectors, the mineralogy, chemistry and electro-physics sets—and suffer a faint nostalgia for the "good old days"—take a look at one special corner of Santa's pack. For he really has some of the old-fashioned toys. There are, probably, some blocks and marbles and old-time engines, circus toys, plain little baby dolls with flaxen hair and Christmas stockings overflowing with juvenile nonsense! But then, perhaps, old Santa with tongue in cheek, is bringing these down to the adult alarmists.

For Shirley and the Quints

WHEN it comes time to laboriously spell out that all-important letter to Santa, little boys and girls are pretty much alike whether they are movie starlets, Princesses, quintuplets or just plain Tom, Dick and Mary.

Shirley Temple's Christmas list is crowded with requests for pets of all descriptions. She already has a veritable menagerie, but apparently the present supply isn't enough. First and foremost, Shirley pines for a pair of frolicsome puppies. And she's very specific—one must be a Pekingese, with a pedigree, and the other had better be a little black Scotty or Shirley will be a disappointed girl on Christmas morning. Her list also includes three trick ponies and a modern auto trailer, as well as an assortment of chickens, turtles, goldfish and bunnies.

What little Princess Elizabeth, of England, wants most to find waiting outside her door on Christmas morning is a pony that she can ride and call her own.

There will be lots of toys under the tinsel-bedecked tree of the Dionne quintuplets. Yvonne will get a pink tea-wagon with metal accessories. For Annette, there will be a red cleaning set, with shovel, broom and mop. A red-topped washing machine is on the list for Emilie, while Cecile will receive a cream-and-blue stove. For Marie there will be a tiny laundry set, with iron, board and clothespins.

IT MIGHT HAPPEN HERE—

By DR. DONN MANSFIELD CALDWELL

(Part II of a Yankee surgeon's diary from the Spanish front.)

CHRIS CHRISTIANSEN slowly raised the sight of his machine gun, swinging the aim away from advancing mobs of howling red-capped Italians. From where I was crouched in the first-aid shelter, I couldn't see what he was trying to get on the left of the Italians.

It was mid-afternoon on the third day of the Red attack on Belchite late in August. The Republican troops (Reds) had entered the town time after time only to be swept back. The Nationalists had lost thousands, as had we, but they knew the intricacies of the crooked streets in the town and our men didn't. Now on every side I heard the men asking for food and, worse still, for cigarettes; there were none. There wasn't even any water and the soldiers had to drink sour red wine on empty stomachs.

The path of glory—weeping women at the funeral of a single man who died in battle.

I had crept away from the hospital at Puebla, some kilometers behind the lines to come up into the thick of the fight on an ambulance. Lucky that I had, for the Spanish first-aid man had been killed by a hand-grenade.

Barricades had been thrown up hastily by the Nationalists to try to stop the Republican advance. Sacks of flour, bundles of wood, everything had been thrown together to provide shelter for the machine gun crews. I even saw a young American soldier, stiff in death, whose body had been shoved into the barricade to stop a hole.

As I looked again at Chris Christiansen, I saw he was still holding his gun silent. The hot sunshine flickered on its satiny barrel. Inching a little closer to him, I tried to follow his aim and saw a little group to one side of the Italians. Black robed, there were four Catholic priests; they were the chaplains of the Italian columns who were trying to sweep us out of our trenches.

They were all elderly and as I was wondering how they stood the rigors of the front, Chris's gun began to spatter its deadly fire. The priests folded and sank to the ground, silent bundles of black. Then one of them with a last effort waved the Italians on.

Chris's face was a study: a slow trickle of saliva drooled from the corners of his mouth and his eyes glittered. From that time on he did butchery with that new gun. In a few minutes the Franco forces had retreated and I saw one of our chauffeurs tearing the robes off one of the old priests.

After that, for twenty solid hours, I bandaged and gave injections to the suffering men seemingly without pause. I fell onto a blood-soaked mattress back in the hospital the next night to try to sleep and couldn't.

Outside the window I heard jeers and hoots and a sort of wild music. I looked out to see the chauffeur capering about in the robes he'd snatched from the body of the dead priest, while the other chauffeurs chanted a sort of mock miserere.

The next day Chris Christiansen came in on a stretcher; he was not badly wounded and as I looked down at him I thought of the unarmed priests. "Chris," I asked, "why did you come to Spain?"

"All the fellas I knew in Canada come: I couldna' stayed out."

"Canada," I gasped, "I thought you were Scandinavian."

"Oh, I'm Danish or wuz until I wuz exiled fourteen years ago. I wuz in a political meetin' where a policeman got killed and they framed it up on me. You know me, doc, I wouldn't hurt a fly."

Quinto, late August, 1937: The anti-tank guns of the Thaelmann column were throwing a deadly fire down the street leading to the church whose crumbling facade looked ready to fall. Overhead the dark forms of combat planes menaced as they dropped low from time to time in order to strafe the Nationalist position in the town with machine guns.

The bell tower that once sent forth a call for peace used as a shelter for deadly snipers.

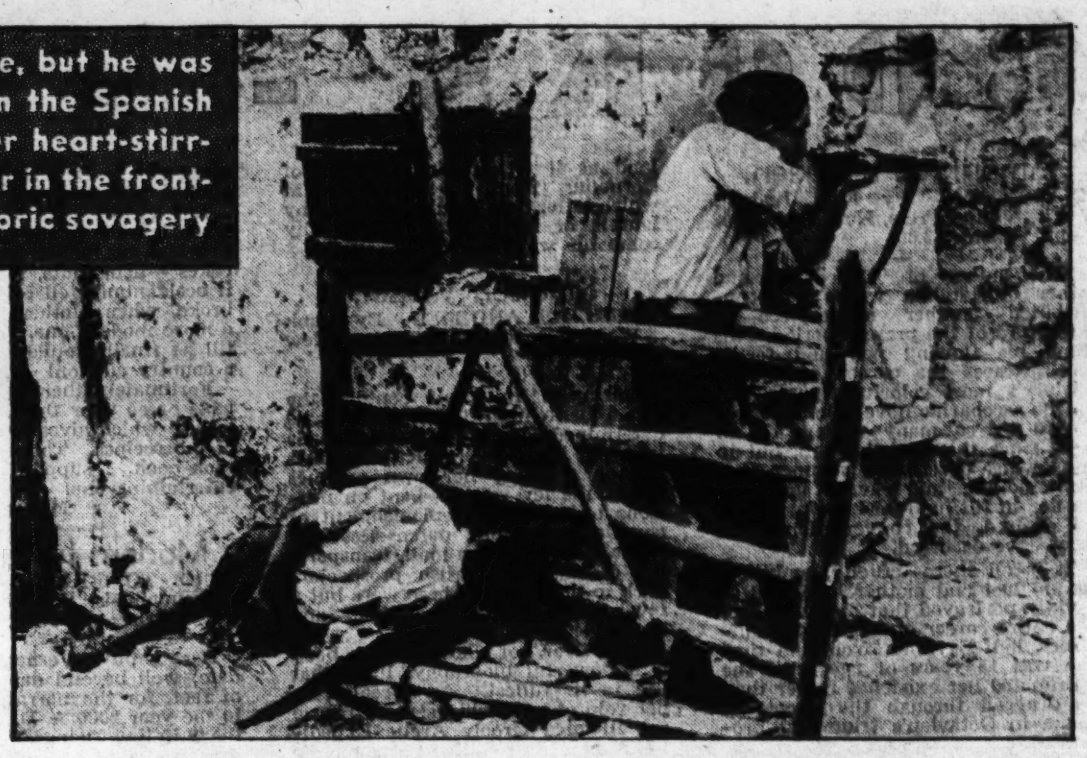

"The drunken grumbler let out a roar of rage as he spied the black-clad figures on the steps."

Grenades burst so close that one jumped involuntarily; then there came a pause. All the townspeople who could get in had crowded the old church. This is the invariable habit in the part of Spain where the new anti-religion hasn't permeated. It was difficult to know what would happen next; were the Republican forces going to storm the church?

After a few moments of quiet, a small group of our men advanced as close as possible to the church threshold and shouted that the civilians and common soldiers would all be spared if they'd open up the doors of the church and march out.

There was a slow, dramatic pause...until inch by inch the huge bronze doors swung hesitantly outward, coming to a stop when the entry was only half open. Everyone waited breathlessly; the roar of guns from the other parts of the town were forgotten but nothing happened. A buzz of conversation drifted from where the American battalion occupied a position on the right of the church; then slowly khaki-colored figures started creeping along toward the church. Hugging the ground as they went, the men raised little clouds of dust in the hot afternoon sunlight as they crept meter by meter closer to the church. The commanding officer of the Lincoln Battalion (American volunteers) yelled angrily for the men to stop their advance. They went on.

Then from the other side of the plaza a whistle shrieked and the men were again ordered to return to their position. At exactly that moment the advancing forms leaped to their feet and rushed the doors.

From inside the church came the sickening rattle of machine guns and the Americans were mowed down by the dozens until there was little left of the battalion.

What had seemed pandemonium earlier was peaceful by contrast to the fury which raged now. The Red soldiers, maddened by the massacre of their American comrades, hurled all their might at the old church. The anti-tank guns roared and dull booms followed as hand-grenades were pitched inside through the still half-opened doors.

Then a little white square waved hesitantly in the dark opening: they were going to surrender. The soldiers shouted agreement and the doors opened wide. One at a time they came out, some blackened from grenades, some bleeding; after approximately two hundred civilians had walked into the open square, the Italian soldiers marched out. They looked terrified, and well they might.

The officers had difficulty in keeping order among the Republican soldiers. They were thirsting to revenge the slaughter of the American companies mowed down so short a time before. Obviously one could never have convinced the victors that the boys who had been shot down had advanced against orders from their officers.

After it seemed safe to enter the church, the first-aid men and stretcher-bearers went in to remove the wounded. There were dozens lying about on the stone floors. Over in one corner of the church, near the little altar, were several elderly women, all uninjured.

Outside in the plaza the prisoners were being disarmed and marched off, while the soldiers grumbled at their being spared. One burly fellow had dragged out a small cask of cognac from the gaping doorway of what was once a tavern on the north side of the plaza. Little groups of tired men begged eagerly for a drink and from the other parts of the town the roar of artillery went on unceasingly.

The burly soldier with the cask was muttering to his fellows as he gave them drinks. The words were indistinguishable but it was clear he was still seething about the prisoners being spared. It must have been a deep grievance, for he was clearly not American, and his anger came from no patriotism; more than likely it was half psychological, from constant fighting, and the other half cognac. A sergeant shouted to him to be quiet but he went on grumbling to the men clustered around the cask of brandy. Just then the old women who had remained inside the church until now, appeared on the steps. There were four of them, all well along in years.

The drunken grumbler let out a whoop of rage as he spied the black-clad figures on the steps. Then as the women walked hesitantly down the steps, the whooping became general.

Many of the soldiers in the square shouted insults as the group turned as if to go back in the church. The big drunk who had started the trouble threw down his cask and ran over to the steps.

An elderly Spaniard, who had explained one woman's condition before, called again that she was ill and needed an operation. The sergeant in charge yelled once more to the drunk to be silent.

He was wildly drunk by now. Before anyone could guess his intention, he grabbed the old woman, who was now trembling from fear, and stabbed her. She sank with a shriek of agony as the soldier dropped in his tracks, a bullet from the sergeant's gun through his head.

BOOKS

Amours of a Queen.

CLEOPATRA. By Emil Ludwig. The Viking Press, New York. 342 pp. Illst. $3.50.

The author of "The Nile" and other outstanding works has contributed another masterpiece to literature of the present period. This time his flowing pen and fertile brain traces the career of one of history's most colorful figures—not in the saccharine novelistic style followed by so many writers of all ages since the Christian era, but in a flowing, descriptive manner that omits nothing, and leaves it up to the reader to fill in from imagination, if so desired, the conversations that may have occurred.

It is all there—cruelty, ambition, sexual lust and mother love, and so vividly portrayed that one visualizes the entire career of this exotic half-Greek half-Egyptian from the time she was 14 years of age until she terminated her existence rather than be dragged through the streets of Rome in Octavian's triumphal procession.

Ludwig would have his readers believe she really loved the bald-headed, aged Caesar, even after his assassination, and she hoped to rear his son to be like his father, and rule the Roman Empire. She bore Antony twins and still another child before he married her without divorcing Octavio, and the chronicle states she still loved him, even when in his fifties he became bleary-eyed and his "paunch hung down to his knees" as he sat and brooded over his downfall.

If the artists of the period transferred to canvas a true picture of Cleopatra it is to be regretted that none was preserved.

Tribute to a Genius.

JOHN CORNELIUS. By Hugh Walpole. Doubleday, Doran & Company, Inc., New York. 425 pp. $3.

Because of his love for his friend, John Cornelius, and because so few people understood or loved this genius, Hugh Walpole has given us another of his great novels, "John Cornelius."

His sole purpose in writing this book was to make his friend live for the people who never knew him. The book is a romantic, truthful history—romantic in its color, and truthful in its realism. That is as it should be, for the central figure, Cornelius, was a man whose life was one struggle after another toward truth and fidelity, whether in his personal life or in his creative works of art. The key to Cornelius' life was first, his fidelity, and second, his search for the real world behind the factually visible one.

The man, Cornelius, whose personality was considered an oddity, possesses some of the traits found in all of us and this is one reason you will enjoy so thoroughly the novel of the successes and failures John Cornelius encountered in striving to reach the goal of his ambition.

From a literary standpoint Walpole has given you his best. His discriptive powers are displayed in a most interesting and realistic manner. You will find much of the social and literary background of England as it was during the life of Cornelius, from 1884 to 1921, at which latter date he died, after many laurels of merit had unexpectedly come his way. Staunch Vessel.

GALES, ICE AND MEN. By Frank Wead. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. $3.

During a full half century the steam barkentine "Bear" plowed its determined way through slim leads in Arctic ice packs—sometimes blasting or crushing her own avenues across the icy wastes—bent on missions of rescue or replenishment of supplies, protecting defenseless seal herds, delivering the mail, transporting destitute gold rush prospectors back to the states. These were but a few of her multiplicity of tasks—and she never failed.

The "Bear," of whose life this book is a powerful biography, lived that life to its fullest. As a sealer; in her role of navy ship sent to rescue the ill-fated Greely Arctic Expedition; as a vessel, in turn, of the Revenue Marine, the Revenue Cutter Service and the Coast Guard Service, and as a member of Byrd's Antarctic Expedition, she spoke far cities, saw strange sights, met strange peoples, and lived through strange happenings. She led a charmed life, despite the harrowing experiences in the ice packs of both poles, and achieved a justly-deserved acclaim before her last sail was furled.

To use another's words, she was "one of the longest-lived, most beloved and gallant little craft ever to sail salt water." J. T

"Dinner's Ready!"

THE COUNTRY KITCHEN. By Della T. Lutes. Little Brown & Co., Boston. 264 pp. $1.75.

This book might just as appropriately have been called "Dining Around the Year" or "Something Every Bride Should Know," for it very naturally begins with a New Year's dinner, and goes through to the next New Year. However this particular dinner was the most gorgeous of the entire cycle, not because they celebrated the birth of the New Year, but rather that of Della's father; and as all his relatives descended on the household to do him honor on that day, her mother felt the food must be better than any of these in-laws could possibly prepare at their own homes; hence there was rivalry as well as variety. And what food! Who would not exchange the joys of steam heat and electric gadgets for the delectable things that came steaming to the already loaded table from cellar and earth hill where they had been mellowing since the harvest?

And who, in reading how to cook a chicken, for instance, would not like to be entertained while it cooks with the very human people who made up this country family? The father who pretended to be very stern and taciturn, but whom Mother understood down to his muddy boots, who would endure many things for her, but not prayer meetings: "Lot of carpin' ol' hens," he snorted, "gettin' down on their knees and talkin' t' the Lord as if He's their brother-in-law and tellin' Him what to do." Once he refused to go to the Sunday school picnic, but Mother and Della were going, so he reluctantly hitched the horse to the buggy, and carried out the two baskets Mother had ready to deposit in the back.

Della was to say a piece at the speaking, so Mother did not look for her baskets till time to set the table, when she was mortified to discover that the one with all the food was missing—only the tablecloth and dishes had come with her. Heartbroken for the work of days going for nothing, she had to agree to share her neighbors' generosity. The minister was in the midst of a long blessing when there was a great racket, and Father drove up wiht the missing basket in one of the farm vehicles, grumbling about Mother having forgotten it, and the time he had to lose in bringing it. Mother said no word then, but later she laconically remarked that she noticed he had taken time to shave and put on a clean shirt. Realizing defeat, the subject was dropped.

But victory was on Father's side when it came to the old black kettle in which his mother had made "fried cakes"—doughnuts, to you. Though it accidentally fell off the table and broke, when Mother had purchased a more modern one, Father searched till he finally found its duplicate in a country auction!

Fortunately, there is, in the back, a page or so "For the Cook's Convenience," which gives page and subject of the recipes. This does make it a cook-book, I suppose, but what an entertaining one!

MARY LAWTON.

Modern Jules Verne.

ZERO TO EIGHTY. By Akkad Pseudoman. Scientific Publishing Co., Princeton, N. J. 283 pp. $3.

Here is Jules Verne brought up to date; well beyond date, as a matter of fact, for the narrative is written in the year 2000 A. D. It consists of the "Lifetime Doings, Reflections, and Inventions" of Pseudoman (an alias for Dr. E. F. Northrup, the author.) The piece de resistance of the miscellaneous contents is a record of a trip to the moon and back again. The theoretical possibility of such a jaunt is documented beyond a doubt by an exhaustive description of the apparatus involved and an exposition (faultless, insofar as this layman can discover) of elementary physics. Aside from the perhaps picayune objection that the mathematical groundwork supports a structure of guesswork likely to appall any would-be stellar navigator, this part of the narrative is unique in conception, is well done, and profoundly interesting.

But when the narrator steps off his moon ship and deals with mundane matters he displays a paucity of imagination that is startling by contrast. There seems to be no good reason, in the first place, for adorning an imaginary narrative of this character with a love story. When this same love story is tepid and presented with a singular awkardness of phrase the effect is to destroy the very illusion of reality which the author has been so careful in building up. His interplanetary rapid transit is burdened with an appendage as graceful as the cow that, according to the jingle, once made the same trip. OLE H. LEXAU.

Life Is Real and Earnest.

THE EVERGREEN TREE. By Gladys Taber. Macrae-Smith Co., Philadelphia. 303 pp. $2.

This new novel is a gripping, fascinating story of a family living in a small Wisconsin college town. Starting with a period before the World War it carries its readers through a period when the children of Clara and Harry Prescott were in the sweetheart age. After the World War a time of prosperity comes, making money is easy, every one has a good job, things are on the upgrade financially speaking, and life is easy. Then follows the crash of the stock market, jobs are scarce, the children are forced to move their families back into the old home with the old people, nerves are strained, emotions run high, the banks close and life is a hard road to travel. The plot in this story is one that unfolds itself, rapidly moving from joy to sorrow, from wealth to poverty, from rioting mobs of men out of work to the quiet peaceful life of everyday living.

Written with a deep understanding of human emotions and vivid descriptions of the trying times of a World War, a depression, and jobless men, and the effects experiences of this kind have on the families of this modern world. JESSE R. PETTY.

Growing Old.

THE SECOND SEVENTY. By Lyman P. Powell. Macrae-Smith, Philadelphia. $1.50.

Over the desk of Carl Akeley, the African explorer, hung a motto: "The saying, 'the gods die young,' does not mean that the gods die when they are young, but that the gods are young when they die."

Any book which deals with the art of growing old is sure to be read, t the facing of age is one of the te of a human being. Whether it be the bitterness of defeat or by t graciousness of acceptance, by d fiance or by the saving grace of sense of humor, the years after se enty usually mark a personality f what it has really achieved.

Not that achievement should st at seventy. Years today are mea ured not by calendars but by vario conditions of body and mind—ment and emotional ages—and the list people who have accomplished wor of note. after sixty and seventy is long one.

Added experience should bring, n dread of the future, regret for th past, fear and insecurity. These a old attitudes. Each year should brir added maturity of thought and em tion, and a mature person accep life as an inevitable adventure wi an inevitable ending.

One Man's Opinions.

GREAT CONTEMPORARIES. B Winston S. Churchill. G. P. Put nam's Sons, New York. $4.

Ranking as one of England's pres ent day statesmen, Winston Churchil is regarded by many as an irrepres sible politician. He has also writte a number of books as well as news paper articles, his latest being ponderous tome in which he gives hi impressions of some 21 great figure with whom he came in contact dur ing his career in politics, the army and navy.

Outstanding are chapters devoted to the deposed Kaiser, former King Alfonso, and Boris Savinkov, the pre-Bolshevik Russian spy who worked for both the Czar and the forces which were planning the autocrat's downfall.

In his chapter concerning the former Kaiser, one gathers that he considers that ruler as a swashbuckling autocrat who built up a great war machine for the purpose of posing in his many uniforms; who did not want war, but was finally forced into it by the Frankenstein he had created.

The book is a review of the careers of some great international figures, and is of real literary worth, even if the reader does not subscribe to the opinions expressed.

Mystery Not Solved.

AUDUBON: An Intimate Life of the American Woodsman. By Stanley Clisby Arthur. 517 pp., index, appendices. Harmanson, New Orleans. $5.

Whether he was indeed the Lost Dauphin, heir to the Bourbon throne in France, or an illegitimate son of an Haitian creole and a French sea-captain, Jean Jacques LaForet Audubon's biographers, early and recent, cannot say. What is positively known of the life of this greatest of American ornitholigists must date from his formal adoption by Captain Jean Audubon at Nantes, in the year 1794.

Stanley C. Arthur's work, by far the most extensive biography of the so-styled "Creole" son of Jean Audubon, attemps no settlement of the century-old question as to Audubon's origin. In two appendices it gives the evidence as available: Audubon's remarkable resemblance to the unfortunate Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette, his own guarded references to "his great secret" and his "noble birth," the personal qualities and physical characteristics which connect the lives of the Dauphin and young Audubon, and the numerous reports which would prove that the Bourbon heir was spirited away from the old shrine of the Knights Templar, leaving another lad, older than himself, to die in his place. The second appendix includes the evidences which seem to bear out the "Creole" story: The affair of the roving sea-captain with one Mlle. Rabin, the subsequent departure of their son, Jean Rabin, to France, and his adoption as "Jean Jacques LeForet Fougère Audubon," at Nantes. The latter evidence, for all its matter-of-

RICH'S

PEACHES

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

There are literally hundreds of varieties of peach trees but only a handful of these are sufficiently satisfactory that they are commonly grown here in Georgia. We want to suggest a few varieties that we believe will be very satisfactory in your garden for they have been satisfactory in many others. Leading this list will be Elberta, early Elberta, Belle of Georgia and Hiley Belle. For a very late variety we can recommend J. H. Hale. Of the skin stones, Indian cling and white English are the two varieties. Other varieties are free stones; widely planted and generally satisfactory are Carmine, golden jubilee, Mayflower and Mikado.

At this time of the year there are two very important bits of work that must be done in regard to fruit trees in general and peach trees in particular.

The old trees that have been bearing and for that matter all peach trees that have been planted in the past should be pruned immediately. This pruning should be done with the object in view of having as much sunlight as possible coming through the trees so that the peaches may be exposed to the sunlight throughout the spring and summer. This is the reason that professional orchards train their trees in such a manner that they appear more like bushes than trees. The center main stem should not be allowed to grow more than three or four feet from the ground. From three to five branches should be depended upon to bear the entire burden of both fruit and foliage of the trees. These should be selected in such a way that the tree is evenly branched and each year should have one-third of the previous season's growth, and all of the dead and diseased wood removed.

As soon as this pruning is completed the trees should have a thorough spraying with dry lime sulphur or scalecide. The purpose of dry lime sulphur spraying is to control San Jose scale and to accomplish this it is usually necessary to spray the trees two or three times during the dormant season. The last spraying should occur just before the buds begin to swell. So far this section of the state still has sufficient time for at least two thorough sprayings.

To control curculia and other fungus diseases it is usually counted necessary that the summer spraying be done also. The best material for this use, particularly for the home grower, is mulsoid sulphur, which is in reality dry lime sulphur in sufficiently weak shape to prevent the tender peach foliage from being destroyed by the spraying.

So, for the old orchards, a job that should be attended to at once, prune fairly severely and spray thoroughly.

The two jobs for the early part of December are the spraying and planting of peach and other fruit trees. Upon the proper planting of these trees, depends the future success of the orchard and for this reason unusual care should be taken and every detail attended to in the planting. There are several important points that must be borne in mind.

First, the plants should be set about one inch deeper than they stood in the nursery. This is for the proper protection of the bud.

Second, spread the roots in as natural a position as possible, first having cut away with a sharp knife all of the injured and bruised roots.

Third, use the very richest soil and work it closely about the roots of the plants, using the fingers to have this good rich top soil in close contact with them in order that there will be no air pockets.

Fourth, firm the soil thoroughly, tramping it evenly when the hole is half filled.

Fifth, finish filling the hole, leaving loose soil on top of the ground for a mulch, also leaving a slight depression to act as a pocket to catch water.

Sixth, unless the manure is well rotted and thoroughly mixed with the soil, it is better to use this manure on top of the ground.

Last, and most important of all, the hole for the planting of this peach tree should be twice as large as seems necessary. For the usual size peach tree the hole should be two feet in diameter. This seems almost unnecessary, but it must be remembered that these small roots must have plenty of room in which to grow.

Although peaches are more widely raised than any other one fruit here in Georgia, there is surprisingly little information generally known about them. There are several important features that should be remembered.

If it happens that you have a choice of several places in which they may be planted choose the north side of a fairly steep hill. This seems a strange suggestion when almost every spring there is considerable talk of winter kill. There is a reason. The fruit buds of peaches will stand very cold weather if they are thoroughly dormant. But if the buds once start swelling and are ready to open, a fairly light freeze will do considerable damage. Therefore, if the trees be placed on a northern elevation, the trees will be somewhat protected from the sun, and because of the hillside air drainage, will remain dormant longer than those exposed to the full effects of the sun, or those planted on level ground where there is not much air drainage.

Peaches will do well in almost any sort of soil that may be found in Georgia. They are fairly heavy feeders and should be fertilized thoroughly, both at the time of planting and later at periodic intervals. Stable manure, pulverized sheep manure or bone meal may be used satisfactorily.

WHAT TO PLANT IN DECEMBER.

PLANTS: Set out roses, strawberry plants and all kinds of shrubbery, Japanese and Dutch iris, as well as peony crowns.

BULBS-LILIES: Crocuses, daffodills, tulips, ranunculus, anemones and lilies of the valley out doors, as well as indoors. Freesias and paper white narcissus may be planted in the house. All of the Japanese lilies may be planted this month, they usually arrive about the first of December from Japan.

SHRUBBERY: Have your shrubbery planted this month, evergreens, conifers and flowering shrubs. Flowering shrubs should be planted as early as possible in order that they may become established before spring growth starts.

ROSES: Plant roses now. If your knife is sharp take out the dead branches and the longest stems.

VEGETABLES: Sow lettuce, cabbage and onion seed in the cold frame. Start asparagus beds and plant rhubarb.

FRUITS AND BERRIES: Do not wait any longer in planting fruits and berries as the sooner they are in the ground the better they will grow during the next season.

WHAT TO DO IN DECEMBER.

MULCHING: December is the accepted month for mulching shrub beds as well as perennials and roses. The best material for this purpose is a mixture of peat moss and sheep or cow manure.

FERTILIZING: Bone meal, raw, is the best material for fertilizing roses and bulbs as they are placed in the ground. A light application of bone meal or sheep manure is good for the lawn at this time to promote winter stooling.

PRUNING: Take the tall stems out of roses, remove the dead wood from all shrubs, both deciduous and evergreen. The flowering shrubs should be pruned after they have bloomed next spring.

SPRAYING: Now that fruit trees are dormant they should have a thorough dormant spraying using scalecide or dry lime sulphur for the peaches. Dormant spraying for scales is most important and should not be overlooked.

Up to 2½ times as much of these pain-relieving ingredients in BAUME "BEN-GAY" as in 5 widely offered rub-ins

WHEN rheumatic pains stab at joints and muscles remember to rub in "Ben-Gay." Its gentle warmth soon relieves the pain-ridden arm, back, or leg. It's so wonderfully effective because: 1. Tests of "Ben-Gay" and 5 widely offered rub-ins show "Ben-Gay" contains up to 2½ times more methyl salicylate and menthol — active pain-relieving agents. 2. Dr. Bengue's original formula, still used in "Ben-Gay," assures prolonged contact of these pain-relieving agents with the place where you hurt. 3. Formula carefully balanced to obtain maximum relief. Remember "Ben-Gay" has been the stand-by of millions for over 40 years. Widely imitated, so protect yourself by looking for Dr. Bengue's signature on the package to be sure you're getting the genuine Baume "Ben-Gay"!

Use Baume "Ben-Gay," too, for backache, neuralgic pains, headache—stiff, sore muscles due to work exercise or exposure.

Questions, Answers On Garden Subjects

By MRS. FLETCHER PEARSON CROWN

Question: I wish to know if this is the season to do something to my lily-of-the-valley bed. If so, what?

Answer: Yes, this is the time to fertilize your lily-of-the-valley bed. Use well-rotted manure, and plenty of it. They are very greedy. If you have an old bed that has become crowded, or an old bed that does not thrive, then dig it up, take out the pips and remake your bed. Or you may make an entirely new bed at this time, remembering that they like much food, but no manure must ever come in contact with the roots.

Question: Is it too late to plant tulips now?

Answer: No, indeed, it has just gotten cold enough to risk planting them. From now until the middle of December is a splendid time. Do not work the soil when it is very wet. Use a generous covering of bone-meal on top of the soil after you have finished planting them. Work lightly into the soil. Plant about six inches deep.

Question: Will my delphiniums plants be heardy in Atlanta?

Answer: Yes, the colder the better. They grow lovelier in Finland than anywhere else that I have seen. Put deep drainage in a trench, then some soil and then much manure. Add six or eight inches more of soil, bringing it slightly higher than the surrounding earth. Then plant your delphiniums. Do not let the manure touch the roots. You may now add some bone meal, and last of all, sifted coal ashes to keep off the snails.

Question: Have I waited too late to lift the plants out of my perennial beds and rework the soil?

Answer: No, this work can be done at any time of the winter. However, I would prefer getting it done before Christmas, while the weather is not so cold and rainy. Lift your plants, cover them with leaves and burlap and they can be kept for several weeks. I think it best to replant them as soon as is convenient.

WHEN JUSTICE TRIUMPHED

Bud had aided in hiding his body.

Bud then was taken before Dave and repeated his story.

"You're a dirty liar!" Dave yelled and tried to spring upon his brother.

Details of the confession were kept secret, and District Judge George W. Johnson called a special session of the Bowie county grand jury for Wednesday. Dave was indicted for murder, Bud as an accomplice, and Collie Goodwin and Buck Sanders were named on hog theft charges. George Goodwin was found to have a perfect alibi and was released. Mrs. Dave Goodwin and Mrs. Morgan were held as material witnesses.

Dave pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for Monday, March 10, with Bud's to follow immediately. Hoyt Taylor and Grover Barkman were appointed to defend Dave, and Ott Blocker was named by the state to handle Bud's defense.

* * *

As news of the indictments spread over the county, feeling against Dave and Bud became intense. Jim Elliott, uncle of the slain youth, was serving as jailer. Mob spirit was spreading. Sheriff Brooks hurriedly spirited Dave out of the county.

From Wednesday until the trial on the following Monday, they were kept in separate jails and moved each night, being held at Jefferson, Mount Pleasant, Paris and Marshall.

Alarmed by the mob threat, Dave pleaded with Sheriff Brooks to protect him. "Don't let them get me and I'll tell the truth," he pleaded. "I killed Elliott, but I had to do it.

"I knew he believed I had killed his hog, and I wanted to get him away from the folks before some of them let something slip. That's why I offered to go with him.

"I helped him look for his hogs for a while, and then told him I was going to sit down and kill a rabbit for fish bait. Elliott was on his horse. Suddenly he put his hand in his pocket and said: 'You've got to get the hell out of these woods.'

"I told him I had a right to hunt in the woods, and he got mad and started toward me trying to get his hand out of his pocket. I thought he had a gun and was going to shoot. I shot him with the shotgun and he fell off his horse, but started to get up. I grabbed my rifle and shot him again as he came on. I saw he was dead and started to go after the law, but I knew I would be put in jail. I decided to hide the body and went after Bud to help me."

"You're not telling the truth, Dave," Sheriff Brooks told him. "Elliott was shot from the back both times and either shot would have killed him."

But Dave would not change his story.

Sheriff Brooks feared an attempt might be made to lynch Goodwin when he was returned for trial and asked for a detail of Texas Rangers. They were not available.

Before daybreak Monday morning, Dave was brought to the courthouse from Marshall, surrounded by sheriffs of five counties and 20 deputies. Judge Johnson ordered every one entering the courtroom to be searched for guns. A crowd of 2,000 milled about the courthouse. The jury was completed at mid-afternoon.

Bud Goodwin was the star witness for the state. He told his story and could not be shaken by the defense attorneys. Dave, tall and blonde, took the stand in his own defense. He repeated his story of self-defense without any trace of emotion.

District Attorney Waters pleaded for the death penalty, and branded Goodwin as the most cold-blooded killer in the history of the county.

The defense attorneys begged for mercy. They declared that Dave Goodwin's mind was that of a 10-year-old child. They cited testimony of his father that he had never been allowed to attend school.

"Hog stealing was a greater crime to him than the killing of a human being," the defense argued.

The case was given to the jury at 6 p. m. Tuesday, and a verdict was reached on the third ballot at 7:45 p. m. He was found guilty and sentenced to death.

"That's all right," Dave commented to the sheriff. "It was either the chair or the mob for me, but I'm not dead yet."

"Why did you file that notch on the gun?" Sheriff Brooks asked as Goodwin was lodged in the Texarkana jail for safety.

"Honest, sheriff, I didn't do it. Bud was the only one that had it after I killed Elliott. He must have done it."

When Bud Goodwin was brought to trial on March 12, his state-appointed attorney contended there was no evidence to show that he had been an accomplice and that he could not be charged as an accessory under the Texas law. The district attorney held that Bud's expression of "all right" when Dave said he intended to kill Elliott had made him an accomplice.

With feeling still running high, state and defense attorneys conferred and Bud agreed to plead guilty and take a 20-year sentence.

Collie Goodwin was given four years for hog theft on a plea of guilty, and Buck Sanders, found to be mentally incompetent, was released. Mrs. Goodwin and Mrs. Morgan also were freed.

Bud started his prison term at Huntsville, while Dave's attorneys appealed for a new trial on the grounds that Judge Johnson had erred in his charge and that a fear of mob violence had predominated during the trial.

The court of criminal appeals rendered one of the most unusual decisions in its history on November 26, 1930.

The court held that the presence of five sheriffs and 20 other officers was evidence of a fear of mob violence and that when the defense attorneys failed to ask a change of venue, the judge should have ordered one on his own initiative.

The appellate court also held that the court had erred in the charge to jury, but that since the defense attorneys had failed to file exceptions at the time, the higher court was powerless to act and could only affirm the sentence.

"The conduct of the trial was inexcusable, but since there are no errors in the record, we can only affirm the lower court," the court held.

Defense Attorneys Taylor and Barkman declared they were appointed on the eve of the trial and had no time to prepare a defense, and that they had only one chance to talk to the defendant for a few minutes when he was returned for trial. Motion for a rehearing was filed, and the case attracted wide attention.

J. A. R. Moseley Jr., prominent Texarkana attorney, took up the fight to win a new trial for Dave Goodwin. The attorney, serving without pay, declared the youth had been rushed to trial in the shadow of a mob, and that he had no chance of a fair and impartial hearing.

When the motion for a rehearing was argued before the appellate court on January 31, 1931, friends of Elliott were so bitter over the attempt to save Goodwin from the chair that mob violence again appeared imminent.

Since his conviction, Goodwin had been held in the Titus county jail at Mount Pleasant. During his 11 months' confinement, he had written a song giving his version of the case. Now he was rushed to the Dallas jail for safety.

Goodwin again was denied a new trial on May 27. The court of criminal appeals denied the motion for a rehearing, but severely condemned the state law that made it impossible for the tribunal to correct the errors of the trial court.

Attorney Moseley announced that he would take the case to the United States supreme court and appealed to Governor Ross Sterling for clemency.

Goodwin was shipped back into Bowie county on June 9, and Judge Johnson set his execution for August 10. Attorney Moseley pleaded with Governor Sterling to intervene, and on August 6, the state executive commuted Goodwin's sentence to life imprisonment.

The act of clemency aroused bitter resentment among Elliott's friends. Jim Elliott, Bowie county jailer and uncle of the slain youth, resigned his post, declaring: "If that is justice, never again will I turn a key on a prisoner's cell."

Collie Goodwin completed his sentence in 1934. Dave and Bud became model prisoners at the Huntsville penitentiary. Attorney Moseley said he would ask Governor James V. Allred to pardon the latter because he was sentenced "for a crime of which he was not guilty."

The Governor complied, granting Bud Goodwin a full pardon on July 16, 1935.

PHOTOCRIME---THE MYSTERIOUS DEATH AT SUICIDE BRIDGE.—WAS IT REALLY SUICIDE OR WAS IT MURDER?

1. VIRGIE WYE was astounded at the manner in which Carr Mayo took her final refusal to marry him. After a moment, he raised his head and wished her happiness. "I appreciate your attitude, Carr." It's just that I love Reed and not you. You are one of the cleverest men I have ever known, but I could never marry you because I think you are . . . well, unscrupulous."

2. CARR MAYO has made up his mind what to do. He spends some time writing his diary (see inset), then phones the hotel to learn when Reed Conklin, his rival, is expected to return to the city.

3. REED CONKLIN arrives at his hotel and immediately telephones Virgie. Mayo sees Conklin go into the booth and waits for him. "Can't see you tonight, darling, but come early tomorrow morning," Virgie tells Reed.

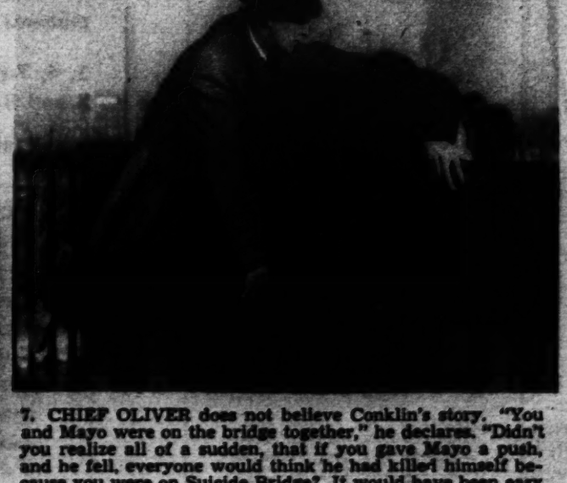

4. MAYO GREETS CONKLIN jovially as the latter steps out of the telephone booth. "I want to talk to you," says Mayo. "Have you had dinner? Then, let's take a walk."

5. NEXT MORNING, Carr Mayo's body is found below a "Suicide Bridge," so called because of the number of persons who have leaped to their death from it. Detectives search Mayo's room and find his diary. They also learn he and Conklin were together the night before. Conklin and Virgie are questioned.

6. CONKLIN MAINTAINS HE IS INNOCENT. "Mayo and I walked out on the bridge and stopped there to talk," he said. "He told me Virgie had decided between us and congratulated me." Conklin said he had never heard of the Madge mentioned in Mayo's diary and that Mayo had not said anything about her to him.

7. CHIEF OLIVER does not believe Conklin's story. "You and Mayo were on the bridge together," he declares. "Didn't you realize all of a sudden, that if you gave Mayo a push, and he fell, everyone would think he had killed himself because you were on Suicide Bridge? It would have been easy to catch him off balance and push," he declares, visualizing his version of the death of Carr Mayo.

8. VIRGIE, who has been looking at Mayo's diary, suddenly calls the chief's attention to something which causes him to change his mind about Conklin. "This shows that Reed did not kill Carr Mayo," says Virgie. "Here's why—" The police officer reads, listens to her explanations, then turns to shake hands with Conklin.

Can you give the explanation Virgie gave to the chief? If you fail, turn to page 4 for the solution.

A REFLECTION—This unusual photograph was made by photographing the mirror which hangs over the desk of C. F. Palmer, in the new Air-conditioned Palmer Building, located at Marietta and Forsyth streets. This office is typical of the beautiful interiors of the building whose exterior is as modern as tomorrow—completely air-conditioned for year-round comfort, handsome corridors, spacious lounge, newest lighting arrangements, elevator cabs and many other details combine to make the Palmer Atlanta's most modern office building and the Home of preferred businesses.—(adv.)

SOLUTION TO PHOTOCRIME: "SUICIDE BRIDGE"

Virgie said: "Carr Mayo was so clever that he planned his suicide to look as if Reed had killed him, in order to get revenge on Reed and me. He wrote in his diary of things he planned in the future, so it would appear he was far from contemplating suicide. But he did all that before he even arranged to go for a walk with Reed I know, because Reed was not in town until evening and Carr wrote this immediately after leaving me in the afternoon. He knew this diary would be found, but he forgot about the difference in time." (Note time on clock in picture No. 2. Reed did not arrive at the hotel until evening as Mayo's dinner coat indicates in pictures 3 and 4.)

JANE SLIPPED INTO THE LOVAT ESTATE TO FIND OUT ABOUT THE FAMOUS LOVAT WILL -AND DISCOVERED JUDGE STEPHENS, WHO HAD IT, WAS MURDERED-ONLY BOOTH LOVAT DOESN'T SUSPECT HER- 12-5

THE POLICE MUST BE NOTIFIED!

OH, THINK OF THE SCANDAL!

IS IT INSPECTOR MURPHY, IN THE CITY, WHO IS SO GOOD AT THIS SORT OF THING?

HE'S A GOOD MAN TO CALL!

CALL HIM, ARCHY- WE WANT HIM IN CHARGE OF THIS INVESTIGATION- TELL HIM MONEY IS NO OBJECT!

IN THE MEANTIME, WHO'S GOING TO KEEP AN EYE ON THIS GIRL?

QUIT BEING SUCH A CAT, KAREN!

WHILE WE'RE WAITING FOR THE POLICE, WE'D BETTER LOOK AROUND FOR THE WILL- WE DON'T WANT IT LOST!

GOOD IDEA- LOOK IN HIS BRIEF CASE!

BUT IT MUST BE THERE- HE WOULDN'T HAVE COME HERE WITHOUT IT!

HE TOLD ME HE BROUGHT IT!

IT'S EMPTY!

HE MIGHT HAVE HAD IT IN HIS POCKET!

IT WASN'T IN HIS POCKETS, EITHER!

THEN IT'S GONE!

I'M SURE OF IT- I LOOKED, TOO!

SO THAT'S IT-

WHO KNOWS THE TERMS OF THAT WILL? THAT'S IMPORTANT!

NO ONE KNEW EXCEPT JUDGE STEPHENS- AND HE'S DEAD!

THAT'S WHERE YOU'RE WRONG- THE MURDERER KNEW!

WHY DO YOU SAY THAT?

WHAT IS THIS- A MELODRAMA?

WHAT DO YOU MEAN?

IF THE WILL IS MISSING, IT MUST HAVE BEEN THE MOTIVE FOR THE MURDER- THAT SEEMS OBVIOUS-

AND THE MURDERER MUST HAVE REALIZED HE WAS LEFT OUT OF THE WILL- WHY ELSE WOULD HE DESTROY IT?

WHICH OF US KNEW?

THE POLICE HAVE ARRIVED!

OVERMATCHED, SILVERFISH HAS 'BEEN BLOCKED IN EVERY EFFORT AT DELAY, OUT-GENERALED, OUT-SMARTED, BY OBADIAH RITT - ALREADY THE TRIAL IS OVER - THE CASE IS IN THE HANDS OF THE JURY - THEY HAVE THE EVIDENCE - THEY ALSO HAVE THE RINGING SPEECHES OF OPPOSING COUNSEL TO PONDER - WHAT WILL THE VERDICT BE? WHEN WILL IT COME? SHH-H-H-----

BUT ALL THE EVIDENCE - IT'S CLEAR - NOT ONE SHRED OF DOUBT - YOU KNOW BLABBLE IS GUILTY -

I DON'T KNOW NOTHIN' O' TH' SORT - YOU HEARD WHAT MR. SILVERFISH SAID -

GREAT SCOTT! THERE'S ONLY ONE ANSWER - GUILTY! WHAT ARE WE WAITING FOR? I'VE GOT A BUSINESS THAT NEEDS ME -

WELL, I AIN'T - I FIGGERED ON THIS TRIAL LASTIN' AT LEAST A MONTH -

WHILE IN A CORRIDOR NEAR THE JURY ROOM--

HA! GOT YUH, MY FINE-FEATHERED FRIEND - QUICK, JIM - WE'LL TAKE HIM DOWN STAIRS -

NIX! NIX! I WASN'T DOIN' NOTHIN' - IT'S ALL SOME MISTAKE -

YEAH - YOUR MISTAKE - CHAIN'LL LIKE TO TALK TO THIS FELLER -

ONE HOUR LATER----

NIX! I'LL TALK! SILVERFISH GAVE ME TH' DOUGH - IT WAS ALL FIXED FOR ME TO SLIP IT TO ONE O' TH' JURORS - IF HE GOT IT, O.K. - HE'D HANG TH' JURY - IF I GOT CAUGHT DOIN' IT, IT'D BE A MIS-TRIAL - SEE?

SIGN THAT CONFESSION RIGHT HERE -

WELL, WE BROKE UP THAT LITTLE TRICK JUST IN TIME - THINK WE CAN PROVE IT ON SILVERFISH?

PRETTY DOUBTFUL - ONLY THE WORD OF A VERY QUESTIONABLE CHARACTER AGAINST THAT OF THE MOST REPUTABLE TIMOTHY J. SILVERFISH -

IT'S A SHAME - IT SHOULD BE POSSIBLE TO DISBAR HIM FOR A TRICK LIKE THAT -

DISBARMENT IS HARDLY THE PROPER REWARD FOR THE USE HE'S MADE OF HIS TALENTS, IS IT? HM-M--- I UNDERSTAND HE'S BEEN GOING ARMED OF LATE - I WAS JUST THINKING-------

THINKING WHAT, MR. BLADE? WHAT HAS HIS CARRYING A GUN GOT TO DO WITH THE CASE?

OH, NOTHING---- NOTHING AT ALL - WE MUST WAIT FOR THE JURY'S VERDICT - THAT'S ENOUGH TO CONSIDER NOW -

AT THE JAIL, MEANWHILE---

KEEP YOUR CHIN UP - I KNOW SOMETHING - SEE? THE JURY WILL BE HUNG OR IT'LL BE A MISTRIAL - THE SAME THING - YOU COULDN'T BE SAFER IN A CHURCH, PAL -

THAT'S WHAT YOU SAY - HOW DO YOU KNOW?

BECAUSE I FIXED IT - SEE? BUT IT COST ME PLENTY DOUGH TO DO IT--- AND IT'LL COST PLENTY MORE TO GET YOU CLEAR - BUT THAT'S O.K., PAL - THERE WAS ENOUGH IN THAT DEPOSIT BOX TO RUN US A WHILE YET -

WHY, YOU--- --- YOU---YOU THIEF! YOU'RE DELIBERATELY KEEPING ME IN THE SHADOW OF THE CHAIR TILL YOU'VE PICKED ME CLEAN

YOU FLATTER ME, PAL - I'M NOT THAT SMART - BUT YOU'LL SEE I'M RIGHT ABOUT THE MISTRIAL - I NEVER LOSE A MURDER CASE -

HAROLD GRAY 12-5

WHAT? THEY NABBED HIM BEFORE HE GOT NEAR THE JURY ROOM? HE SPILLED IT ALL? WHY, TH' DIRTY-- ☆!!! THAT CHANGES EVERYTHING -

DEC 5

THERE'S A BOX THAT WEASEL DOESN'T KNOW ABOUT - A MILLION IN THAT BOX - ANOTHER COUNTRY - PLENTY OF MONEY - WHY NOT--? BUT FIRST TO GET OUT OF HERE--BAIL SOON, PERHAPS---IF NOT--- OTHERS HAVE DONE IT - HE CARRIES A GUN IN A SHOULDER SLING---I SAW IT----
